TO THE VOTERS OF CLANTON

On September 19th, in the City election, we the citizens of Clanton will have an opportunity to vote to see if the City Councilmen shall issue licenses for the operation of a billiard room, to be operated in the City of Clanton for the purpose of clean, wholesome recreation.

If you see fit to vote for licenses to be issued, I will assure you the Billiard Room will be operated in a quiet, orderly manner. There will be no drinking, no gambling, no profanity and no minors allowed.

It is my intentions to create and maintain a place of wholesome recreation and not a place for loafers or rowdy people.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS from The Bible

What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?
—(Micah 6:8)

For all the greatness of His love and mercy to us, God requires so little of us—and yet some of us find that little so difficult. We find it so hard, even while doing justly, to be merciful to those less fortunate, to be humble in our proud self-assurance.

Practical, realistic instruction is a basic part of courses at the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization's Staff College in Battle Creek, Mich. This scene shows how students learn to meet typical CD problems given them while they simulate emergency duties which government officials must be trained to perform under attack. Below, a class learns from a 3-dimensional city map how evacuation would be carried out if and when ordered.

To Board of Revenue--

Library Committee Again Presents Case

AT the response of a called meeting by leaders of Clanton Junior Chamber of Commerce, who have been promoitng the Library Bookmobile Program, a most informative program was presented by State Librarian, Mrs. Elizabeth P. Beamguard.

Citizens of Chilton County were informed that we could have local libraries in Clanton, Thorsby, Jemison and Maplesville, provided our County will indicate its readiness to participate in a regional library program.

A Steering Committee was named to work with the County's entire Library Program. Morris Moatts was named chairman with the following members on the committee:

Mrs. Jimmy Fort, Verbena.
Mrs. C. M. Walker, Stanton.
Mrs. Omar Reynolds and Miss Elizabeth Barton, Clanton.
Mrs. Davenport, Macedonia.
Mrs. Leo Langston, Jemison.

The Steering Committee was requested to appear before the County governing body—the Board of Revenue and Control—to present a new program which asked that the Library Program, consisting of$3,000 be included in the budget for the next fiscal year. This money, however, would not have to be available until next July 1st.

In the meantime, efforts will be put forth to establish libraries in each of the incorporated towns of our County, where quarters, utilities and a librarian is furnished.

Boks would be placed in each library by the State Library Dept.

Those appearing before the Board on Monday, Sept. 12 were Morris Moatts, James Duke Heflin, Mrs. John DeRamus, Mrs. Charles Foshee, Mrs. Charles Moore, Mrs. Clifford Littlejohn, Mrs. Helen Mims, Mrs. Aubrey Smith, Mrs. C. M. Walker, Mrs. Archie Taylor and Mrs. Omar Reynolds.

As of this date it is not known what action the Board will take on the matter. Their questions concerning the program led the Committee to believe that they are indeed interested in the project.

Little "Miss Mary" Stough of Stanton

Kathy Jane Stough was born on May 25, 1960 in the Vaughn Memorial Hospital, Selma. She is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Juanita Carter Stough and the late John Landon Stouh. Little "Miss Mary" has oeen very ill from birth. Loyin care has been given her by the family and the doctors and nurses have offered every attention.

Thursday, September 8th, she was rushed otJackson Hospital in Montgomery and underwent surgery on her spine by Dr. McQuire. She was then re-entered in Vaughan Memorial Hospital and there remained until Saturday, September 10th.

She is now at her home in Stanton and doing as well as can be expected, but the doctors hold very little hope that "Miss Mary" will recover.

Her father was killed in a tragic automobile accident two months before she was born.

Her mother, Mrs. Mary Juanita Stough and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Melvin Carter wish to take this means of thanking all those far and near for their generous help in every way during these weeks of "Miss Mary's" illness. "It seems that nothing has been left undone," they say and for all they are deeply grateful and with humble hearts say 'thank you'.

The name "Miss Mary" was given Kathy by the nurses and doctors at Vaughn Memorial. She is a namesake of her mother Mary Juanita Stough and her grandmother, Mary Lottie Harrison Carter.

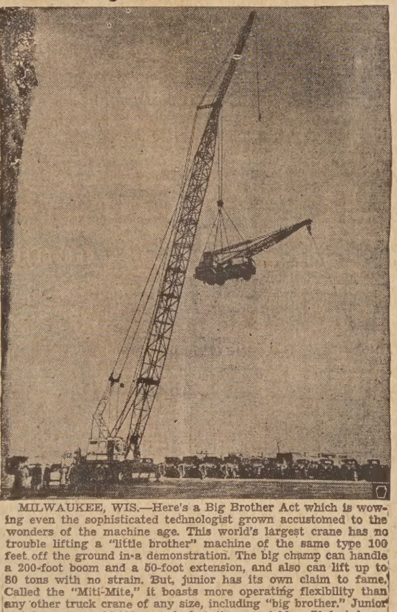
Big Brother Act



MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Here's a Big Brother Act which is wowing even the sophisticated technologist grown accustomed to the wonders of the machine age. This world's largest crane has no trouble lifting a "little brother" machine of the same type 100 feet off the ground in a demonstration. The big champ can handle a 200-foot boom and a 50-foot extension, and also can lift up to 80 tons with no strain. But, junior has its own claim to fame. Called the "Miti-Mite," it boasts more operating flexibility than any other truck crane of any size, including "big brother." Junior weighs a mere 31,000 pounds but it can wield a 70-foot boom plus a 20-foot extension and can toss around loads up to 25,000 pounds. The demonstration was staged by Harnischfeger Corp. of Milwaukee which manufactures both machines.

Worship Services at 11 and 8
Prayer Meet., Wednesday at 7 p.m.

Bro. Williams brought two good messages on Sunday but our attendance was off some. If you are a member, please come to services and help support the church.

We had a good service at Prayer Meeting Wednesday night. We are having good attendance there.

The WMU met at the church on Thursday afternoon. A good program was enjoyed taken from Royal Service.

Mr. and Mrs. David Moore were week-end guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Moore.

Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Oates and rs. W. L. Jones visited their mother in Alexander City Sunday. Also Mr and Mrs. A. O. Goss and Mrs. Willie Goss and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Jackson and Mr. Hoyt and Miss Mariah Freeman attended the Dedication of the Maplesville Baptist Church Sunday and visited with Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hayes.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Z. Atchison's Sunday dinner guests were Mr. and Mrs. Bob Atchison and family.

We were happy to have Mrs. Williams back at church Sunday evening. Hope she will continue to improve.

The nominating committee completed their report last Sunday nite. The new officers and teachers will be voted on by the church membership next Sunday.

We were made sad last Sunday night when Bro. Williams resigned as our pastor. He is giving up the church responsibility because of the health of Mrs. Williams. We hate to give him up. We all love Bro. and Mrs. Williams; they have and Mrs. Williams; they have certainly been a blessing to our church and community. He will remain with us until we get another pastor.

Congratulations to our new married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Thacker, who had a lovely church wedding last Friday night at 8:00 o'clock. We wish them much happiness in their married life.

Mrs. Mardre Honored Recently At Thorsby

Mrs. Robert Mardre (Judy Nelson) of Mobile spent the week-end in Thorsby recently with her parents, the Jimmy Nelsons, and while here she was complimented with a shower at the home of Mrs. Charles Cleckler.

The Cleckler home was beautifully decorated with summer flowers, with the ever popular marigold and the gold and green colors predominating. Marigolds in blue and crystal containers and white August lillies in white vases were used in profusion. The dining table, covered in ivory lace, held the punch bowl surrounded with green berried holly and miniature white zinnias. Tall candles in crystal holders completed the decrative scheme. Individually embossed cakes, nuts and orange sherbet punch was served.

In the receiving line were Mrs. Bob Mardre, Jr., her mother Mrs. James Nelson, the grooms mother, Mrs. Robert Mardre, his sister Mrs. Martha Scott.

The bride wore a lovely dress of beige lace and chiffon. Her corsage, a gift of Howard Brothers Florist, was of matching carnations.

Miss Linda Cleckler in gold lace, presided over the guest book. The co-hostesses were Mesdames, Lloyd Howard, Pope Payne, Jr., Owen Carter, Grover Bice, Henry Robinson, Sam Bentley and Miss Linda Cleckler.

Row Thinning—

PULPWOOD PROFITABLE IN ALABAMA

Pulpwood is a profitable business in Alabama and wil be even more so in the future.

And profit has recently been added by using row thinnings, rather than selective thinning, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Studies at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Auburn University show that a two-man crew cut 50 more posts in an eight-hour day when row thinning than the same crew cut with selective thinning. And the same crew loaded 650 more posts per day from row thinning than from selective thinning.

THINK for yourself — don't be a scrap pile for the ideas cast off by other men!

THEY say money talks — but to most of us it will never be more than a whisper.

THE secret of true happiness is to let the other fellow do the worrying.

A MAN with too much imagination is more dangerous than a man with too little learning.

THERE are a lot of people who never let ideas interfere with the easy flow of their conversation.

Your Duty To Vote--

MOST people are not aware that 30 to 40 million citizens in this country do not exercise their franchise to vote in our elections!

Often it is a lack of information as to where and when to register, pay your poll tax, etc. It is your duty to seek out this information and go to the polls on election day and vote.

This is a crucial time, when Communist propaganda throughout the world claims that Democracy is failing because often, one-half of the citizens do not even take the time to cast their vote.

In the free countries of Europe, the percentage of those voting far surpasses that in the United States. In the countries behind the Iron Curtain, people cannot exercise the privilege of the ballot. We must demonstrate to the entire world that the United States has confidence in its way of life by fully exercising the franchise.

Make your plans. . . Go to the polls in November and VOTE!

Cooperation, Not Compromise--

ALRIGHT, the Republicans claim prosperity! If you consider a new hospital, a new courthouse, new school buildings, a new health center and several other new improvements in Chilton County, prosperity that is our opinion also. But before you assume that it is due to our Federal Government, pause also to consider that these things would not be possible (in the case of the schools, entirely impossible) without local government, and our local governing bodies are in the hands of the Democrats. All Alabama's Senators are Democrats and most of our congressmen from Alabama are likewise. Tax reform is needed as never before—it's eating us up! In view of the facts then, with a Republican President and Democratic local government, it would seem we need each other. To say that our "prosperity" is due to a Republican Administration is false. It took both political parties combined. Therefore, neither prosperity nor depression can be blamed or conceded to any party. Vote for the Party which you think can and will serve the best interests of the people. One man can neither make us or break us, but the strength of the Party and the role it plays in our government can most assuredly change the course of our times. Consider all facets of the Party you vote for and conclude, before you cast that vote, which leadership we need the most. The decision is yours.

Sports Coverage In The News--

THE News will again serve its readers this year with complete sports coverage. This feature was so popular last year under the capable and enthusiastic supervision of Wayne Atchison, that we are continuing our efforts along these lines. Last year the News sponsored an All-County football team, which drew much comment and interest from all corners of Chilton County. Look to the News for exclusive sports coverage, pictures and features about youngsters in your community. We will appreciate your cooperation.

Take A Good Look--

IT'S wonderful to realize that approximately one year from now you can drive along 2nd Avenue and 6th Street and view a beautiful new Courthouse for Chilton County.

Those of you who are nostalgic enough to want to view the old building, had better do it in a hurry because its days are numbered. Many officials and the voters who went to the polls are due thanks from the citizens of Chilton County. We have finally discarded the past as such and are moving toward a bright future. With the Lord's help Chilton County is growing!

One Of The "Work Horses" Of Our County School System

One of Most Modern Fleets in Alabama

ABOVE is a picture of some of Chilton County's 64 schol buses that are used to transport approximately 4,700 children to the twenty-four schools of Chilton County each day. All of the buses with the exception of one were purchased from 1951 - 1959. This gives Chilton County one of the latest model fleets of school buses in Alabama.

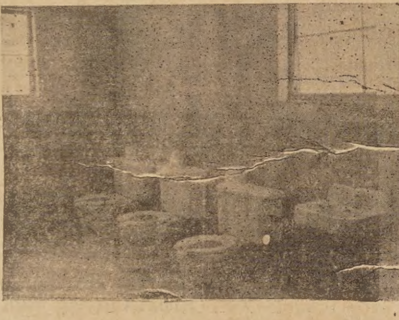
Transporting children to and from school is a very expensive operation. The total cost of purchasin and perating buses costs the taxpayers well over $100,000 each year. In other words, the cost of school transportation equals the total amount of local school tax money collected in Chilton County from ad valorem taxes and from all tax sources other than the one-cent sales tax and that tax cannot be used for transportation.

30 Times 'Round The World—

Transporting Chilton County's school children is a big business. During 1960-61 the miles traveled in transporting our children to and from school will be equal to some thirty trips around the world.

The Chilton County Board of Education requests that parents and teachers spend some time in encouraging and teaching children the proper way to ride a school bus and also how to take care of them. The Board also requests the cooperation of the motoring public in observing the state law which requires motorists to stop while children load and unload. We're proud of our children, our schools and our transportation system! . Let's keep them good. . . and safe!

Improvements In Sanitation Evidence Of Peoples Interest In Their County Schools



ABOVE is pictured part of the facilities which have recently been completed at Cooper Jr. High School. Similar facilities have been made available to the boys and girls at Collins Chapel, Enterprise, Mt. Pleasant, Stanton, Thomas Jr. and Maplesville Colored Schools. These improvements and many others are made possible by the favorable vote for the One-Cent Sales Tax by the people of Chilton County for their School children.

HI VANCE'S USED YARN LOT

50 YEARS OF HUMOR

FEW likely have heard this story on the famed football coach of the University of Georgia, Wally Butts, affectionately known to all who are intimate friends of his as "the litle round man".

For years Wally had a colored trainer working with his gridiron players. He absorbed all the Georgia coach knew about football, received and accepted an offer to coach a Negro College team in Memphis. He had god luck too, his club winning the majority of their games, but between seasons Butts noted in the papers that his friend had discarded the split-T in favor of the single-wing. He was in Memphis and dropped by ot see Lige.

The Memphis coach told his old employer that he had on his squad the greatest triple-threat man football had ever seen, and that he had entered school with plenty of credits, but he didn't know how, this had been managed. This gave Wally a chance to say that he had seen in the paper about his switching from the split-T to the single wing and demanded to know how come.

Whereupon his old trainer commented: "He's been playing that old single-wing stuff, that's all he knows".

When Butts asked him why he didnt teach him the split-T, the colored coach almost exploded: "How you going to teach a guy anything as intrikit as a T that has been split, when he dont even know his A B C's?"

There Came O'Flynn, O'Toole And Then The McMurphy Boys

SELECTIVE SERVICE IS 20-YEARS-OLD; WHAT A WAY TO CELEBRATE!

Selective Service will be 20 years old in September (16th to be exact) and during these two decades probably no clerk has tangled with a more perplexing problem than that recently encountered by James H. Elliott, Jr., of Escambia County Local Board No. 27.

Twin brothers who came in to register informed him that their names were William Joseph McMurphy. Sure enough, their birth certificates listed them as William Joseph McMurphy No. 1, and William Joseph McMurphy No. 2.

Questioning also disclosed that the father of the Atmore pair also was a William Joseph McMurphy and their grandfather was William Joseph McMurphy.

Elliott solved the problem by registering them as Wililam Joseph McMurphy III, and William Joseph McMurphy IV.

Friends of the Georgia Military College students have solved it more simply. They call them "Bill" and "Joe".

You know, I'll bet if they checked back they'd find that great grandpappy was W. J. McMurphy.

THINGS We see and hear

by BOB

FORTY percent of the school children in Alabama have poor posture. Up until this week we thought a posture was a place where cattle grazed, but taint so! Dr. C. D. Honan, local Chiropractor just came back from a Board of Directors Meeting in Montgomery where he learned these startling facts. Seriously, is it Television (they blame that for everything) that's making our kids have poor posture or a lack of self respect. You boys and girls hold yourselves erect and sit up straight. It'll do wonders for your sacryiliac. Okay, that ain't the way you spell it! Anyhow, hold your heads up, kids, all is not lost and seriously speaking again we think it's fine that the State's Chiropractors are taking this active interest in the health and well-being of our children.

AND by the way too, for those of you who think Chiropracty is something new, they celebrate their 65th anniversary this coming Sunday. Getting to be quite an oldtimer.

VERY sorry indeed to know that our good friend, Mrs. Etta R. Apperson, is a bit under the weather the past couple of weeks. Miss Etta has been through some trying experiences of late and she needs and deserves a good rest. Hope she's up and about in the next few days.

ADVERTISING is considered to be anything spoken or printed, either closely or remotely related to the product or services of a profit-making organization. Therefore, nobody can truthfully say they do not believe in, or that advertising does not help them in some way. If that were literally true then nothing that was said or printed would have very much life to it. People who don't read their community newspaper do not know or understand it, therefore they do not believe in it. You can't appreciate something which you have no interest in. But, by the same token; anything you take an interest in — you appreciate. It pays, all 'round, to read, support and advertise in "Your Community Newspaper".

WE, Democrats, think more of a Republican who will stand up and say so, than we do a Democrat who won't. Does the shoe fit?

AND speaking of politics; you know, there are good Democrats and there are good Republicans; the main thing is "who are YOU going to stand up for? A good American stands up for what he believes to be right!

THE way the number of farms is decreasing in Alabama and all over the United States, give us another generation and we'll all be eating synthetics! And liking it, because we won't know any better. You know, we believe in science and the things that God is letting us discover, but you'll never convince us that powdered milk is worth a darn or that instant mashed potatoes comes anywhere near those that you dig out of the ground.

A lot of folks believe that about the only difference in household PETS and a household PEST is the spelling! Some dog-cat-etc. lovers sure do get carried away with that "isn't he cute" routine! We like pets just fine, but we either like 'em outdoors or in a designated place in the house. Animals running loose in the living room—hairs and fleas and all—proves nothing, we just dont like such close communion with animals unless they eat what we eat, wash when we wash and sleep in a bed like we do!

MAN is getting so complacent and downright stupid that he not only is letting the woman take over his domain, he's giving the animals a whack at it too!

ACROSS THE EDITOR'S DESK —

HE DISAGREES W'TH US A LITTLE

Mr. R. M. Tucker, Ed.-Publisher
The Chilton County News
Dear Mr. Tucker:

I just must compliment you and praise you for your editorial in last week's News. You certainly laid it on the line. I have never had the pleasure of reading a truer, plainer or fairer article written by anyone and I agree with you on every point you si able presented except one short paragraph in which you stated, QUOTE: Anyone would be foolish to say that there is no reason to be concerned about the possibility if a Roman Catholic in a high office of authority. END QUOTE.

It is my opinion that we are in just as much, maybe more, danger of church rule with certain members of some church denominations holding a high office of authority as we are of a Catholic in the same office. . . when we take into consideration the efforts they are making to establish voting blocs by the members of their denominations, to obtain their ends, what else can we think and how can we but fear?

Now just what could be more tyrannical than the religious bigotry they are furthering in the field of politics?

Could any man condemn another through church denominational hatred and seek to destroy him in account of his sacred beliefs and he, himself contain one drop of Christianity in his makeup?

According to God's Holy Word and the teachings of Christ, that would be an impossibility.

It is my firm belief that Church and State should, forever, be separate. For many years now, the larger Protestant churches have striven to abilish this principle by condemning other faiths other than their own and building up and expounding continuously a propaganda scare that "The Catholics want to take over our government," when nothing could be more false and I can't help but feel that they know this to be true. When has it ever been possible for fifteen per cent of anything to outdo the eighty five percent? This very eighty five percent can and might become our gravest danger to religious freedom and separation of Church and State and eventually our ruin.

Such resolutions as you published on the page, opposite your editorial is a fair warning of the length to which they are going. Such propaganda is surely losing them the reverence, trust, respect and faith the people once unquestionably gave them and the dragging of scare propaganda skeletons into their churches will eventually prove their undoing.

I am and have been a member of the Methodist Church for over fifty-five years and I could never be a Catholic. I claim I have a devine right to my beliefs. I believe any and all others have the same sacred, God-given right. I believe this privilege should be honored by all. Our vote too, is our right and privilege and we should, and I do, resent anyone interfering with or trying to influence my vote or belief in the free exercise of our voting rights.

I do hope you will see fit to publish this letter.

Respectfully,
GEO. S. NAISH

SMALL PECAN CROP FOREC'ST

Alabama's pecan crop will be small again this year.

Production in the state is forecast at 17.5 million pounds, compared to 15.2 million pounds produced last year, reports A. W. Jones, Auburn Extension marketing specialist. But this still isn't very many nuts.

Jones says coastal counties that had a near failure crop last year have a fair crop in 1960, but as a whole the outlook is disappointing even in that area.

Central areas of the state generally had a good crop last year, but fewer pecans are indicated for that area this year.

However, the pecan crop for the entire U. S. is forecast at nearly 182 million pounds—the largest crop since 195[illegible]. And if this production is realized, it will be 27 percent above [illegible] and 21 percent higher than average.

Alabama has a growing wealth in the million acres of pines planted during the past 25 years. These pines will more than double the State's annual pulpwood production within another 20 years.

In India, calorie-intake level averages about 2,000 per person each day, which is 800 less than the U.S. average.

WHAT'S IN YOUR FIRST AID CABINET?

Do you like to collect things? Then collect stamps, dolls or money—not old medicines!

Elizabeth Bryan, Auburn University Extensiin specialist in home management, says illness or death can result from getting the wrong bottle out of the medicine cabinet; so it is important to know what is in every bottle stored there.

Rather than to take or give medicine that is unlabeled, the wise homemaker throws away the unlabeled bottle. And the whole family is safer if that unused portion of a prescription is in the garbage dump. Miss Bryan explains that a prescription is only f

Early Coffee Break!

Mrs. J. Hance Alred is seeing that the job's done proper as Mrs. R. M. Tucker serves Early Morning Coffee to Mrs. Mary Vance, a patient at Chilton County Hospital. It's a volunteer project of the Women's Auxiliary of the Hospital.

At the May meeting of the Chilton County Hospital Auxiliary plans were made for the Auxiliary to sponsor the serving of early morning coffee to those patients in the hospital who's diet or doctor did not restrict it.

Many patients are awake, in all hospitals, at a very early hour, by the process of things which have to be done for the patient before the 7 o'clock crew comes in to take; and therefore many patients are pleased and made happy by someone knocking lightly on their door and (if they are awake) and their name is on the list, saying with a smile: "I have a cup of coffee for you if you like!"

Members of the Auxiliary have been going out to the Hospital at 5:30 every morning since the first week in July and serving this coffee.

The Hospital staff, the nurses and the kitchen crew have been most cooperative.

This has proven to be a very worthwhile project for the Auxiliary and there are people who do not mind getting up early and spending their first hour of the day, making it just a little better day for those who are hospitalized.

The Auxiliary members who have served already include, Mrs. R. M. Tucker, Mrs. Callen Alred, Mrs. Charles Patterson, Mrs. J. Hance Alred, Mrs. Joe Grey, Mrs. Hugh Jones and these three ladies who are not members of the Auxiliary: Mrs. James Andrews, Mrs. J. W. Moliston and Mrs. Bob Tucker.

A number of others have volunteered to serve in teams, since soon it will be winter and still dark at that hour of the morning.

If you are interested in working for others, Call Mrs. R. M. Tucker, or better still, come and join the Hospital Auxiliary. There will be some project that you can help with if you are not interested in this Early Hour Project.

The Auxiliary is based on service and it volunteers for jobs it thinks worthy and ones which cannot be handled by the Hospital Staff due to the enormity of their jobs.

The Auxiliary is not a passive organization — they get the job done and since they are active, new members are always welcome!

BIG GAME COSTS BIG- INTERESTED?

Civic and hunting clubs can have an elk or buffalo dinner, but they will have to get their orders in early, according to Earl F. Kennamer, Auburn University fish and wildlife specialist.

The meat will be available at the opening of the annual big game disposal sale by the U. S. Department of the Interior. Orders will be filled on a "first come, first served" basis.

Kennamer says half an elk costs $50, and a whole carcass, 1100; half a buffalo sells for $90, a whole carcass, $180. A few quarters of buffalo are available at $45 each.

Periodic reduction of game herds is necessary for protection of range and for management purposes.

Surplus elk and buffalo are available at Wichita Mountains Natinal Wildlife Refuge, Cache, Oklahoma; National Bison Range, Moiese, Montana; Fort Niobrara National Wildlife Refuge, Valentine, Nebraska; Sullys Hill National Game Preserve, Fort Totten, North Dakota. And orders are now being solicited.

For official price lists and conditions of sale, Kennamer says to write the Fisn and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington 25, D. C. ir to the manager of one of the four reiuges.

'Gulf States' Issues Hunting Permit On Chilton Woodlands

HUNTING permits for Gulf States Paper lands in Chilton are again available for residents of this County, according to Jimmy Beall assistant district forester for the company in Clanton.

Gulf States has issued permits for hunting and fishing on its lands for a number of years. They are limited to the residents of the county where the land is located to prevent crowding out local hunters by pressure from more populous areas nearby.

New License Required—

Hunters need to have their new licenses with them when they ask for permits, according to Mr. Beall because they have to put the license number on the permit.

Beall commended the hunters of Chilton County for their diligence in preventing forest fires last year. According to his report, not a single fire was directly attributed to a hunter on the companys lands.

We might also add: Be as careful this year, Mr. Hunter!

Ralph Johnston, local druggist, is the only newcomer to the Clanton Council. He will take the seat occupied by Bob Powers who was appointed during the past administration due to the death of W. Cedar Grove HD'ers Hold Regular Meet

The Cedar Grove HD Club met Tuesday, September 6 with Mrs. Amos Smith with thirteen members, one visitor and Mrs. Lane present.

Devotional was given by Mrs. Walter Mastin and the story of the hymn was given by Mrs. Emmett Smith. Afterwards the group sang "Come Thou Almighty King" and gave the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mrs. Lucille Lowery read the minutes of the last meeting and gave the roll call. Each member answered with the season of the year they liked best.

To The People Of The City Of Clanton

Clanton has good Government with our present Mayor and City Council, but if the people of Clanton should desire to make a change, I would appreciate your vote as a member of your City Council. To you who do not know me by name, you will perhaps remember me as your City Manager from March 1st 1955 until September 30th, 1956.

Prior to that date, I worked with the City of Fort Payne 6½ years. I have been a resident of your city for almost 6 years, married to the former Essie Mae Mims of the Mims Realty Company. I am at this time broker and manager of this firm.

I am not asking for this office for personal gain, but simply to serve the people of Clanton with the best of my knowledge and experience.

Thank you for any consideration.

Crippled Children Hospital Will Be Ready By Next June

Ground-breaking ceremonies for the Central Alabama Crippled Childrens Clinic and Rehabilitation Center were held at the construction site on Montgomery's Southern Boulevard Wednesday afternoon, September, 7th as Mayor Earl James of Montgomery turned the first shovel.

Approximately 50 representatives from counties in the mid-state area atended the ceremonies and watched as five men turned shovels officially starting the construction.

Following Mayor James were: Dr. John Allen Jones, Chairman, Montgomery Medical Association; George H. Proctor, Andalusia, President of Alabama Society for Crippled Children and Adults; J. B. Sylvest, Chairman, Montgomery Baptist Hospital Association; and Arthur J. Lewis, chairman, Central Alabama Rehabilitation Committee. Lewis presided at the ceremonies.

Chilton County's representatives on the Central Alabama Rehabilitation Committee are Bob Tucker and I. S. (Doc) Levine.

All of us must remember that the facility will not run itself. It will need the support of thousands of Central Alabamians.

When operation begins, patients wil lnot have to make long trips to receive good rehabilitation treatment.

The center is not a hospital. It is removed from the hospital because the people who will come here are not sick in the sense of the hospital patient. They come for services that teach them to make the best use of all their potentialities.

Actual preparations for construction has already begun.

Contractor W. K. Upchurch estimates the building will be completed by next June. Total cost of the project is $453,000.

It is being built on over three acres of land given the Alabama Society for Crippled Children and Adults by the Montgomery Baptist Hospital Association.

The center wil be equipped to serve all crippled and handicapped persons regardless of the cause of crippling. It will house the State Crippled Children's Service clinics for this area and will offer a comprehensive program of services.

Willis R. Lowe Buried In B'ham.

Willis Reuben Lowe, age 62, passed away September 15. His surviving relatives are one daughter, Mrs. Betty Jean Gregory; one sister Mrs. Edna Thompson; one brother Reuben Lowe and one grandson Willis Lee Gregory.

Funeral services were held Saturday at Brown-Service Norwood Chapel in Birmingham with burial in Forest Hills Cemetery.

Faith, Not Freedom, Is The Divine Right--

THERE appears, from every corner of our land, lengthy "testimonials" about our "God-given rights".

We, as Americans, are not a chosen race, though some of us seem to have forgotten the fact, due to our abundance and plenty - and ignorance.

Our greatest God-given right is the ability to believe and have faith in our fellowman. Not many of us, during these days of political discussion and decision are showing an abundance of faith, or even open-mindedness.

Without faith in one another, we are no more than animals in the forest and we are showing a juvenile tendency toward that today.

A man, as we claim to believe, is chosen, depended upon and followed through his ability for the job at hand. The same thing holds true of an organization or a political party. For example: faith in your children is essential for them to have faith in themselves; if an employee does not feel that you trust him with the job he likely will not do it well. How much more does this hold true of government and its chosen officials? Why don't we trust anybody?

We, as a nation, have never condemned men or a man for their beliefs. A great American once said that even though he did not agree with what another man said, he would defend, with his life mind you, his right to say it! How many of us today feel so strongly about our own freedoms, let alone another's?

We most certainly do not propose that America "take a chance" or "gamble" with its freedoms and its heritage. There is a difference in faith, based on good will and "gambling" and freedom should be available to every man, woman and child who is willing to serve and to contribute to the strengthening of that freedom.

Rights and liberties are not given us by the Almighty. He has given every man the ability to choose what he will have and the path he will take to have it. Is it naieve to believe in liberties and justice? If they mean anything to us, they will mean the same to all, regardless of how powerful or how weak; regardless of wealth or poverty; regardless of religious belief or color of face.

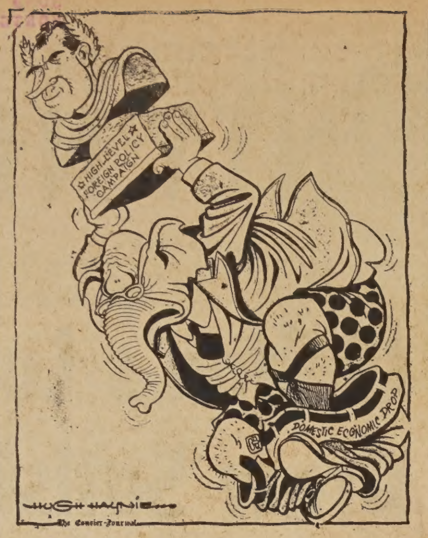
Freedom is a 'right divine', but it is not a divine right in the sense that it is handed down to us from above because we are who we are. If this were true, the whole world would be free because the Almighty willed it so.

When the Lorg gave man "dominion over all the earth" He well understood man's weaknesses to be, so he entrusted him with the power to think and gave him also the responsibility of having faith in his fellowman's wisdom to do likewise. He did not draw a line or a circle around any land or any people and say "these will be free and these will not be". We, with this ability to choose have chosen freedom, but we do not practice it, stand by it, preserve it for all generations to come.

The Lord Himself told us that all men are sinners, therefore no one, nor any group of people is without fault and no religious order is infallible. But, having faith, and knowing your own faults can you condemn another man's belief in his God because it does not parallel your own, or because he condemns you? Are you such an authority on human nature that you can say, without a doubt, that a man will sell his birthright for personal gain? You cannot because you know only your own mind, and no other's.

We can only do what we think is right. With intelligence, understanding and prayerful thought, we should choose our goals. We should choose our leaders in the same, serious, thoughtful and most important . . . faithful manner!

Without faith, man is an empty shell swayed by every wind that blows. and unable to decide because he believes in no one. We cannot establish or maintain our freedoms on such a flimsy foundation. Our freedom's are strong — our faith must match the quality of our freedoms.



Is There A Difference?--

DIFFERENCES between the political parties in an election year are hard to pinpoint. Once every four years the Republicans start talking like Democrats. The rest of the time they act like Republicans.

Underlying this strategy of politics is the fact that one party cares and the other doesn't. The theme of the Democratic Party has been and will be service to all the people. The theme of the Republicans is service to the privileged few.

DEFENSE AND PEACE

Our military and scientific authorities tell us that in the age of space and missiles, we are at the wrong end of the missile gap and the space gap.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former Chief of Staff of the Army, charged that the Republican budget makers had become the strategy makers, that we had sacrificed safety for a balanced budget.

On the issue of peace, they were equally unwilling to face up to the challenge. In an age where nuclear stalemate is only the hoped for transitory step to disarmament, we have fewer than 100 men scattered all over government, working on the problems of disarmament.

For these challenges, the Democrats offer a realistic military preparedness program as a cornerstone for world peace, and a defensive might sufficient to deter aggression.

For the larger problems of peace and disarmament, we propose a National Peace Agency to coordinate the research and planning for world peace. The Agency will substitute decision for drift in the quest for peace.

MEDICAL CARE

A prime example of the difference between the parties is the issue of medical care for the aged. To qualify, undr the Republican plan, the older citizen must sacrifice his dignity and receive a charity handout adminstered wthout central control or standards.

The Democrats offer a comprehensive plan, financed through Socitl Security, which provides proper medical care with dignity.

EDUCATION

The states and local communities are too heavily in debt to meet the school crisis. Federal grants to states are the only possible answer.

While the Republican platform pledges a program of Federal aid for school construction, it frowns on helping teachers because such aid can only lead "to federal domination and control of our schools."

The Democrats pledge financial support, within the traditional framework of local control, to classroom construction and teachers' salaries.

JOBS AND WAGES

Five per cent of the working force has been unemployed almost steadily since 1954 and 142 communities in 29 states had more than six per cent unemployed. In several major cities almost one in ten was looking for a job.

Yet, when the Democrats offered aid bills for depressed areas they were vetoed "because it would squander the Federal taxpayrs' money.'

The Republicans view a $1.25 minimum wage as inflationary and oppose additional coverage of workers under the law.

SOME folks claim a positive stand when all the time their thinking (and speaking) is purely negative. To obtain a positive stand you must maintain a positive attitude and that requires an open mind, without bias, prejudice or jealous hatred.

FELLOW told us the other day that the rabbits were eatin' up his turnip greens, the insects were eating up his turnip greens and something, he didn't know what, was eating up his turnip greens. One fellow who had this trouble (and didn't know much about turnip greens, either) sowed 10 pounds of greens and enjoyed a pretty fair crop. Now, you who know about turnip greens, know that it doesn't take much sowing to make an awful lot of turnip greens. 10 lbs. should fairly cover the whole of the man's farm in turnip greens. This fellow was using his head though: he carefully calculated the capacity of his rabbits and his insects, threw in a little for the unknown marauder and then added what he'd normally plant for himself and lo and behold, he came out with enough all 'round! See, it just takes careful planning — and an awful lot of turnip greens!

THE greatest, most wonderful part of our form of government is that some of our most respected and influential citizens do not agree with us in our faith in the Democratic Party. Now, that's what we call a free country! We're not influential and not necessarily respected by great men, but we're free to choose, just as they are. America's greatness in a nutshell!

YOUR HEALTH

DEPRESSION

Depression takes many forms, and physicians are alert to detect danger signals pointing to depressive illness. Danger signals include unusual feelings of despair, unworthiness and guilt, reduced mental activity, sleep disturbance, day to day variatiin in mood, and what is known as somatic symptomatology. Somatic symptomatology is involved with symptoms such as loss of appetite and weight and constant fatigue.

There are also a dejected countenance, lack of interest in dress and appearance, sustained anxiety, and accident proneness. The underlyin factors of a major depression are commonly the loss, real or fancied, of a loved person or idea, with resultant disappointment, frustration and a feeling of hostility. Physicians are aware that suicide is a possibility in a severely depressive reaction and a more probable risk where there have been suicidal threats or attempts or a past history of suicide in the family. Used psychiatrically the term depression differs in meaning from that generally given it in common usage. When the layman speaks of depression, he tends to think inly of the mood element which in psychiatry would more properly be labeled dejection, sadness, or gloominess.

A mild and passing attack of the blues cannot be considered a psychiatric problem. When sadness ir grief is unusually intense or prolonged or out of proportion to circumstances, then it becimes important from a diagnostic view.

Depressive illness should be detected and treated early to help the patient regain a healthy and productive interest in living.

Assemblies of God Adopt Resolution on Roman Catholi

The General Presbytery, largest and most representative policy board of the Asemblies of God, last week unanimously adopted a resolution opposing the election of a Roman Cathilic as President of the U. S.

Speaking for the denomination, a conservative ,evangelical church with approximately one million constituents in the U. S., the board disclaimed "religious bias", but charged the Roman Catholic church with bigotry as "reflected in its position of infallibility of its leadership."

Members of the 150-membership board, representing every state, took note of an article by its General Superintendent, Thomas F. Zimmerman, that was released September 18 in the Pentecostal Evangel (168,000 paid weekly circulation) official voice of the denomination.

"We endorse the prepared statement by General Superintendent Thomas F. Zimmerman and recommend its publication and circulation among our constituency and beyond," the General Presbyter's resolution stated.

In the article, entitled, "A Protest Against Electing a Roman Catholic President," the Rev. Pimmerman traces the historic conflict between Roman Catholics and Protestants. He indicates the Roman Catholic "Church-State has spoken out over a period of hundreds of years (on Protestantism) and its position has not changed."

We are not religious bigots but we must stand and be counted against any ideology which would undermine our God-given program at home or abroad," the Rev. Zimmerman states in the article.

Calling attendtion to the denominations 14-year legal battle for religious freedom in Italy, the Rev. Zimmerman states the fight was made extremely difficult in view of the Roman Catholic inflhence over the government." He also mentions Protestant difficulties in Spain and Columbia where "there have been many cases of arrests church closings, etc., among evangelicals."

The church official lists powers of the President of the United States and states he is "the most powerful individual in the world."

"So strong is the influence of the President of the United States that he could begin a major tide in the direction of a Roman Catholic controlled and directed America through his appointments desired," the Rev. Zimmer ges.

The church leader, wh president of the National tion of Evangelicals mit mated 10 million associat bers, charges a "good" would be "under the contr church—mind, soul and bo

Comparing the fight for dence and religious liberti present cold-war struggle, Zimmerman tells the Asse God the U. S. cannot have spent "these energies lions for this precious fre for separation of church and then let the subtle the Roman Catholic Chur into the White House with test."

"Not A Question Of Religio

September 18. 1960

Dear Editor:

If you will allow me a little space I would like to express my opinion on what seems currenty, to be a very popular subject; Kennedy's religious qualifications for the presidency.

There is nothing in the Constitution of the United States, that would bar any qualified citizen of any religious faith, or of no religious faith whatever, from being president.

It seems to me that the issue should not be a question of religion, but of something entirely different. As far as religion is concerned ,there is very little difference between the Catholic religion and that of the Protestants.

The fact that is overlooked, or at least not mentioned, is the fact that the Catholic Church is the strongest political power in the world today. The Roman Catholic church throughout the world is owned and governed by a foreign and independent power or State—the Vatican: with the Pope as a supreme dictator.

The church and the Vatican, are one and the same.

Every Catholic must swear allegiance to the church, which is the Vatican, a foreign independent power. This oath of allegiance means that a Catholic must support the Pope in any controversy, where there is a difference of opinion between the Patican and any other government.

The Popes have repeatedly had different opinions from our Constitution ,regarding freedom of the press, freedom of speech and freedom of religion.

We only have to study the plight of the many Catholic controlled countries throughout the world today, to understand what happens where the Catholics have supreme power. We do not have to go back to the dark ages when th burned heretics at the sta them in oil, or poured m in their ears. Remem happened to the first ma tured the idea that the a sphere? ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBER

GOD WANTS EVERYBODY TO BE HEAL

Sickness is a terrible thing. Disease has brought more suffering, pain and heartache than almost anything else. A person will do almost anything to rid himself of sickness.

The Bible teaches that God wants everyone to be healthy. One of my favorite Scriptures says, "Beloved, I wish above all things that thou mayest prosper and be in health, even as thy soul prospereth" (3 John 2).

A person need never feel too ill or too far from God for Him to help them. He is no respecter of persons. He healed the servant of the Roman centurion. He healed the daughter of the Syrophenician woman and she was not one of His followers. He wanted them to be healthy. However, through these contacts the people became followers of God.

Sickness is not placed on anyone by a loving and good God. Sickness does not come from God—He does not want anybody to be sick. He does not place disease on anyone's body for any reason. The Book of Job says that the devil afflicted Job—that all his ill health came from Satan. Later that same book says God changed things, that Job came out on top. We can't blame God by insinuating that He hates us and makes us ill and weak.

We are told that the h body completely changes seven years, which means there is constant healing a newing taking place in bodies day and night. Jemison Breaks Losing Streak - Says Isabella

by Hubert V. Ray

Big Charlie Price kicked off to Isabella for Jemison Monday night to get a great ball game underway.

The Panthers picked up five first downs in the first quarter, but failed to score until the second quarter. Jemison's first TD of the season was made by Marshal Bolton who went straight across the midde and Big Marvin Robinson went powing in for the extra point.

Jemison picked up three more first downs in the 2nd quarter, and Isabea ended the first half trailing seven points with no first downs to their credit.

At the beginning of the second half, Isabella kicked to Jemison The Panthers lost no time in scoring their second TD with quarterback, Jerry Avery, cutting loose with a mean pass to Gene Sorrell. This was a TD pass which was good for 70 yards. Isabella, however would nt give up the extra point.

Isabella started moving the bell in the 3rd quarter, picking up 2 first downs and adding 2 more in the 4th.

The Panthers, like in the Verbena game, slacked up in the last four minutes of the game and Isabella, taking every advantage, took their turn to score on a pass play. Wayne Mims passed to Herbert Foshee, good for 20 yards and a TD. Bill Atkinson went in and made the extra point.

The Panthers, after receiving the kickoff, decided to play out the clock and not risk losing the ball.

Isabella's top yardage man was Wayne Mims with 42 yards.

Jemison's top yardage men were Ronnie Emfinger with 50 yards and Marvin Robinson with 45 yds.

Choose Washington State Russets For Baking

Washington grown Russets, available in markets now, are the best variety to choose for ever-popular baked potatoes. They have that real old-fashioned potato flavor which Washington State potato growers tell us comes from the rich, mineral soil in the green valleys where Washington potatoes are grown. Mealy fluffiness and even texture are other important qualities of Washington State Russets that make them preferred and perfect as bakers all over the country.

Select potatoes the same size for even baking. Scrub clean, rub with bacon drippings or other fat if a soft skin is desired. Bake at 450°F. 40-50 minutes, depending on size, but allow 10-20 minutes longer if potatoes are baked in a moderate oven with other foods. When baking period is half over pierce skin of potatoes with a sharp fork to allow steam to escape. When ready to serve, cut an "X" in the top and press the potato on the sides to force it to the top. Add a slice of butter or use other foods to enhance the flavor of the potato. Shown in the picture are sour cream, bacon bits, green onion slices and grated Parmesan cheese.

Varden-Thrash Wedding Vows Said By Candlelight

In a candlelight setting of beauty and charm, Miss Wanda Carole Thrash became the bride of William Frank Varden September the ninth at eight o'clock in the Rocky Mount Methodist Church with Rev. David Sayers officiating at the double ring ceremony.

The couple spoke their vows before a background of wedding greenery, flowers and candlelight. The chancel rail was banked with English ivy and the altar arch was also entwined with ivy. Floor standards of white gladioli, wrought iron candleabra holding burning tapers and an illuminated cross compelted the altar decorations. The piano and window recesses held lighted candles and greenery. Bows of white satin ribbon marked the family pews.

Mr. Troy Benson, pianist, presented a program of nuptial music, played the wedding march and accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Kendall Martin as they sang "Because" and as the aisle cloth was rolled, they sang "Ill Walk Beside You."

Candles were lighted and the aisle cloth rolled by Harold Williams and Jock Wililams, cousins of the bride.

Mrs. Edgar Coes was her sisters matron of honor. She was wearing a street length gold taffeta frock fashioned with a square neckline, minute sleeves, cumberbund, and a full, gathered skirt. The bridesmaids, Miss Patricia Champion and Miss Jean Varden wore emerald green frocks and Miss Patsy Varden and Miss Melba Williams wore gold taffeta.

Miss Doreen Cofer was the flower girl in a dress of gold taffeta to match that of the other attendants. She carried rose petals.

Mr. Thrash gave his daughter in marriage. Her brunette beauty was enhanced by her wedding gown of white chantilly lace and silk organza over taffeta. The bodice came to a point in the back and was styled with a rounded neckline embroidered with pearls and sequins. The long sleeves came to a point over the wrist. Lace appliques dotted with pearls marked the front panel of the skirt.

Fullness was added to the circular skirt by panniers on each side. Large folds formed a bustle effect extending to a cotillion train. Her elbow length veil of illusion was attached to a pear and sequin tiara. The bride carried a satin covered Bible topped with a purple throated orchid. A cascade was formed of lillies of the valley and satin ribbon bow knots.

In the quietness of the hour, Mr. and Mrs. Martin sang "Prayer Perfect" as a benediction.

Mr. Edgar Coles served as best man, Ricky Coles, ringbearer. Ushers were Jerry Benson, Richard Mims, Billy Joe Hurt and Roger Williams, cousin of the bride.

Mrs. Thrash chose for her daughters wedding a rose lace dress; Mrs. Varden was wearing brown dacron. Both wore white carnation corsages.

In the receiving line were the parents of the couple, the bride and groom and the bridal attendants. The guests were registered by Mrs. Ann O'Connor, sister of the groom. The table held a three-pronged candleholder with gold, green and yellow candles. The white cloth was caught up at the corners with a white satin bow and silver bell.

The bride's table, in white, was overlaid with green net, caught up at the corners with satin bows and wedding bells. The four-tiered wedding cake was beautifully embossed in yellow roses, lillies of the valley and wedding bells with touches of green with a miniature bride and groom topping the cake. A candeholder with yellow, green and gold candles, an arrangement of white and yellow gladioli and the brides bouquet competed the table decorations.

After the traditional cutting of the cake by the bride and groom it was served by Mrs. Troy Benson and Mrs. Lynn McDougal. The punch table was ornamented with a bridesmaids bouquet of gold and circed with ivy. Punch was served by Mrs. Richard Mims, assisted by Miss Glenda Williams, cousin of the bride.

Later in the evening the couple left for a wedding trip to the Smokies. The bride was attired in a brown figured dress in gold and blue and a gold jacket, with brown accessories. She wore the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

Upon there return they are at home at Union Grove.

FALL SOUNDS at your house? More footsteps, more chatter, more coming and going? I guess fall brings a new spurt of energy in everybody's family. With all this increased activity at home, plus meetings of all sorts, pity poor Mom! Now wouldn't an extension phone be a whale of a help at this point? One in the kitchen right where Mom works, or one in the bedroom so she can prop her feet up (once in a while) and relax while chatting. Extension phones aren't expensive, and they come in such lovely colors, too. Why not call our business office for more information about extensions in your home.

Have you received our 1960-1961 Catalog of Films and Lecture Demonstrations? Oat pastures return big profits

Southern cattlemen know the tremendous importance of green grazing during the fall and winter months as a source of low-cost feed. Most of these cattlemen rely on oats or other small grains for the green forage they need. Research has shown that green oat forage produces more meat and milk than does good alfalfa hay.

For fast growth and higher nutrient value, oats need nitrogen. Tests show that 50 pounds of nitrogen per acre results in increased forage for grazing and bigger oat yields. Nitrogen also increases the protein content of forage and grain.

Top-dress your oats with nitrogen . . . 250 pounds of granular USS Ammonium Sulfate per acre will supply the recommended nitrogen. Guaranteed 21% nitrogen, USS Ammonium Sulfate flows easily from any spreader. It's ideal for bulk spreading because it's granular. See your dealer now and ask for granular USS Ammonium Sulfate . . . available in bag or bulk.

By BOBBY LITTLE

George Underwood led the Montevallo Bulldogs to a 14-6 victory over Clanton last Friday night.

The visitors took the lead after only two plays and Underwood carried the pigskin 80-yards around right end for the touchdown. Terry Tingle carried for the extra point.

With a 7-0 lead, Montevallo moped the ball to Clanton's nine yard line only to fumbe, Canton recovered.

In the second quarter Clanton moved the ball to Montevallo's 15 yardline, but failed to score due to a fumbe. With neither team moving the ball well, the first half ended with the score Montevallo 7, Clanton 0.

Coming back strong in the third quarter Clanton received and Tommy Shelton moved the ball 50 yards in two plays and scored in the next two.

Calera Downs Jemison 19-0

By Hubert V. Ray

Jemison lost their game to Calera Friday night by quite a margin.

Big Charlie Price kicked off to Calera to get the game underway. Calera lost no time moving the ball down to the three yardline, but the big Panther line refused to give.

Jemison tok possession of the ball on the three and Price quick-kicked it out. Calera tok possession again on Jemison's 35 yardline and moved it back down the field again. This time the Panthers did not stop the drive; Larrp Gay went in for the T.D.

Jemison picked up seven first downs in the first half, but failed to score. Barrett ran 35 yards for Calera's second T.D. in the 3rd quarter. James Barrett went in for the point making the score 13-0 at the end of the third quarter.

Calera seemed to be very lucky Friday. Jemison took possession of the ball way down close to their own goal. A 15 yard penalty put them even closer and an attempt to punt out if the jam proved to be bad when Calera blocked the punt and being only about three steps from paydirt, thep took the opportunity for the third T.D.

Mrs. America Partial To Pastry

MRS AMERICA

"We like to do everything together."

Those words sum up the spirit that prevails in the household of Mrs. George (Rosemary) Murphy, the Kentland, Indiana mother of five children whose homemaking skills catapulted her to national fame last June as the nation's number one homemaker, Mrs. America of 1961.

Mrs. Murphy, 32, won the coveted crown in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, competing as Mrs. Indiana with finalists from every state and the District of Columbia.

"With five children," says the tall, dark-haired queen of homemaking, "we have had to learn to 'do it ourselves' in work, play and family living."

Husband George is manager of a freight terminal in Kentland, a small community of 2,000 population located some 80 miles south of Chicago. The Murphy's live conservatively in a rambling home and make every dollar count.

During a recent visit to Whirlpool Corp. in St. Joseph, Mich., Mrs. Murphy had occasion to spend considerable time in the firm's home service kitchen. Here, under the direction of home service manager Virginia Van Nostrand, new RCA Whirlpool appliances are put through an array of performance tests designed to supply useful suggestions for eventual owners.

It was in this setting that Rosemary revealed her favorite pastry recipe—grapefruit cake—the same recipe she used, incidentally, in her successful quest of the Mrs. America crown in Ft. Lauderdale. Total preparation time in the baking, Mrs. America said, is about 25 minutes, with the baking itself consuming approximately the same amount of time.

Mrs. America Grapefruit Cake Recipe

1½ cups sifted cake flour; ¾ cup sugar; 1½ tspn. baking powder; ½ tspn. salt; ¼ cup water; ½ cup vegetable oil; 3 eggs separated; 3 tblspn. grapefruit juice; ½ tspn. grated lemon rind; ¼ tspn. cream of tartar.

Sift together flour, sugar, baking powder and salt in large bowl. Make a well in center of dry ingredients. Add water, oil, egg yolks, grapefruit juice and lemon rind. Beat until very smooth.

Beat egg whites and cream of tartar in medium-sized bowl until stiff but not dry. Pour egg yolk mixtures over whites, folding gently with rubber spatula just until blended (do not stir mixture). Pour into ungreased 9-inch layer cake pan. Bake in moderate oven 350 degrees fahrenheit 25 to 30 minutes or until cake springs back when lightly touched with finger.

Invert pan on cake rack until cool. Run spatula around edge of cake; carefully remove from pan. Gently cut through cake horizontally with serrated knife to make two layers. Fill and frost with grapefruit, cream cheese frosting.

The average husband is concerned about what the government spends and what his wife spends, but the big difference is he's not afraid to criticize the government.

ANOTHER thing for the American system—our youngsters look forward to running the world AFTER they graduate with an education—that's more than you can say for some other countries today!

YOU cannot afford to be neutral when it comes to deciding your vote! Neutral means nothing! Nobody wants to be a nobody!

Chilton Voters Like Their Officials--

THE citizens of the four municipalities of Chilton County have held elections and a new term of office for Councilmen and Mayors is getting underway.

The people have chosen to make few changes in their local government, which would indicate that the job was and now is in capable hands.

We know for a fact that the various towns in Chilton County have been making great strides toward the betterment of our communities and their facilities. The men on the town and city councils are directly responsible for much of this progress at home .

Since these men hold responsible positions in our comunity life, it follows that if the citizenry, through bias or indifference, does not support these public servants, our progress, which is growing with daily increase, will lag back into its once dormant state of 'do nothing'.

If you are a Chiltonian in favor of progress, you are also in favor of unity — one requires the other!

We have chosen our local government for the coming term of office. Do all in your power to lend them aid, support and constructive suggestion. We guarantee that their appreciation for this effort will show up in their service to our communities and Chilton County will most assuredly not be the same in years to come. Certainly we do not want to be the same, five or ten years from now. . . we want to be better!

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

THE POINT OF CONTACT

A huge multitude of people thronged about Jesus as He walked along a dusty road. They pressed in on Him, hanging on His every word, watching with amazement as He healed the sick and afflicted among them, as He ministered to the people, meeting their needs.

Far away from the Master, at the very fringe of the crowd, was a little woman, bowed and bent, looking gaunt and old. For 12 years she had suffered from an issue of blood and had become weak and thin. All her money had been spent trying to buy new health. She had tried many physicians, many cures; but instead of getting better, the Bible says she was growing worse.

But she had heard of Jesus and of the wonderful works He was doing. Now, as she followed Him on the outskirts of the crowd, listening to His words, she caught a glimmer of hope. Suddenly, a glorious truth burst upon her like the rays of the sun glistening upon the Sea of Galilee. The Bible tells us that she said to herself, "If I may but touch the hem of His garment, I shall be whole." She established a point of contact for her healing.

She began to press through the crowd. She slowly pushed her way through the jostling throngs until she was very near Christ. And with the last efforts of her ebbing strength, she reached out and touched the hem of Christ's garment. And in that split second, a surge of revitalizing, healing power went through her body and made her completely well . . . after 12 years of agonizing suffering.

How did this happen? Did the garment of Jesus have some mystical healing power? No. Jesus explained it by turning to the woman and saying, "Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole" (Matthew 9:22).

Then why was she healed when she touched the garment? I believe that the touching of Christ's robe became a signal for her to release and use her faith. When the woman decided to touch Christ's garment for her point of contact, she did two things: One, she set the time for her healing; two, she set the place for her healing. Then when she touched Christ's garment, she released her faith and it touched Christ. She received her healing.

In my ministry, I lay hands on the sick as a point of contact, so that my faith and theirs can be released that the sick may receive their deliverance. The laying on of hands sets up a point of contact for healing. It sets a time and a place for deliverance.

Today, if you have a need from God, establish a point of contact. Set a time and a place for it to happen. Perhaps this newspaper column can be the instrument to help you release your faith. Your faith is your channel to God. Believe now, and God will meet your needs.

Stand By Your Convictions And Your Party -- Open-Minded!--

MISLEADING editorials and comments in most every daily newspaper in the State of Alabama are trying to impress on the voting strength of this State the 'fact' that the Republican Party is conservative, capable and unable to make mistakes, due to the fact that they have been in office for eight years now and their platform, when properly interpreted, is the ideal of the American dream.

The Democrats on the other hand, according to these sources, are liberal (they define that as haphazard and willing to take chances with anything). They contend that the Democratic nominees for President and Vice-President of the United States are running on a platform of "give to all" and to none turn away!

They are of course, exaggerating both arguments to suit the needs of the occasion—namely their desire to have you vote Republican.

There are liberal Republicans and their are conservative Democrats; the words are not synonimous and you do not have to be a Republican to be conservative or a Democrat to be liberal.

The words have attained new meanings and are no longer applicable to what they are used to describe. According to Mr. Webster, "Conservative" means 'within safe bounds, moderate. . . opposed to change'. Is this all the Republicans stand for? They apparently thrive on being called Conservatives! "Liberal" means 'bestowing in a large and noble way, generous, bounteous, open-handed. . . not narrow or contracted in mind; broad-minded'. Does that describe Democrats as a whole? If the terms are attached in the true sense of the word, we can certainly see nothing wrong with being liberal! Sounds very virtuous!

The point is, nobody is all Conservative or all Liberal. Each of us has a degree of both and that is why the connection, being used so profusely, is irrelavent as to which Party is the better or which candidate.

The Democrats do propose things which they cannot attain. . .today perhaps. Changes are being made daily however, and goals set today may be met tomorrow. We cannot believe that Conservatism is the answer to anything, within itself. If that were true, and it meant so virtuous much we wouldn't have a lot of the luxuries we enjoy today, nor many of the necessities. Too much Liberalism can also be detrimental to our country, just as too much of any ingredient can spoil the outcome of the desired material. Either needs the seasoning of moderation.

The United States today, does not require fanatical Conservatives, nor does it call for loud-mouthed Liberals. Our nation pleads for and sorely needs men of understanding, strength of character and conviction, and intelligence to put these things to work for the betterment of all the peoples of our Country.

The Democratic Party is the eoples party and will use its experience and its qualified ranks to promote the betterment of the people—all of the people!

The Republicans are not wholly responsible for our system of free enterprise and they are not the sole supporters of it. There are Democrats by the thousands who also believe in this system and in the past many thousands of Democrats have served to better the cause of free enterprise.

If you base your convictions entirely on the so-called "platforms" of the two major parties consider the fact that when all is said and done, and after the nominees have traversed the land to and fro, they will likely have a better picture of local problems and will most assuredly better understand what they are dealing with. Platforms, as such, are tools to apply to a job at hand.

If, it is determined that the tools are unfit for the job then they can be revised or improved upon so that they will do the job better. The platform is a goal! It is not the unchallenged law of the land. If it is unsuitable, then the men with the integrity and willingness to do the best job possible, will change it, to best serve the needs of the people.

Since no one, not even a candidate for the Presidency, is perfect in their decisions, it is obvious that we must learn from doing and acquainting ourselves with the problems of today, in different corners of the nation. You must choose the Party and the men whom you feel can best handle the decisions facing us and who will serve the needs of the majority of the people. Our Democracy depends upon it, our nation's growth will exist or decay due to it and our personal freedoms and liberties will not be safe without your complete devotion to your duty as an American citizen. Vote your honest convictions—barring prejudice, ignorance, intolerance and bigotry—come November!

LABOR leaders, underestimating their forces, may not reach their goals of 'hoggishness' this or any other year. Union members, being Americans and individuals, do not always display the sheeplike qualities demanded by the "bosses". In the privacy of the polling booth a man is a tower of strength and can act on his own judgement and what is good for his freedom and his country rather than what is good for the Union big shots.

THINGS We see and hear

by BOB

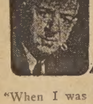
DRS. Bennett and Honan, local Chiropractors attended a one-day Public Relations Workshop for their profession in Birmingham last Sunday. Two fine fellows doing a fine job in our community.

DON'T forget the Co-op meeting at the local Armory on October 8th. Country Boy Eddie and all the gang'll be there. We don't know what that has to do with Electric Coperatives, but one good way to find out is to go see!

CONGRATULATIONS to our friend Ralph Johnston who was the only runner in the race for Councilman who succeeded in unseating his opponent. Ralph had it in mind that we took a crack at him a few weeks ago. We think if he'll read it over now, he will understand better what we were talking about. For the record, Ralph Johnston has been our very good friend for a long time. We hope nothing has changed to altar that fact. Anyway, you won Ralph and congratulations again; and to the rest of our fine councilmen in Clanton, Maplesville, Thorsby and Jemison.

IF you are wondering what the new cars are going to look like, we'll tell you this much, since we have seen most of 'em! They have some mighty exciting changes this year along with new models and new lines of automobiles. They're going all out for you friends. See 'em in this newspaper and on the showroom floors in the next few weeks!

SEE where the dailies think the Debate on Monday night was somewhat of a draw, We don't think it was a draw at all. Sen. John Kennedy was in fine form and not a question stumped him the slightest bit! The Vice-President seemed a bit flustered—that past eight year record must not be such a good crutch after all!



HI VANCE'S USED YARN LOT

50 YEARS OF HUMOR

"When I was a member of the House of Representatives," reminisced Sen. Lister Hill, "It was called to my attention that William Stannard, leader of the U. S. Army Band, was only a Sergeant. This was not the case with the Navy and Marine Bands, so when Sergeant Stannard's band was invited to social functions where commissioned officers were gathered it was a bit embarrassing to him to be wearing the stripes of only a Sergeant.

"Consequently, I introduced a bill raising him to the rank of Captain. When it passed he came to my office and said: 'Mr. Hill, I will ever be indebted to you for this favor, and if and when it takes place, I will have the Army Band play at your wedding'.

"Years later when I renounced bachelorhood, and was to wed Miss Henrietta McCormick of Eufaula she chose the old ancestral home at Columbus, Georgia, as the scene. The day of the nuptials arrived, and trouping into the old mansion came the Army Band with its Conductor, Captain Stannard in charge. His group just happened to be on tour at that time and in Columbus for a concert on the exact date of my marriage. It could easily have been in Washington, or if on tour, playing in Seattle, or Savannah instead of Columbus. And fate had to will that I be wed on that exact date in order for Captain Stannard to be able to fulfil his promise.

"And," concluded the Senator, "In addition to all that, the wedding would have taken place in Eufaula instead of Columbus except for a personal whim of the bride. An entire service band, even in a mansion, makes for a pretty snug fit."

YOUR HEALTH

DRUG ADDICTION

The average age for beginners of drug addiction is 15 years. Drug addiction is becoming increasingly a disease of youth. Marijuana and heroin are two most prominently addicting substances, and the use of barbiturates and the amphetamines is widespread and increasing. Drug addiction, like alcoholism, is a disease acquired usually on a voluntary basis. It affects one in 3,000 persons in this country, representing approximately 60,000 cases.

Treatment of this tragic disease must be based on adequate case finding; and to obtain the best results, addiction should not be

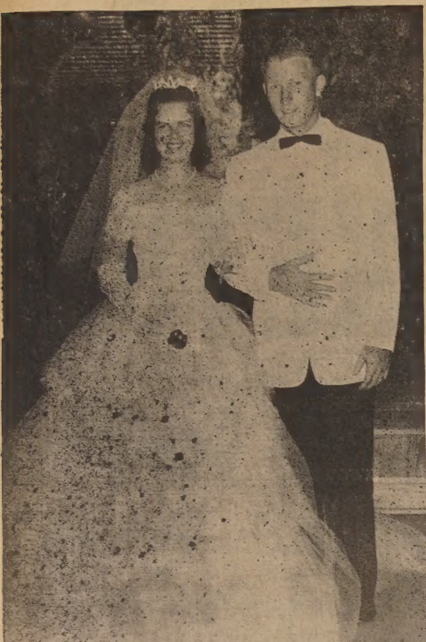
Langston - Reeves Exchange Vows



Gowned in white Chantilly lace and illusion, Miss Judith Lynn Reeves became the bride of Robert Lynn Langston the afternoon of September 11th at the Jemison Baptist Church. Rev. Louis Brasher, pastor of the church officiated at the four o'clock ceremony. Parents of the couple, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Reeves, Mrs. Leo Langston and the late Mr. Langston.

The impressive double ring ceremony was performed before a background of southern smilax, floral arrangements and candlelight. White gladioli spikes and white specimen mums outlined in palm leapes formed the central altar decorations. At either side were white floor standards filled with these lovely wedding flowers. Wrought iron candelabra entwined with ivy held illuminated white tapers that cast a soft glow over the nuptial scene.

Family pews were marked with large bows of white satin ribbon.

Nuptial preludes and the traditional wedding marches were played by Miss Ann Gay, pianist. Miss Linda Borders of Carbon Hill, a cousin of the bride, sang "At Dawning" and "I Love Thee". As the aisle cloth was rolled, Miss Borders sang "Walk Hand In Hand". Candles were lighted by James Davenport and Ellis Burgess of Auburn.

Mis Charlotte Queen of Orlando Fla. was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kay Sanders of Bessemer, Caroln Smith of Birmingham, Katie Jo Crawford of Calera and Carolyn Harrell of Montevallo.

Brenda Simmons was flower girl.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her floor length gown of Chantilly lace and illusion over satin. The fitted elongated bodice was styed with cap sleeves and a scalloped Sabrina neckline edged in seed pearls. The boufant skirt featured a princess panel of lace. Joining the panel on each side were three tiers of illusion forming points in the back and cascading to a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a tiara of pearls. Her long, fitted lace gloves came to a point at her wrists. The bride's bouquet was a small white Bible centered with a white orchid and cascades of tube roses, intermingled with satin bows tied in love knots.

As the couple knelt on the satin prayer bench, Miss Borders sang The Lord's Prayer as a benediction.

Best man was Bob Helms of Grove Hill, a cousin of the groom. Ushers were James Nelson, Ellis Burgess, James Davenport and Sam Norris of Gadsden. Julian Cobb was ringbearer.

A reception in the church parlor followed the ceremony. In the receiving line were, Mrs. Reeves and the bride and groom, Mrs. Langston and the bridal attendants. Guests were registered by Miss Rebecca Collins of Thorsby. The table was ornamented with the honor attendants bouquet.

Mrs. C. L. Walton and Mrs. R.B. Johnson served the cake, after the traditional cutting by the bride and groom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Reeves wore a royal blue pure silk linen sheath with royal and navy accessories. The groom's mother wore an ice blue lace dress with navy accessories. Both mothers wore orchid corsages.

The couple flew to Miami Beach for a wedding trip. Later they will return to Auburn where they are enrolled at Auburn University.

Fo traveling the bride wore a moss green two-piece dress with black accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. The couple will be at home at 105 Locust Circle, Apt. 6, Forest Hills Apartments.

Guard Called Out 20 Years Ago This Month

The largest mass mobilization of manpower in U. S. History began 20 years ago this month when President Franklin D. Roosevelt ordered out the National Guard to prepare the nation for World War II.

On the continent of Europe had fallen. The Battle of Britain was raging. On the other side of the world, Japan was marching into Southeast Asia. Yet, militarily, the U. S. was virtually unprepared to defend itself.

Then on September 16, 1940, the first National Guard units were ordered up. Within eight months the Guard brought 300,000 men to active duty.

Robert Patterson, wartime Under Secretary of War, declared that these men 'doubled the strength of the Army at once, and their presence in the field gave the country a sense that it had passed the lowest ebb.'

The National Guard of 1940 could hardly compare with today's trained, well-equipped units. News articles of the time reported 'in few areas were there enough uniforms, and in no instance was there a sufficiency of arms'.

Guardsmen entered training maneuvers using sticks for machine guns, stovepipes for artillery pieces, trucks for tanks. But when they entered combat little more than a year later, they performed like veterans.

The National Guard took 18 Divisions to the field. Nine went to Europe and to the Pacific. At the War's end 12,000 enlisted Guardsmen had won commissions, and at least 20 were awarded the Medal of Honor.

The lessons learned from those discouraging early days have apparently not been forgotten. Today, the 400,000 man National Guard has 21 Infantry and six armored divisions, plus hundreds of separate combat and support units.

As in 1940, it would again double the combat strength of the active Army, but today its weapons include modern tanks, atomic weapons and missiles.

Today, Guardsmen man Nike defenses in many major cities. From wooden guns to missiles, the National Guard has made tremendous strides in 20 years.—ARMY TIMES

'61 CHEVY TRUCKS
WITH WORK-PROVED INDEPENDENT FRONT SUSPENSION!

Chevy's '61 fleet swings in with a ready-made reputation as the trucks that are worth more because they work more . . . the latest editions of the haulers that scrapped the I-beam axle and proved the important advantages of independent front suspension!

You'll find new models for '61—long-wheelbase 4-wheel drive units—and thoughtful refinements throughout the line. But the big news for '61 is nailed-down proof (based on owner reports) that Chevy's torsion-spring design is the best thing that's happened to trucks in decades!

With Chevy's independent front suspension and Sturdi-Bilt design, you cruise over trails where other trucks creep. You feel the difference in less wheel fight and vibration. You can see why drivers are happier, why loads are better protected and why the truck itself will stand up to thousands of miles of more work. That goes for any size Chevy, too—pickups, tilt cabs, tandems, all of them.

Check the latest specs with your Chevrolet dealer: capacity, power teams, options. Then, by all means, drive a '61. Once around the block and you'll never be satisfied with a front axle truck again!

HOME AGENTS HONORED—Three Alabama home demonstration agents have been named to receive distinguished service awards for outstanding work in their field. They were honored at the recent summer meeting of the Alabama Home Demonstration Agents Association meeting in Auburn. The awards will be made at the annual convention of the national association in Chicago in November. From left to right they are Mrs. Yancey Walters, Anniston, Calhoun County home agent; Madge Pennington, Double Springs, Winston County home agent; and Marie Lambert, Phenix City, Russell County home agent.

Consumers Vote At The Market Place

Dorothy Overbey
Consumer Education Specialist
Auburn University Extension Service

THE buyer casts the final vote for what agricultural products are produced and what food items are sold in today's food market.

Mrs. Homemaker decides whether to buy or not to buy a particular item. And this item gets her yes or no vote. Foods found on tomorrow's grocery shelves will be there partially because of what the consumer chooses today.

Food shoppers have from 6,000 to 8,000 items to choose from today. Predictions are there will be a great many more in the future. (In 1925, the choice was limited to only about 800 items.) Shelf space occupied by these many items is expensive. Unless the items sell—unless consumers vote for them—retailers cannot afford to keep them on the shelves. So the consumers' choices are important.

What kind of votes have been cast recently? Let's take a look. Twenty years ago, only about three percent of the fresh fruits and vegetables were packaged for consumers. In the 1960's, we can expect half or more of our fresh produce to be sold at retail in prepackaged form. This is to speed up self-service in stores, eliminate waste, and cut down on time for preparation at home.

Frozen foods also meet the demand for quicker service and more convenience. Frozen vegetables lead the list, accounting for about one-third of the total sales of frozen foods. Sales of all frozen items are increasing. Frozen seafoods and frozen prepared foods, as precooked pies and cakes and complete dinners, have increased rapidly in sales.

Food shoppers cast their votes for quality, convenience, year-round availability, attractive packages, and modern, well-lighted, well-equipped, clean grocery stores. One would guess this costs more money than was spent years ago. But the guess is wrong. True, price tags are higher. But actual cost is lower—lower because it takes fewer hours to earn our food than it did in the "good old days."

Why is this so? Lower cost, or less work time required to buy food, is the result of improvements and savings made in producing and marketing food. Food is an important part of the family budget. About 21 cents of each dollar the family has to spend, after taxes, is spent on food. This represents a lot of money.

Remember, it's how you and other consumers spend this money—and cast your votes—that determines the kind of food products you will find in the food market tomorrow.

FREEZING YAMS. Frozen sweetpotato puree prepared by the sugar-cook process is excellent for making pies or souffles. This Auburn-developed process includes peeling, cooking in a heavy syrup (60 to 65 percent) at a low boil for one hour, mashing, packaging, and freezing. Frozen strips or slices for candied yams are prepared by peeling, cutting into ⅝-inch strips or slices, blanching in boiling syrup for four minutes, cooling, and packaging.

BALED SEEDLING CARE. Good care of southern pine seedlings in shipping bales protects quality. Good storage is under shelter where air can circulate around each bale. Seedling roots must be kept moist but not saturated. This can be done by placing open end of bale higher than the other end and pouring in water. Excess water drains from the lower end. Seedlings kept well up to three weeks under these conditions in Alabama studies.

LAND USE CHANGES. Alabama now has about 4.5 million acres of farm land from which crops are harvested. This compares with 5.7 million acres in 1950. Each year since 1950, an average of 120,000 acres was taken out of harvested acreage. Woodland and pastured land have increased since 1950, woodland by 13 percent and pasture by 35 percent. Farm woodland presently accounts for an estimated 55 percent of farm land.

FERTILIZING MAGNOLIAS. In Alabama surveys, Southern Magnolia trees were found growing in well-drained, moist, organic soil having pH ranging from 3.7 to 7.6. Best trees observed were growing in an organic soil with pH of 6.4. In fertility studies, increased growth was obtained by adding dolomite at rate of 10 pounds per 100 square feet and 8-8-8 or similar fertilizer every two weeks during the growing season at rate of two pounds per 100 square feet.

SWEETPOTATO STORAGE. Best practices for storage of sweetpotatoes, as learned in Auburn studies, include (1) cleaning and fumigating storage house and containers, (2) harvesting during moderately warm, dry weather, (3) careful handling to prevent bruising, and (4) keeping suitable temperature, humidity, and ventilation during curing and storage. Beginning promptly after harvest, potatoes are cured for seven days at 85° F. and 85 to 90 percent relative humidity. Ideal storage conditions after curing are 55 to 60°F. with about 80 percent humidity.

VETCH UPS VEGETABLE YIELDS. In long-time Auburn tests, yields of summer vegetables were increased by turning winter vetch. Yield increases were as follows: unstaked tomatoes from 246 to 322 bushels per acre, staked tomatoes from 376 to 513 bushels, pole beans from 78 to 200 bushels, sweet corn from 2,032 to 3,053 pounds and pimiento pepper from 6,377 to 7,954 pounds.

WINTER APPLE CARE. Winter management practices for apple orchards include (1) removing and destroying all fruit that dropped during harvest, (2) removing and burning all dead and diseased wood, (3) painting large scars, and (4) pruning to thin and space fruiting wood. Orchard cover crops need fertilizing in early fall, and trees in late winter. Fertilizing trees with one and one-half pounds of 8-8-8 per year of age up to a maximum of 30 pounds gave good results in Auburn studies.

YOUR MEAT DEPARTMENT OF TOMORROW

Ray Cavender
Extension Meats Specialist
Auburn University

WHAT will our retail meat departments of tomorrow be like? What may we expect of the meat and meat products that will be offered to consumers?

These questions are toughies. And maybe we don't have pat answers, but judging by meat research and merchandising studies now going on, we can count on higher quality meat products with more built-in services, along with added shopping conveniences at the meat department of tomorrow.

CAVENDER

Tenderness, flavor, and ease of preparation are three desirable characteristics in any meat or meat product. And all three can be found in retail meat displays at the present time. However, the livestock and meat industry realizes that consumers continue to become more demanding. A popular product today may be rejected tomorrow. Therefore, scientists, retailers, processors, and producers are working feverishly to fashion meat products that will offer still more of those desirable factors—tenderness, flavor and ease of preparation.

Let's take a quick tour through our meat department of tomorrow.

New meat tenderizing methods have completely changed the beef display case. For example, there is a whole new group of steaks for broiling—chuck, round, and rump. Of course, the old stand-bys, T-bone, sirloin, and rib are still present, but they aren't in as much demand as they were in 1960.

Mass tenderization whereby live animals, carcasses, and individual cuts are injected with natural food enzymes has made it possible to produce steaks, roasts, and other cuts of beef with increased tenderness for all grades. This injection of natural food enzyme adds to those already in the meat and actually breaks down tough connective tissues, producing the desired tenderness when the meat is cooked. That's why you now see steaks made from cheaper cuts which a few years back would have been too tough for anything except roasting. Notice also that the prices of the new lines of steaks are very reasonable. In fact, there is now a beef steak for most budgets.

It's obvious that all the cuts displayed have a large percent of lean meat. As for fat, there's just enough to give the cooked cut that desirable flavor and to make it juicy. These benefits have resulted from animal scientists' and livestock producers' efforts to breed and produce the "meat-type animal."

If you happen to be one of those who can't take the least amount of fat, there are defatted boneless beef and pork cuts for your table. But what about the delicious flavor that fat imparts to the meat when cooked? Attached to each defatted meat cut is a one-ounce package of beef or pork flavor that can be sprinkled on the steak, chop, or roast while cooking. This imparts the flavor that would ordinarily result from cooking beef or pork with the fat on.

Scientists developed this flavor additive by extracting and identifying aroma-bearing materials from beef and pork. They are now produced synthetically. These meat flavors are used widely to impart flavor to food concentrates for space travel. A one-ounce package of beef flavor, plus a one-ounce package of food nutrients—vitamins and minerals—added to one cup of hot water, immediately makes a delicious serving of beef broth soup.

Shopping Made Easy

You will recall the old 1960 meat department setup whereby meat and meat products were displayed in long cases with little uniformity as to type and kind of product. This made shopping for meat somewhat rambling. In the meat department of tomorrow, meat items are displayed according to use. For example, one case offers nothing but breakfast food meats—sausage, bacon, and a wide

Livestock-Feed Price Ratios

PRICES paid for feed and prices received for livestock and poultry products are now generally more favorable to farmers than a year ago. In June 1960, 100 pounds of live weight hogs were equal in dollar value to 14.8 bushels of corn—a year ago, 12.8 bushels—but the ratio still was not up to the 18.2 bushel ratio of two years ago.

The beef steer-corn price ratio is down a little—to 21.3 bushels for 100 pounds live weight compared to 21.8 a year earlier.

A dozen eggs are now equal in value to 9.3 pounds of poultry feed—a year ago, 7.4 pounds. For commercial broilers, the ratio is 3.8 pounds of feed per pound of meat, compared to 3.2 a year earlier.

Bees

Colonies of bees in Alabama numbered 191,000 on July 1—an increase of 2,000 colonies from the same day last year, as shown by the Alabama Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. Colonies of bees on hand in the U. S. on July 1 totaled 5,403,000—one percent below a year earlier.

Colony losses during the winter and spring in Alabama totaled six percent of the number on hand at the start of the winter months. In the U. S. there was a 16 percent loss during the same time. Causes of losses were 28 percent from starvation, 21 percent from winter killing, 19 percent queenless, four percent each from foul brood and insects, three percent from spray poison, two percent from rodents, and 19 percent from other causes.

1960 Lamb Crop

The Alabama crop, as reported by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, totaled 43,000 head, the same as last year, but much higher than the 1949-58 average of 28,000 head. The number of breeding ewes at 50,000 head on January 1, 1960 was the same as last year, but 56 percent larger than the 1949-58 average. The U. S. 1960 lamb crop totaled 21,584,000 head, two percent above last year and 11 percent above the 1949-58 average.

Ice Milk and Ice Cream Gains

Americans are eating more ice milk. Consumption of this relatively new lower fat dairy product, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, has increased from less than a half pound per person in 1945 to nearly four pounds in 1959. Ice milk production in 1959 was up to 123,970,000 gallons, seven percent above 1958 output and 38 percent above the five-year average from 1954 to 1958. During the first five months of this year, production totaled 43,175,000 gallons, compared to 42,705,000 gallons in the same period last year.

Ice cream consumption rose from 17 pounds per person in 1950 to 18 and three-fourth pounds in 1959.

Farm Credit Use Sets New Record

New records in use of the cooperative farm credit system were set by farmers, ranchers, and their marketing and purchasing cooperatives in 1959 for the sixth consecutive year, according to R. B. Tootell, governor, Farm Credit Administration.

A total of four billion dollars was borrowed from the system during 1959—an increase of almost $600 million over a year earlier. A record total in loans outstanding also was reported—$4.4 billion.

A 14 percent increase in borrowings from production credit associations accounted for more than half of the increased borrowings. Land bank borrowing also was up. Loans to farmer cooperatives from the banks for cooperatives increased 25 percent over 1958.

To My Way of Thinking

(from Murray D. Lincoln, president, Nationwide Insurance Company)

"I don't think the world is ever going to give much to the young man who doesn't surprise it now and then.

"Our respectable young people these days try so hard to fit themselves into precut patterns that they become about as interesting and interchangeable as gingerbread men cut by the same mold. Even our juvenile delinquents run to the same pattern. They dress alike, they talk alike, they travel in gangs. They're terribly afraid of standing out alone, desperately worried that if they do something on their own they will appear foolish.

"My own feeling is that the fear of appearing foolish has created more nonentities in American life than I'd care to count. I suppose it is nicer, safer, more secure to be just like the man who lives next door. But if you want to live and die like the man next door, why go through all the pain and upset and trouble that life from birth to death entails?"

Farm Production

Farm production will have to double over the next 50 years, according to government economists. U. S. population is expected to hit 370 million, and cities and roads will take over 25 million acres of the 478 million now devoted to cropland.

Concentration in Food Business Goes On Long-noted trends in concentration and bigness in the retail food industry are shown in a recent report by the Federal Trade Commission.

Small independent grocery stores are disappearing and even small chains are being absorbed or losing their identities. Some 90,000 single unit retail stores dropped out between 1948 and 1958. However, voluntarily affiliated retailers are holding their own and generally showing sales gains. Medium-sized food chains showed the most growth.

Number of food chains also is declining. More than 50 firms with 11 or more stores disappeared through merger or acquisition from 1948 to 1958, and an estimated 48 chains dropped below 11 stores or lost their identity during the same period.

With such a trend toward huge retail operations, buyers will tend to be more specific in their buying requirements. Arrangements for delivery of big volume over extended periods will become more common. Some small producers may find themselves without any good markets available to them.

Pattern Check

WITH the hunting season at hand, you'll be taking your gun down from its resting place.

If you've never done so, I advise you to pattern your shotgun. By checking the pattern, you'll better understand what your gun will do; and if you don't know whether the choke is cylinder, modified, or full, the pattern will help you determine how much the barrel muzzle "squeezes" the shot.

Tack a four foot square piece of cardboard on a fence post (in a safe place) and tape off a distance of 40 yards. Fire at the center with say, No. 8 shot. Then make a 30-inch circle on the cardboard with the center of of the circle in the densest part of the shot marks. Count the number of pellet marks in the circle. Divide this number by the number of pellets in the shotshell you fired. (There are 409 No. 8 shot per ounce.) The figure you get, expressed as a percentage, is the key to the choke. If you get 65 to 75 percent of the shot pellets in the circle, you have a full choked barrel; 55 to 65 percent, improved modified; 45 to 55 percent, modified barrel; 35 to 45 percent, improved cylinder; and 25 to 35 percent, cylinder.

Don't try one shot for a pattern test. Shoot at 10 or more cardboard squares and get an average.

Pattern Determines Kill

Incidentally, you bag your game with a pattern. Oh, you may bring down a dove with a single pellet in the head, but this may happen once in a hundred downed birds. The number of shot with which you hit the target is the key to clean kills.

The double-barreled gun, for example, usually has one barrel with a modified choke and one with a full choke. There's no secret—the full choke simply "bunches" the shot closer together when they leave the muzzle and will kill at a greater distance.

Choke Barrel To Use

Many times I've been asked what choke barrel to buy. If you can afford but one gun and you shoot at a variety of game, get a repeater and have a good gunsmith install a flexible choke attachment to the barrel. But if you shoot at bob-whites only, get an improved cylinder bore. For doves, I prefer modified. For waterfowl, squirrels, turkeys and deer, I want a full choked gun. Personally, I use the double barrel more than the repeater, because I have a choice of two chokes instantly.

Care of Gun

Good care of your gun is a must for its long life, accuracy, and smooth operation. Use nothing but brass or copper bristle brushes to clean lead fouling from the bore. Coat the bore with a light film of good gun oil after a day's hunt. If you store your gun for a long period—a couple of weeks—use a good gun grease. And another tip—zero your rifle for game shooting with a cold barrel, because you won't be banging away at a squirrel's head as you would at a target on the rifle range. And a bullet from a "cold" gun won't shoot as high as one from a hot barrel. Therefore, let the gun cool as you shoot at a bull's eye before the season.

Just Cool Place To Study Records

By Bob Chesnutt
Extension Editor
Auburn University

BEN ADAMS fingered a long ash off his cigarette, leaned back in a shaky chair set squarely under a chinaberry tree, and looked quizzically at his visitor.

"I suppose you might call this shade-tree farming since you say you want to," agreed Adams. "Sounds sort of lazy like, though. And actually the time I spend here studying my dairy business is hard, important work for me.

"This is where I check my cows—what they've done, and what I need to do for them and for my entire farming operation.

"I guess farming has become the toughest business of all," added Adams, as he closed the dairy herd record book lying across his legs. "It never was easy, but now that management and decision-making have become so important, it's getting harder all the time."

What got Adams started was a question about his sitting under a tree reading the records of his cows. And what started out as a bit of jesting ended up in some sharp observations on the business side of farming by a fellow who's doing right well.

Adams is an interesting fellow. Tall and possessing a rugged handsomeness, he looks like a young executive you'd find in any business. And he's sharp. He has to be with the sizeable investment he has in a 450-acre dairy operation consisting of 40 fine cows, mostly registered Holsteins.

Adams began dairying in 1947, shortly after returning from service in the army. For two years he sold milk to a condensery; then he switched to grade-A milk because he could get better prices for it.

Things rocked along for 10 years without Adams making much progress in milk production. His cows each averaged about 6500 pounds of milk annually—not far above the state average.

"I was just drifting in the dairy business, I decided in 1957," said Adams. "My production hadn't gone up much since I'd begun. But costs sure had.

"I knew it was time to either get in right or get out. I decided on the former. And I'm glad I did."

Adams, in 1957, began production testing his cows individually by weighing one day a month the milk given by each cow. Known as WADAM—Weigh-A-Day-A-Month—the program helped him adjust each cow's feed to her production ability and cull those that don't show a profit. Seven months later he joined the DHIA—Dairy Herd Improvement Association—and tested more carefully than was possible heretofore.

Figures tell the story. Today this herd is producing an average of 9200 pounds of milk a year—almost a third more than three years earlier. Further, cows that give less than 7,000 pounds of milk a year are culled from the herd. Next year the culling figure will go up to 8,000 pounds.

DHIA records, the machine tabulated ones that Adams gets for a nominal charge, pinpoint every month what every cow in his herd is doing, how much of various kinds of feed she should be getting, and how much profit or loss she's showing.

These records are a yard long and look foreboding. But they're exactly what Adams spends hours studying—and acting on.

He says these records have made him conscious of three things he must do to succeed with dairying.

"I must first build a feed program to take care of cows I have on hand. For example, I have changed from sericea hay to alfalfa hay. Some folks won't agree, but I say it's cheaper to buy alfalfa hay than to feed home-grown sericea. Alfalfa gets the milk; sericea doesn't.

"Second, I must constantly build up the herd's quality through better breeding. I use artificial insemination altogether. In that way I get the service of proved bulls that would cost me $10,000 or more to own—which, of course, I could not afford.

"Then when you get better offspring, you've got to do a careful job of raising them.

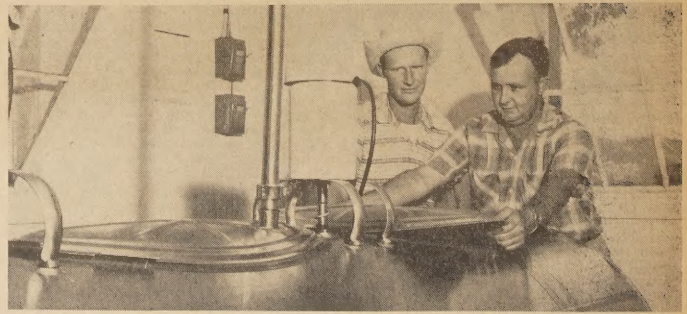
FARMING, SHADE-TREE STYLE—Ben Adams, left, dairyman of Roanoke Rt. 2, and County Agent Claude Moore study Adams' dairy herd records in the shade of a chinaberry tree.

"Third, I must continually study how to improve management to the end that production will rise without a corresponding rise in costs. Management, of course, includes everything done on the farm from planting pastures through regulating bulk milk coolers.

"Feeding isn't the single most important management job, but it is one that many dairymen make mistakes on. I did. Machine records on my herd have pretty well straightened me out on this point. They showed me I was feeding some cows twice as much as I should and others half as much as they could profitably turn into milk."

Adams made his point: There's no job more important on a dairy farm—or any other farm—than studying what you're doing.

"If that's shade-tree farming," added Adams, "I'm glad I'm doing some of it."



BULK TANK—A bulk tank has become a part of almost every dairyman's operation these days. Ben Adams (left) tells County Agent Claude Moore that all the records in the world are no good if the end product is not clean, wholesome milk. Using the bulk tank with pipeline milkers prevents the milk being exposed to outside elements. Therefore, the bacterial count is kept at a minimum.

CONSIDER FUTURE WHEN PLANNING CHILD'S ROOM

A room can be designed to grow up with a child.

And the wise homemaker looks to the future when she plans her child's room, according to Alice Peavy, Extension specialist in home furnishings. A crib with sides that lock in place and later can be removed, a chest of drawers, a screen, a chair, and a large table make a good beginning. Small units which can be stacked as time passes are pieces that literally grow with the child.

Furniture must be durable and easy to clean, says Miss Peavy. And the child's own artwork can be used for pictures. As he grows up, a bulletin board to show artwork is a favorite with most boys and girls.

Then if basic furniture has been chosen wisely in the beginning, a change to more subtle colors and accessories will fit a room to teen-age tastes. Frilly curtains, a dressing table, and soft pastels add to a young lady's room. And simple, rough textured fabrics and deep tones bring change to a young man's room.

WE talk a lot these days about the need for making the most effective use of our resources—our land, water, minerals, etc. Yet we know, without question, that Alabama's most valuable resource is its young people—tomorrow's future citizens and leaders.

How well are we developing these all-important resources? Are we providing our young people adequate opportunity for leadership development, character building, and citizenship training, along with the opportunity to more fully develop knowledge and skills in some particular field of interest?

These are some of the objectives of Extension's 4-H Club programs.

In last month's column, we indicated that we were setting as a goal that of making Alabama's 4-H Club program the best in the nation within the next five years. Our state and its young people merit nothing less!

How can we accomplish this goal?

As a part of our over-all self-study effort in Extension during this past year, we have analyzed very carefully our total 4-H Club program. Committees made up of personnel from both county and state staffs have looked at every phase of our 4-H effort. They have considered the need for changes in present activities; they have proposed the initiation of numerous new programs.

These proposals call for the development of new 4-H projects to meet changing needs—projects in such areas as science, economics, and marketing. They call for activities broader in scope to serve the needs of all interested youth, including rural farm and non-farm, suburban, and urban. They call for more adequate camping facilities to provide opportunities for training in more purposeful recreation and intelligent use of leisure time. They call for more emphasis upon citizenship and leadership training. They call for a broader program of scholarships and other awards.

Our job now is to implement these proposals aimed at making Alabama's 4-H Club work the most effective in the nation.

We should explain first of all that 4-H Club work is made possible largely through contributions and efforts of people interested in this program. Appropriated funds are not available to support most 4-H Club activities. Except for the efforts of Extension Service employees who work on 4-H in addition to their other responsibilities, we must rely upon local leaders to help organize and supervise club work and upon the friends of 4-H sufficiently interested to make financial contributions.

It is obvious, therefore, that an expansion in 4-H Club work such as proposed will require greater financial assistance. We hope to secure this assistance largely from individuals, organizations, businesses, and industries interested in making an "investment in the future"—an investment in the development of our state's greatest resource, its young people.

The Alabama 4-H Club Foundation has been organized to coordinate this fund-raising effort. The Foundation's Board of Directors, under the chairmanship of A. L. Johnson, Decatur, is made up of some 15 distinguished citizens of Alabama.

During the past few months, the Foundation's Board of Directors has been developing plans for a comprehensive fund-raising program aimed at providing the support needed to implement Alabama's expanded 4-H Club effort.

Next month we shall consider some of these specific plans.

HOW can we understand modern marketing without knowing the conditions under which it has grown? Likewise, how can we study marketing without realizing what marketing is?

No Exchange

Marketing history may be divided into three periods. The first of these was the period of self-sufficient economic units. Each family did its own hunting, fishing, and crude manufacturing. Under these conditions there was nothing to trade—no exchange of goods.

Direct Exchange

Later, man recognized the value of specialization and trade. History gives evidence of tribe or village life where each village became a self-sufficient unit. Exchange was carried on by barter—one family exchanged their surplus goods to another family for their surplus.

Indirect Exchange

With the development of modes of travel, mediums of exchange and communication systems, the advantages of specialization were recognized as a means of giving more to society with the same effort.

SMITH

Today, modern marketing has developed into a network of highly specialized firms. We find goods and services produced in Alabama being sold in all parts of the world.

Thus, marketing developed to fill a need in man's search for a better society in which to live. Case after case can be cited to show man's developments to get a product from producer to consumer in a more desirable form. We see broilers in supermarkets throughout the nation that were produced in Alabama. How is this possible? Cooperative effort by thousands of people over several years developed a system of mass production and distribution on an economical basis so that broiler meat would be competitive with other meats throughout the nation.

Marketing is the moving of products from producer to consumer. It involves all the activities in the creation of place, time, and possession utilities and part of the activities in the creation of form utility.

What is place utility? Place utility is added when a good or service is made available at a place where it is needed. Likewise, time utility is created when goods and services are made available at the time they are needed. Possession utility is added when goods are transferred to those who want them. And, form utility is created by changing a raw material into the form that is needed. Thus, marketing is simply making goods and services more valuable by getting them where they are wanted, when they are wanted, in the form they are wanted and transferred to the people who want them.

Tom Jones in Cullman County produces sweet potatoes. He has a choice of several channels in which to market. He may decide to sell to a housewife in Cullman or to a produce dealer. In the first case, Jones completes the marketing process by carrying the product to the ultimate consumer. In the latter case, he completes little of the marketing process. The dealer may ship the potatoes to Detroit (time and place utility) and let another firm sell to the housewife (possession).

Marketing and You

Let's look at what marketing means to us—First, it offers us a challenge. It asks us how we can improve our marketing system to more nearly satisfy human wants. Since human wants know no limits, we have the reponsibility for developing our marketing system so that the potatoes that the housewife purchases in the future will please her more than the last potatoes she purchased.

Future Marketing

Will the world see a fourth period in marketing development? It may not necessarily be a new marketing period, but tomorrow's market will certainly change. Our expanding population, shifts in urban living conditions, and constantly changing consumer desires will force changes in markets. Marketing will not, however, cure all the surplus problems. Our marketing system can provide for a more orderly distribution of foods and services. It can and will see that these products will satisfy consumer desires.

MAJOR CHANGES MADE IN 1960-61 HUNTING SEASON

SEASONS for hunting, trapping, fishing, and bag and creel limits in Alabama have already been set for the 1960-61 season.

According to Fish and Wildlife Specialist Earl Kennamer, one of the major changes approved by the State's Advisory Board of Conservation is unlimited permits for hunters in the National Forest Management areas. Previously, these permit requirements caused many hunting permit requests to be turned away. But it was the Board's opinion that lifting the restriction would "allow everyone to participate in the hunts if they want to. And since permits are unlimited and several areas will open on the same date, there will be no appreciable increase in the number of hunters participating in National Forest hunts."

Another major change is the law that permits shooting deer with antlers of any size above the hairline, states Kennamer. Last year's regulations required that a four-inch antler must be visible.

Cool Days—Improved Fishing

During cooling fall days, you can expect your fishing results to improve, the probable reason being that the tremendous production of food for fish during summer is beginning to play out. The situation, in comparison, would be no different for your cattle. A bale of hay to a full-bellied herd in a plush pasture during early summer would attract no cow's attention. But wait until frost has knocked off the summer grass and there's nothing else to eat. Then have a bundle of green oats at the stock. They'll tear down the fence to get it! So get ready to wave that bait, boy!

SPOOKY SNACKS For Halloween

Anne Patterson
Extension Editorial Assistant
Auburn University

BEWARE! Goblins, ghosts, and witches will soon be at your door. They'll shout "trick or treat," and you'd better be prepared, for under those costumes will be hungry, mischievous youngsters.

This Holloween, why not fend them off with something special? Such handouts as ghostly pops, made by draping orange lollipops with white tissue paper and painting ghostly faces on them, will really please the children. Also unusual are jack-o'-lantern cookies. These are simply round or pumpkin-shaped cookies covered with orange-tinted confectioner's sugar icing. The faces are made with melted chocolate.

Extension Consumer Education Specialist Dorothy Overbey suggests that a treat of fruit will be welcomed by both spooks and mothers of spooks. Small apples, a small stem of grapes, or an orange fit into the "trick or treat" bag for later enjoyment. Do choose small apples for the young goblins. They fit their hands—and stomachs—better.

A special thirst quencher for after cookies, candy, and fruit are cider apple cups. Just cut a slice off the top of large red apples and save them for lids. Cut a small triangle in the edge of each lid for a straw. Scoop out the centers of the apples, leaving a shell one-half inch thick. Brush the cut surfaces with lemon juice, and chill until ready to serve. Then fill apples with chilled cider, cover with the apple lid, and stick a short straw through the hole.

Other treats such as funny-face ginger cookies and Halloween bar bells will make Halloween quite an occasion for the youngsters. (See recipes below.)

Funny-face Cookies

- ⅛ cup shortening
- 1 cup brown sugar
- ½ cup molasses
- ⅓ cup milk
- 2 teaspoons vinegar
- 2⅓ cups sifted flour
- ½ teaspoon soda
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon ginger
- ⅛ teaspoon cinnamon
- Seedless raisins

Cream together shortening, brown sugar, and molasses. Stir in milk and vinegar. Sift together dry ingredients; add to molasses mixture and mix well. Drop by rounded teaspoons about 2½ inches apart on lightly greased cookie sheet. Place three raisins on each cookie for eyes and mouth. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees) about 10 minutes or until done. Makes 4 dozen.

Before baking, put a wooden skewer in each cookie halfway between pan and top of dough. Stagger rows of cookies to leave room for the skewers. Use small spatula to spread dough around skewer if dough separates. After baking, add bow ties of black or orange ribbon.

Halloween Bar Bells

- 1 recipe Caramel Apples
- 1 recipe Caramel Popcorn Balls

While caramel apples are chilling, make popcorn balls. Press balls onto other end of skewers that are stuck into apples.

Caramel Apples

- 1 pound (56) vanilla caramels
- 2 tablespoons water
- Dash salt
- 6 wooden skewers
- 6 crisp, medium apples
- Chopped nuts

Melt caramel with water in double boiler, stirring frequently until smooth. Add salt. Stick a skewer into blossom end of each apple. Dip apple in the caramel syrup and turn until the surface is completely coated. (If syrup is too stiff, add few drops water.) At once roll bottom half of coated apple in chopped nuts. Set on cookie sheet covered with waxed paper. Chill until firm.

Caramel Popcorn Balls

- 2 quarts popped corn
- ½ pound (28) vanilla caramels
- 2 tablespoons water
- Dash salt

Keep popped corn hot and crisp in slow oven (300 to 325 degrees). Melt caramels in water in double boiler, stirring frequently. Add salt. Place popped corn in large bowl and pour caramel sauce over it; toss until well coated. Butter hands and lightly shape popcorn into 6 balls the same size as apples. Shape remaining popcorn into 1½-inch balls for snacks.

Fresh Foods In Winter Months

How To Store Late Season Vegetables

PROPER storage of fresh home-grown vegetables makes it possible for you to have a good supply through the late fall and winter months.

Almost all Alabama gardeners grow tomatoes. And according to Extension Horticulturist John Bagby, they can be kept for several weeks by pulling up the vines just before frost and hanging them in the garage or some other cool, dry place. Green tomatoes also can be picked before frost and spread out in a single row where it is fairly cool and dry.

To store sweet potatoes, dig them before frost and when the ground is dry. If possible, cure them at 80 to 85 degrees, then lower the temperature to 55 to 60 degrees and hold constant. Do not allow the temperature to go below 50 degrees.

The fall crop of Irish potatoes keeps best at relatively cool temperatures. Place potatoes in boxes or crates, treat with Barsprout or other material to prevent sprouting, and store in a cool, moist, dark place. Do not allow them to freeze.

Beets, carrots, turnips, and rutabagas may be left in the ground and covered with pine straw with a little of the leaves exposed. They may also be dug, placed in crates, and stored in the basement.

Allow dried beans and peas to mature fully on the plants. After picking, spread them in a dry, ventilated place for about two weeks. Shell and place the beans in a tight container with one ounce of carbon bisulfide per bushel of seed. Keep the container closed for 24 to 48 hours. This treatment is necessary to prevent weevil damage. Peas or beans treated by this method may be eaten safely.

For more details on storing vegetables, get a copy of Extension Circular 134, "Good Gardening for Better Living," from your county agent.

ABUNDANT LIFE

THE EXPECTANT FAITH PAID OFF

Thelma Taylor of Mari- eorgia, had been in a chair for eight months, g from a dread disease affected her muscular nation. She had under- o operations for removal and all but 5 per cent other adrenal gland.

Mrs. Taylor had expec- th that she was going to ed by Jesus of Nazareth. bided her time, saying: ime will come when I healed."

Taylor came in her chair to our Marietta), Georgia Crusade in nd was prayed for in the tent on a Friday night. didn't get up and walk. ll outward physical ap- es she was not instantly by God.

the following Thursday , Mrs. Taylor got out wheel chair and cried: ealed! Praise God, I am " attributes her healing to nt faith. "I was not go- stop believing, even af- d been prayed for," she knew that before the was over, I would be again. I never once faith shrink. And God fail me!"

is an example of what s to get God to send His healing power. It takes strong, expectant faith.

In order to receive your healing, you must believe. And by "believing" I mean possession of a deep-down, unshakable, genuine faith that God IS going to undertake for you.

If you really want God to heal you, you must have the proper attitude. You can't just pray, "God, heal me," in a shallow way and expect results. You must mean it! You must believe that when you pray, God hears your prayer.

You must have expectant faith in God's healing power and then turn that faith toward God, believing that God is going to do His miracle for you right then and there!

Thelma Taylor came for the prayer of faith in Jesus' name. She did not come as a curiosity seeker, or as a lukewarm believer. She came because she knew that God could do for her what no one else could do.

Mrs. Taylor turned her faith loose, believing that God would heal her. When a miracle did not appear evident immediately, she did not say, "Well, that's that. God didn't heal me." She never stopped believing that God had healed her. She won the victory.

The expectant faith which wrought a miracle, almost beyond comprehension in Mrs. Taylor's life, can meet your needs through faith in God.

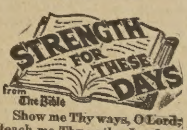
HELPFUL HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

In 1890, it took 25 and one-half minutes of an average factory worker's time to earn one quart of milk; in 1958 it toik seven minutes and six seconds. However, the 1960 time is onl ysix minutes and 48 seconds.

—vaporated and condensed milk can be safely stored on the cupboard shelf until opened. Dry milk solids will keep well at room temperature for several months if the container is tightly covered to keep out moisture.

Trim away the selvege edge on cut-out pieces because it map be more tightly woven than the rest of the fabric and pucker in the completed garment.

A few drops of lemon juice will bleach some stains, make sour mill out of sweet milk, and prevent cut bananas, apples and avacados from turning dark.



Show me Thy ways, O Lord; teach me Thy paths. Lead me in Thy truth, and teach me: for Thou art the God of my salvation.—(Psalm 25:4-5)

When we want to learn about agriculture, architecture or any other subject, we turn to someone with special knowledge in that field. How much more important is it, then, that we turn in prayer and study to the Creator to learn how to live in His universe.

Coming down from Washington, D. C. will be the national REA administrator, David A. Hamil.

"This is only the second time in the history of rural electrification in Alabama that a national administrator has attended the annual meeting of a cooperative. We are indeed proud that we will be paid this honor," said Chester Wingard, manager of Central Alabama Electric Co-op.

At a brief business session, officials will note progress of the cooperative during the past year; an election of directors will be held; and recommended changes in important by-laws will be discussed.

Autauga County Agent R. H. Kirkpatrick Views Seed

High Seed Yielder

Warrior Vetch Proves Self In Field

A new "warrior" has shown up along the winter cover crop front lines. And its debut among the farmers in the state has been extremely successful.

This new soldier is Warrior vetch, a new variety of winter cover crops that was developed by Dr. E. D. Donnelly, plant breeder of the Auburn University Experiment Station.

One of the outstanding characteristics of Warrior vetch is its ability to produce good seed yields of high quality seed under Alabama conditions. Also it produces high herbage yields, provides early fall grazing, and supplies nitrogen to summer grasses.

MOORER

The highest seed yield ever obtained from Warrior was harvested last spring in Autauga County. Ten acres of the crop were grown on the Autauga Farming Company land, which is owned and operated by W. H. Gaines and M. A. Wendland. The vetch was planted Nov. 10, 1959, in cotton stalks for support. At harvest a total of 14,550 pounds of clean seed was harvested from the 10 acres—an average of 1,455 pounds per acre. The seed were of top quality in every respect, and germination was well above 90 percent. This yield far exceeds expected field seed production.

Most seed producers over the state obtained yields of Warrior that ranged from five to eight hundred pounds per acre in the spring of 1960 where all good seed production practices were followed.

In experiments at Auburn in 1956 and 1957, Warrior produced an average yield of 1,009 pounds of excellent quality seed per acre, compared to 195 pounds per acre of good quality seed from the commercial hairy vetch and 177 pounds of fair quality seed per acre from willamette.

Gaines and Wendland used a grassland drill and planted 20 pounds of seed per acre following the cotton harvest last fall. They left the cotton stalks standing to provide support for the vetch. In fact, Gaines pointed out that he believes the cotton stalks for support and the proper adjustment of the combine are very important in getting maximum yields of seed from this variety.

Seed on the Autauga farm were harvested with an AC combine with a cylinder speed of 550 to 600 RPM. The cylinder clearance was approximately one-fourth inch, or the same as for oats.

The pH of the gray, sandy soil on which the high-yielding vetch was grown was 6.1. No fertilizer was applied to the vetch. However, the cotton crop ahead of the vetch was fertilized with 75 pounds of N (nitrogen), 60 pounds of P (phosphate) and 60 pounds of K (potash). Although good grazing was available, this field was not grazed at all.

Warrior is well adapted as fall and winter pasture when seeded alone or in mixtures with small grains.

Vetch has been and still is a popular crop of Alabama farmers. Seed production has been a major problem, and, in the past, varieties that perform well in Alabama have not produced economic seed yields under our state conditions. Therefore, most of the vetch seed used in the state during the past years has been shipped in from other states.

According to 1958 county agents' reports, Alabama farmers planted approximately 6,000,000 pounds of vetch seed. Of this amount only about 324,000 pounds were produced in the state. And during that one year around $1,000,000 was paid by farmers for vetch seed that were produced out of the state.

Warrior appears to be resistant to the vetch bruchid, an insect that causes considerable damage to the seed production of other varieties of vetch produced in the state. In fact, this insect has almost eliminated seed production on other varieties of vetch in Alabama.

We have available approximately 150,000 pounds of registered and certified Warrior vetch seed for planting this fall. Too, we have attempted to keep Warrior seed production under the certification program in an effort to keep the variety pure. We hope to continue this practice through the certified class of seed.

If the 150,000 pounds of Warrior seed are planted by Alabama farmers at a rate of 20 pounds per acre this fall for seed harvest in the spring of 1961, approximately 7,500 acres could be seeded. And with an average yield of 500 pounds of seed per acre, 3,750,000 pounds of Warrior vetch seed could be harvested for next fall's sales and plantings. At 15 cents per pound that would be $562,500 added to Alabama farmers' income.

The production of Warrior vetch seed is just like the production of any other crop. You must plant on time and follow all good seed production practices. From the present limited research information and farmer experience, it appears that a support crop is necessary for best seed production. Highest yields have been obtained with cotton stalks for support. However, good seed yields have been obtained when Warrior was planted with small grains early in the fall, grazed until March 1 after which time cattle were removed to permit seed production.

Alabama Producers Raise Meat-Type Hogs

THERE'S competition to be met wherever you turn. And this holds true in the hog world where, in recent years, stiff competition has cropped up between breeds of animals.

But the Duroc breed, which some producers seemed to think was on its way out when longer, more meat-type animals were introduced, has made changes, re-evaluated demands of the market and has not only held its own among other good hog breeds of today, but is leading the way in many phases of the improvement program.

Typical of this breed's ability to stay in the running can be seen on Paul Johnson's Duroc farm in Lawrence County. Johnson recently held an individual sale on his farm where 10 bred gilts averaged $146. The top boar brought $435 and was sold to the University of Georgia to head up the Duroc herd there. The top bred gilt sold for $350, and the top open gilt for $255, both going to North Carolina.

Hogs from Johnson's sale went to 11 states including Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Missouri, Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina, Illinois, Ohio, Delaware, and Kentucky.

According to County Agent Sam McClendon of Moulton, this was the best sale ever held by an individual hog breeder in Alabama. And why do you suppose he got these good prices for his hogs? Here's why, points out McClendon. Johnson has qualified his herd on the Alabama program for certified meat-type hogs ever since it was initiated in January of 1959 by Auburn Extension Hog Marketing Specialist Ray Cavender, and—even before that—he was working through his breed association's certification program for meat-type hogs. And his herd is also state certified brucellosis-free.

Johnson had the first CMS (certified meat sire) boar of the Duroc breed in Alabama. This boar was the fifth in the nation to qualify for CMS. Now Johnson has qualified a second boar—CMS-78 (78th in the nation and second in Alabama).

At the National Duroc Congress in Madison, Wisconsin, last July, George Elrod of Boaz paid $425 for the champion bred gilt of the entire show. This gilt was raised by Johnson. In other words, this gilt was raised in Alabama by an Alabama breeder and was sold in Wisconsin to another Alabama breeder—just more proof that top quality breeding stock gets around.

Auburn University Extension Hog Specialist G. B. Phillips says, "We simply must do more about this meat-type hog business." He points out that farmers know that the variety of cottonseed determines whether or not the crop will be short staple or good staple, but too many of our farmers still don't seem to know that meat-type seed stock is necessary to produce meat-type market hogs.

"We are making some progress," he says. "Basically, meat-type hog production must begin with purebred breeders who supply market hog producers with boars and gilts, just as Johnson did in his sale.

"Auburn Experiment Station workers are conducting research on the vital matter of meat-type, and they will formally open a meats laboratory in early 1961. The public is demanding that growers produce meat-type hogs and through the Experiment Station and Extension Service, we hope to help breeders move faster toward this goal."

Another way of showing you how well Johnson's program is balanced is his 1960 National Congress winnings. At a recent national show in Madison, Wisconsin, he showed and sold the grand champion pair of open gilts, reserve grand champion bred sow, superior group of open gilts, second group boar, and the third group boar. He also raised the grand champion bred sow, and placed in the top 10 of barrow show.

At the Southeastern Congress Johnson showed the grand champion boar which sold for $750.

Competition? He's got it. But, he's got meat-type, too.

Meat Department Of Tomorrow

variety of new products for the breakfast table. One that looks enticing is pickled, boneless beef round—smoked, pressed, and sliced similar to bacon. Another case offers luncheon and variety meats, and another still larger display case contains all the frozen meats which have really found favor with homemakers. The meat department of tomorrow offers convenience and shopping ease to the busy homemaker.

The fresh and cured pork sections of tomorrow's meat department are both attractive and appealing. All fresh pork cuts as well as beef are tightly sealed in a crystal clear gelatin film. No more re-wrapping for home storage or soggy paper trays to bother with. This modern wrapper is applied by spraying the cut surfaces with the gelatin material. The pores of the meat are completely sealed, reducing drip and shrinkage. During cooking the gelatin film melts away, adding valuable food nutrients to the meat dish. Since the film is also airtight, the meat cut retains its appearance and quality many times longer than when only cellophane wrappings were used back in 1960. Of course, the cut is enclosed in a clear cellophane wrapper for sanitation purposes. Except for a small tag denoting weight, price, and cooking instructions, the entire cut is visible to consumers.

Old and New Products Find Favor

There are still a few of us who remember and appreciate the appetite satisfaction derived from a sure-enough country ham. A few years back this was considered a specialty item, and the cost was higher than most could afford. Tomorrow's meat department features old-fashioned flavored country hams for just a few pennies more than the regular tenderized ham. They look as fresh and tender as the other quick cured, ready-to-serve hams—none of that dried-out look.

How did this all come about? Scientists studied flavor development in aging hams. They found that certain bacterial action was responsible for the aged flavor development. However, under the best natural conditions it took the hams almost six months to attain this flavor—much too long for economical mass production. Not to be outdone, scientists isolated these flavor-producing organisms, and now the aged ham flavor is produced by these bacteria under artificial conditions. The aged flavor is merely injected into the ham with the cure and presto, one-year-old aged hams are on the market in less than 48 hours. And, like the popular tenderized ham, aged hams come in either the cook-before-serving or ready-to-eat form.

Tomorrow's meat department is filled with cases of prepackaged fresh and frozen meat items. A large part of the frozen meat line consists of precooked cuts which require only warming up. These products have become a favorite with working wives.

With an active imagination it's not difficult to visualize your meat department of tomorrow. Research has already uncovered much of the basic information which will make tomorrow's meat department a reality. The imagination, ideas, and efforts of the scientist, livestock producer, meat processor, and retailer should take care of the rest.

Plant Spring-Flowering Bulbs Now

Mary Williams
Extension Editorial Assistant
Auburn University

SPRING-FLOWERING bulbs bring color to gardens at a time when few other plants are in bloom. According to Horticulturist Troy Keeble, the most popular types in Alabama gardens are daffodils, tulips, hyacinths, bulb iris, and crocuses.

The Auburn University Extension gardening authority reminds home gardeners that spring-flowering bulbs should be planted this month so that they will have time to develop roots before winter. "For best results," he advises, "plant the bulbs in well-drained sandy soil. They grow well when they get long hours of direct sunshine and plenty of moisture."

According to Keeble, domestic and imported bulbs are equally good. "However," he says, "buy from a dealer who sells good bulbs, and avoid moldy, discolored, or soft bulbs.

"Buy the specific varieties and colors you want," he adds. "Inexpensive packaged mixtures often contain too many of one color."

Keeble says planting begins with digging the ground, breaking up lumps thoroughly. A depth of 12 inches is sufficient unless the soil is very hard.

The horticulturist advises working a commercial fertilizer into the loose soil. A small handful of 5-10-5 fertilizer is used for each cluster of three to five bulbs. Two pounds of this material will cover a five-foot by 10-foot area.

"Set the bulbs firmly into the ground so that there are no air pockets underneath," Keeble continues. "Plant crocuses, glory-of-the-snow, scilla, grape hyacinths, and snow-drops with the tips of the bulbs two inches below the surface. Iris can be set three inches deep; hyacinths, four inches; tulips, six to seven inches; and daffodils, six to eight inches.

"Bulbs can be planted close together (three to four inches apart) for thick masses of flowers the first year. But bulbs this closely planted become crowded quickly. The gardener will have to dig, store, and divide them more often than bulbs planted further apart.

"After planting," Keeble concludes, "soak the planted beds to dissolve the fertilizer and settle the bulbs."

Junior Citizens Get New Year Underway

Miss Martin At Helm—

The Junior Citizens' Club met at 11:30 o'clock Friday, September 23, 1960 in the Club Room. In the absence of the president, the vice-president, Freddie Cox, called the meeting to order.

The Club prayed the Club Prayer. Following was the Alabamian's Creed.

The secretary, Kay Smith, read the minutes of the last meeting. There was an addition to the minutes. Rodney McGuire's part on the program had been left out and was added at this time. The song leader, James Blalock, led the Club in tre song "Alabama". The committees then gave their reports.

The PTA Committee reported 31 PTA members. The activity committee reported plans to charter a bus to go to the State Fair were being made.

The program chairman, Ronald Lockhart, accepted the chair and presented the program. The program was a contest between the boys and girls on the correct use of the apostrophe, which the Club had been studying. The girls side won. The Club then recited the American's Creed and then the song leader, James Ballock led the Club in 'America'. The Club Pledged Allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America.

As there was no further business the meeting was adjourned to next Friday, September 30.

Respectfully Submitted
Kay Smith, secretary.

NEW '61 CHEVY CORVAIR

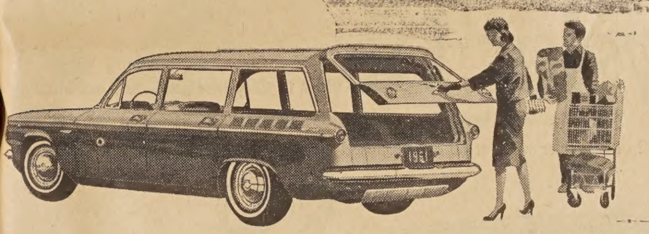
More space . more spunk and wagons, too!

Here's the new Chevy Corvair for '61 with a complete line of complete thrift cars.

To start with, every Corvair has a budget-pleasing price tag. And Corvair goes on from there to save you even more. With extra miles per gallon . . . quicker-than-ever cold-start warmup so you start saving sooner . . . a new extra-cost optional heater that warms everyone evenly. Riding along with this extra economy: more room inside for you, more room up front for your luggage (sedans and coupes have almost 12% more usable trunk space).

And our new wagons? You'll love them—think they're the greatest thing for families since houses. The Lakewood Station Wagon does a man-sized job with cargo, up to 68 cubic feet of it. The Greenbrier Sports Wagon you're going to have to see—it gives you up to 175.5 cubic feet of space for you and your things.

Corvair's whole thrifty lineup gets its pep from a spunkier 145-cu.-in. air-cooled rear engine. Same rear-engine traction, same smooth 4-wheel independent-suspension ride. See the polished and refined 1961 Corvair first chance you get at your Chevrolet dealer's.



The newest car in America: the CORVAIR 700 LAKEWOOD 4-DOOR STATION WAGON.

CORVAIR 700 CLUB COUPE. Like all coupes and sedans, it has a longer range fuel tank.

CORVAIR 700 4-DOOR SEDAN. Provisions for heating ducts are built right into its Body by Fisher.

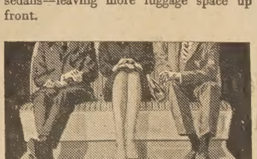
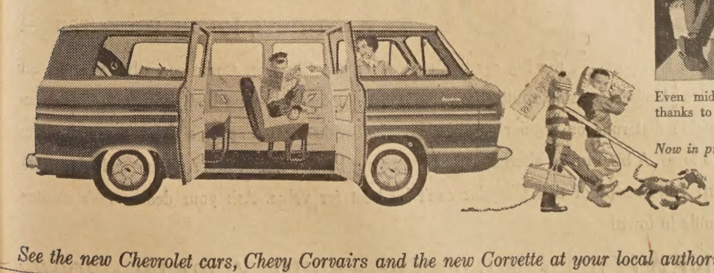
Spare tire is in the rear in coupes and sedans—leaving more luggage space up front.



Even middle-seat passengers sit pretty; thanks to Corvair's practically flat floor.



Now in production—the GREENBRIER SPORTS WAGON with up to twice as much room as ordinary wagons (third seat optional at extra cost).

SAYS MISS DAVIS—

FRUGAL FOOD BUYING BEST SYSTEM

By Faye Davis
Assistant Home Agent, Chilton Co

Do you plan your food buying, or do you just go to the grocery store and BUY?

Many homemakers have become habit bound and indifferent about food buying and are failing to buy food with any system.

The following facts about food buying are based on information furnished us by Auburn's Extension Specialist in Consumer Education, Miss Dorothy Overbey. Food is one of the major expenses in most homes. According to U. S. Department of Labor Statistics, an average family spends 22 percent of its disposable income for food Alarming, isn't it?

Yet, so many homemakers, because food shopping comes so often and is so boring too many people fail to give food buying the attention it deserves. Adequate diets can be had for less than 22 percent of your income.

Pay For 'Service Foods'—

Part of the heavy expenses of foods come from buying a lot of 'service foods'!

'Frozen', 'heat 'n Serve', 'Instant', have become a part of our food language. The more processes a food has undergone before we buy it, the more we pay for that food because we're paying for maid service and for the free time that these 'service foods' give us.

Don't Get Confused—

In figuring the cost of food, do not confuse the amount spent at the grocery store with the actual amount spent for food. The price of cleaning supplies, equipment, drug items and tobacco may appear on the same cash register with our food items and may lead to a false idea of the actual money spent for groceries.

Wise food-spending begins with good food planning and begins at home. To aid in good planning, follow these five steps:

Five Steps To Good Food Buying Habits—

1. Read Advertisements.
   A food store advertisement will tell you: the variety of items offered by the store; the items listed by all or almost all stores is a clue that the supply of that item is abundant; food stores devote more ad space to the meat or food item that is more plentiful and carries more attractive price tags; very bold type signified that the item is a feature value as size and boldness of type decrease—relative value usually decreases also.
2. Check stock of food on hand.
3. Determine when you will shop again so that you can buy enough groceries to last until next regular shopping day. Extra trips for forgotten items can be costly so keep them to a minimum.
4. Decide who will shop. The homemaker knows how she plans to use each item of food. If the item is not available or quality is poor, the homemaker can substantiate or adjust the menu if she is shopping.
5. Make a shopping list. Lists help the shopper remember needed items and also means fewer impulse items to increase the food bill.

By using these five steps for food planning you should be able to make good purchases at your food store and thus relieve the strain on your food budget!

FRIDAY! THE GREATEST
SIXTY-ONEDERFUL CHEVROLET

Here's the car that reads you loud and clear—the new-size; you-size '61 Chevrolet. We started out by trimming the outside size a bit (to give you extra inches of clearance for parking and maneuvering) but inside we left you a full measure of Chevy comfort. Door openings are as much as 6 inches wider to give feet, knees, and elbows the undisputed right of way. And the new easy-chair seats are as much as 14% higher—just right for seeing, just right for sitting.

Once you've settled inside you'll have high and wide praises for Chevrolet's spacious new dimensions (in the Sport Coupes, for example, head room has been upped as much as 2 inches, and there's more leg room, too—front and rear). Chevy's new trunk is something else that will please you hugely—what with its deep-well shape and bumper-level loading it holds things you've never been able to get in a trunk before.

Yet, generously endowed as this car is with spaciousness and clean-etched elegance, it holds steadfastly to all the thrifty, dependable virtues Chevrolet buyers have come to take for granted. Your dealer's the man to see for all the details.

IMPALA 4-DOOR SPORT SEDAN—one of five Impalas that bring you a new measure of elegance from the most elegant Chevies of all.

NOMAD 9-PASSENGER STATION WAGON. You have a choice of six Chevrolet wagons, each with a cave-sized cargo opening nearly 5 feet across.

There's never been a trunk like it before! The floor's recessed more than half a foot and the loading height is as much as 10½ inches lower.

BEL AIR 2-DOOR SEDAN; like all '61 Chevrolets, brings you Body by Fisher newness—more front seat leg room.

Dear Young Drivers:--

"September is the time that many of you return to school. I realize that many of you will return to the high schools; ;others will go away to the higher institutions of learning; still other young drivers may not choose to go to college and will drive to and from work every day.

Regardless of what you have chosen to do, all young drivers have one thing in common and that is your desire to drive an automobile.

I am writing this letter for three reasons. First, because I am concerned about your personal safety when you drive on the highways. Second, because of the high death rate of young people in traffic accidents. Third ,because I know that the young drivers of the State of Alabama are capable of being the best drivers on the streets and highways.

We all know that the automobile has proven to be an invaluable machine for your pleasure and service. It has also proven to be a weapon of death if improperly driven. The driver's attitude and action determines whether it will be a happy, enjoyable evening or turn out to be an evening of horror, destruction and disaster for you or someone who means everything to you.

Young drivers, please don't let me down because I am counting on you to help me reduce the death rate among all drivers on the highways this year, and especially amond those of high school and college age."

Sincerely,
—FLOYD H .MANN

Hold To Your Faith, But Keep Your Power To Reason--

CONFUSION about who and what to believe breeds mistrust in the most logical of minds. Many writers of late are expressing the opinion that their religion is threatened by Catholicism. It leads us to wonder if these 'stalwarts' have so little faith in their own religion that they feel it cannot withstand the pressures, real or fancied, of any other group or power.

It is faith and faith alone that guides our own mind in believing that our religion CAN withstand anything that defies it, just as long as we realize and believe that the Almighty has the final word.

It may be a good thing and, as most times is the case, will work out for the better of all concerned, if our beliefs and religion are put to the test—whatever the test—to see if we are found wanting and to prove to the skeptics and the blowhards that our religion is worth believing in. If our faith in our religion cannot withstand even the suggestion of a threat against it, then we are basing our faith on material, unimportant things, rather than the goals which Christ set out for us to believe and live by.

Though we may not be the best desciples, our religion is sound; we have faith in it and threats from outside (as inside) create interest and concern, but not panic, and disorder. What kind of religion is it that is based on fear, prejudice and confusion. . . not much of one. . . we say!!

No Speakee Republican--

THE Chinese and Japanese people put a lot of stock in "face saving"! In other words, mutual respect and admiration mean a lot to them. It's high time we Americans took stock of our 'face'! When you do you'll discover the Republicans are diplomatic elephants and have let our "face" be hanged. Not because they wanted to, but because they couldn't help it—they just plain don't have the ability to present us as a strong and vibrant nation. Many a Democrat, temporarily turned Republican in 1952 has lamented the fact in no uncertain terms ever since. They are sorry they let their Party down, because the Republicans didn't measure up to their hopes When a child gets burned he lets matches be and plays with the right toys. Is there any indication that the GOP'ers are going to change their tactics—on the contrary, they seem to be proud of their accomplishments, including those in UN-diplomacy abroad.

If you were an "Ike" supporter and still can't decide why—as so many seem to be having trouble doing—there's only one intelligent course for you to take —Get back into the Party of the people—Vote Democratic!!

THE OATH OF NATURALIZATION SAYS MR. GLETTY

Dear Editor,

Senator Kennedy has stated that he, as a public official, can distinguish between his private beliefs and his public duty. But he did not state whether his private beliefs might spay him in the execution of those public duties. He has taken the oath of allegiance to the Vatican, and independent and foreign State, with the Pope as dictator, which contains the following:

"And I pledge and swear true obedience to the Roman Pontiff Vicar of Jesus Christ, and successor of the blessed Peter, Prince of the apostles."

When Senator Kennedy took oath of office as U. S. Senator, I assume that he swore to support the Constitution of the United States. But how can Mr. Kennedy support the U. S. Constitution, and also the opinionsh and teachings of the Pope and his church? If Mr. Kennedy will read his Bible, he will find it says: "No man can serve two masters."

Of course there is a way around these difficulties. The Vatican law declares: "No oaths are to be kept if they are against the interest of the Church of Rome". The Catholic laws are supreme. They declare that 'The civil laws are binding only as long as they are conformable to the rights of the Catholic Church".

The first words of the first Amendment to the U. S. Constitotion, which is the first Article of the Bill of Rights, states: "Congress shall make no law respecting the establishment of religion nor prohibiting the free exercise thereof;' or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press".

According to the Syllabus of errors, by Pope Pius IX. and which has never been repudiated, but confirmed by following Popes: 15."It is error to say that every man is free to embrace and profess that religion which he, led by the light of reason, thinks to be true religion". 55. "It is an error to say that the Church is to be separate from the State, and the State from the church."

77. "It is error to say that in this age of ours it is no longer expedient that the Catholic Religion should be the only religion of the State to the exclusions of all other cults whatsoever."

The Vatican further declares that: "The State has not the right to the entire direction of the public schools." "The Church has the right to require the State not to leave a man free to profess his own religion."

"The Church has the right to require the State not to permit free expression of opinion.". "The Pope has the right to give countries and nations which are non-Catholic to Catholic regents, who can reduce them to slavery." "The Pope has the right to annul State laws, treaties, constitutions, etc., to absolve from obedience thereto, as soon as they seem detrimental to the church or those of the clergy."

"The Pope can release from every obligation, oath, vow, either before or after having been made." "No oaths are to be kept if they are against the interest of the Church of Rome".

Pope Leo XIII declares: "It is quite unlawful to demand, or defend, or to grant unconditional freedom of thought, of speech, of writing, or of worship". Hundreds of such quotes could be given if space allowed.

Any person who has sworn allegiance to any foreign power (and this should inclued Catholics) should be required to take the oath of naturalization, before they can qualify for any public office of the U.S. This oath declares: "The alien seeking citizenship, must take oath to renounce forever all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign prince, potentate, State or sovereignty, in particular, to that to which he has been subject."

No true-blooded American would even think of placing a man who had sworn allegiance to any other foreign dictator or foreign power in the highest executive office of the U. S. Why make an exception of the Vatican, Which has expressed more opposition to our Constitutional laws than any other foreign power on earth. Think it over fellow Americans.

MAY I QUOTE THE TRUTH? ASKS MR. NAISH

Mr. R. M. Tucker, Publisher-Editor
Chilton County News
Dear Mr. Tucker:

My letter to you that you were kind enough to publish as my own and individual reasoning and thoughts, has caused my mail boy to be bounteously laden since that publication. It is indeed surprising the number of approvals that I have had especially from the younger voters, to this letter with only a few crticisms from egg-headed diehards consisting of bigots, irrecincilables and just plain out lunatics who did not have the manhood, honor, guts or principle to sign their depraved names and to which I paid scant attention but did laugh often and good at their biased master-following ignorance.

In certain papers I have read the alleged oath the members of the Knights of Columbus are required to take as a qualification to their knighthood in this organization. This spurious junk has been disproven by churches, congressional investigating committees, and the Federal Government of the United States of America. May I here quote the true obligation of the K.C. as published in TIME magazine of August 29, 1960 and appearing on page fifteen. Time published this oath after much investigation and verification. The Oath:

QUOTE: I pledge myself as a Catholic citizen and a Knight of Columbus, fullp to enlighten myself upon my duties as a citizen and conscientiously perform them entirely in the interest of my country regardless of all personal consequences. I pledge myself to do all within my power to preserve the integrity and puritp of the ballot and to promote respect for law and order. I promise to practice my religiin consistently and faithfully and to so conduct myself in public affairs and in the exercise of public virtue as to reflect nothing but credit and honor upon our Holy Church, to the end that She may flourish and our country prosper to the greatest honor and glory of God. END QUOTE.

The above obligation has been proven true and accurate through many channels and not one time has it been proven as anything but the actual truth as perpetrated.

I do hope that you can use this letter so that sane thinking people may glean some understandin gtherefrom.

Yours truly,
-s- G. S. NAISH

HI VANCE'S
USED YARN LOT

50 Years of HUMOR

My good friend, Courtney Riley Cooper, famous writer of circus stories of a fictional nature for magazines and a person who had traveled extensively with Sells-Floto Circus to absorb materials for these yarns, liked to sit around and swap anecdotes with friends when he came to Birmingham. "Coop" had several little nephews and he was probably fondest of relating of how little Horace picked up the art of cussing when he was only seven years old. Naturally, Horace's way with a profane word disturbed his Mother no end; and in order to break him of the habit, she told him one day that next time she heard him resort to Billingsgate, he would have to leave home.

True to her threat, when he later let fly with an oath, she reminded him of the penalty for it, took him by the hand, and led him into his room where she packed his belongings in his little suit case. She then scrubbed his ears good and led him to the front door, opened it, and pushed him out on the front porch.

It was a rather frigid morning and as the Mother peeked, tiny Horace stood there, and looked of into space as if in deep thought. But he made no move to get or down the steps. In mock sternness though she was on the verge of bursting into laughter, Mama poked her head out the door and demanded: "Why don't you get going?"

Without batting an eye, and in a thorough audible tone, the exile-to-be admitted: "I don't know where the hell to go!"

Small Birth Defect Victim Is A 'Prop' As Mother Lectures

Mrs. Houle and daughter Kathy lecture to audience o children and adults.

Kathy Houle, of Mt. Clemens, Mich., a pretty blue-eyed brunette "going on five," poses today with perfect self-command as her schoolteacher mother lectures on the heart-breaking topic of birth defects.

Kathy doesn't mind being one of her mother's lecture "props." Mother and daughter are dedicated to the proposition that since 250,000 infants are born yearly with significant birth defects—and 34,000 babies annually are stillborn or die within the first month because of birth defects—the more widely the subject is discussed, the healthier for the nation.

The National Foundation, which financed the development of both the Salk and Sabin polio vaccines, is now supporting research and patient care for birth defects and arthritis through the New March of Dimes.

Kathy has ample reason for her devotion to the cause embraced by her mother and herself. The child was born with the forbidding birth defects of an open spine and excess fluid on the brain. When only weeks old, Kathy underwent major surgery three times.

Doctors told the parents: "Enjoy the baby while you can. She may not be with you for long."

It was a miracle that Kathy survived. But since she did, both the child and her grateful mother, Mrs. William W. Houle, a Michigan grade school teacher, want to shed light on this often "taboo" subject.

"Tens of thousands of mothers are mistakenly ashamed of having given birth to a malformed infant," Mrs. Houle says. "Tragically, many parents hide these innocent children away from public view—instead of seeking medical advice and therapy.

"When Kathy and I set out on our lecture tours to adults, we describe in detail such birth defects as an open spine and excess fluid on the brain. These and other such major birth defects are the largest unmet childhood medical problem in the United States today.

"Then, we tell parents that they rarely need fear having a second defective child because birth defects are not always hereditary. But when Kathy and I talk to groups of small fry, we concentrate on persuading the youngsters not to shun handicapped children which with thoughtless cruelty they often do. And not to be afraid of them."

The Houle-Kathy lec "circuit" includes parent-te er groups, and association school principals. The audi for this unique mother daughter team is expa They can't fill all the re for bookings.

Kathy, described by her tors as "strong and healthy day" despite a bladder inv ment due to the spinal de gets around nimbly on crutches and leg braces, has all the traits of any nor child of her age and is devo to her two collies, to her ad ing brother Douglas, seven, to her dolls, in that eccen order.

nton Post Office Receipts Increase Over $25 Thousand In 7 Yrs

all-time high in the na- il volume was reached al year 1960 ending June continued the steady up- of the past seven years which even exceeds the growth, according to ad- rmation from the Annual the Post Office Depart- h has been made avail- stmaster R. R. Sutley.

subject to last minute he year's total has been as 63.6 bililon pieces of includes about one billion pieces of parcel post. It was stated that this would mean an increase of nearly 25 percent over the corresponding figures for 1953 when the anual volume was 50.9 billion pieces.

During this same period, it was pointed out, the revenue of the Department also has shown an impressive gain with an increase from $2,091,714,000 in fiscal year 1953 to $3,276,800,000 for fiscal year 1960.

Here in Clanton, receipts of the Post Office climbed from $42,619.98 in 1953 to $67,921.95 last year.

"There is not much we can do about how much mail we have to handle from day to day or how many people are making use of the Posal Service" Postmaster Sutley stated, "but the whole Department keeps busy in devising ways and means for doing the job not only more efficiently, but more economically. As I recall it, that was the pay President Eisenhower outlined the principal objectives of the Department when Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield was being sworn in back in 1953, and that's the way we have been operating ever since".

There is perhaps no better way of demonstrating the Department's ever-improving efficiency than by snowing just how steadily the annual volume handled per man-year of employment—excluding city carriers—has been increasing since 1953. In that year the total handled by one man was 132,00 pieces if mail. For 1960 the corresponding figure was 157,000.

It is of course, true that all the additional service has made it necessary to take on many new employees and that our total increased from 506,520 to 562,868 on June 30 1960, but as pointed in the origina' 1960 report figures, the workload increase during this same period was nearly 25 per cent.

We are proud of our record. We have no apologies to make and no regrets to express. What has been done was once said to be impossible. Now it is history', says the post office department.

Apricot Appeal in a Pudding

VARIETY, THE SPICE OF GOOD MEAL PLANNING, comes from new ideas applied to favorite dishes. For instance, serve vanilla pudding and pie filling mix a different way by preparing it with apricot nectar to make creamy fruit pudding. Then garnish with nests of whipped cream, holding apricot sections and fresh mint, and serve as a special treat to family or favored guests.

APRICOT FRUIT JUICE PUDDING

1 package Jello-O Vanilla Pudding and Pie Filling ¾ cup water
1 cup apricot nectar

Combine pudding mix, water, and apricot nectar in saucepan. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a full boil. Remove from heat. Pour into serving dish. Chill. Garnish with whipped cream, apricot halves and sprigs of mint. Makes 4 or 5 servings.

Note: If desired, fold in 1 cup diced drained fruit before serving.

Fire Away With Soda

Is your home fire-safe? Now's the time to check it out while doing your fall cleaning. Likely hot spots are closets, attic, cellar and kitchen. Chief cause of fire in the first three are stored accumulations of such fast-burning items as old linen, clothing, mattresses, wooden furniture, draperies, lampshades, magazines, newspapers and rags, particularly dirty rags that have been used for painting or polishing.

BAKING SODA
FIRE

Sort through such accumulations. Give what's still serviceable but of no further use to you to your local welfare agency. Burn what you class as junk.

Your range is the vulnerable spot in the kitchen. Fat foods being broiled or fried can flare up suddenly and unless the flames are promptly extinguished, the fire can spread. Youngsters in schools across the nation are being taught by safety experts the proper steps to take to control such fires. It involves the use of the common household staple, soda bicarbonate (baking soda). The soda is dumped right on the base of the fire. When heated it creates carbon dioxide, a colorless gas which smothers the fire.

To be sure you always have an adequate supply of the product on hand for just such emergencies, fill an old oatmeal or salt box with a couple of pounds of soda. Label it FIRE in big red letters and station it within easy reach of the range.

Set a bright mood for dinner with a sparkling refreshing appetizer. Something that will appeal to everyone (and serve as a delicious forerunner of good things to come) is colorful V-8 juice.

This tasty cocktail vegetable juice is a magic blend of juices from 8 garden-fresh vegetables . . . tomatoes, carrots, beets, parsley, lettuce, spinach, and watercress. V-8 has a livelier flavor than any juice or other mixed juices. It's so good for you . . . low in calories, but packed full of important minerals and vitamins.

You can serve V-8 hot or cold . . . plain or fancy . . . it always hits the spot.

Try some of these suggestions next time you serve V-8:

- Top each glass of V-8 with parsley, watercress, cucumber, or lemon slice studded with clove.
- Balance wedges of lemon or lime on rim of glass.
- Add a stick of celery, carrot, or green pepper.

To go along with the juice here are some ideas:

- Poke colored toothpicks through alternate cubes of cheese and stuffed olives.
- Spread softened cheese on crackers and sprinkle with chopped nuts or parsley.
- Pass an assortment of potato or corn chips and pretzels. FNS

MISON FALLS UNDER NTEVALLO STAMPEDE

By Hubert V. Ray

nthers put up a good fight econd quarter by making vns while Montevallo made

Hayes made the first TD vallo. Halftime score was Montevallo 6 - Jemison 0.

Montevallo came back in the second half: Jemison picked up 1 first down in the 3rd quarter and the victors picked up 4 first downs and 14 points. Jemison picked up 2 first downs in the fourth quarter and Montevallo picked up 2 first downs and 13 more points.

Montevallo got a few good breaks which helped them considerably. Had Jemison been on the receiving end of some of the breaks the story might have been somewhat different.

Jemison, in the 2nd quarter had a fourth and goal situation and Jerry Avery completed a pass to Gene Sorrell and Sorrell was stopped two yards short of a TD. Montevallo intercepted a Jemison Pass and a TD was the result. They also recovered a fumble which resulted in a TD.

Jemison lost the game but it was not a result of slackness of effort The Panthers performed possibly the best they have in several games and if they continue to perform like they did in this game, they will be hard to beat.

The Montevallo Club performed wonderfully with such players as Ruben Hayes, George Underwood, Douglas Smitherman, Terry Tingle and many others. Victory will not be too hard for them for the remainder of this season.

Jemison's several standouts were Benny Sims, George Plier ,Charlie Price, Rayburn Ellison, Jimmy Enfinger and several others.

Jemison's Homecoming Queen was Miss Frances Kimbrell.

The Panthers will go to Dallas County High Friday night for their fifth game of the year.

Letter Writing Week

Letters are Links to Friendship
OCT. 2-8
LETTER WRITING WEEK
NP

The 23rd annual Letter Writing Week will take place October 2 to 8, according to a statement issued by Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield to 36,000 postmasters.

The slogan of this year's event, as indicated on more than 200,000 banners, is "Letters are Links to Friendship." The display material will appear in post office lobbies, on vehicles on rural carrier routes, as well as in schools and libraries, and thousands of stores which sell stationery for personal correspondence.

Mr. Summerfield noted that there has been a revival of personal letter writing during the last few years. The Postmaster General said: "A letter remains the most economical, longest lasting, and most sincere means of extending greetings, communicating social news, and exchanging ideas."

During Letter Writing Week, Postmaster General Summerfield suggested that individuals write at least two letters: one to a friend or relative from whom you have not heard in a long time, and the second as a reply to a friend or relative who recently wrote to you. He also urged correspondence to people in other countries as a means of promoting greater understanding among the people of different nations.

As in previous years, Letter Writing Week will be officially proclaimed by hundreds of governors and mayors. With such a great variety of beautiful stationery now available in department stores and other retail outlets, Letter Writing Week is particularly easy and pleasurable to observe.

Dept. Of Pensions To Begin Paying Nursing Fees To Nursing Homes

INSTEAD OF PAYING DIRECTLY TO PENSIONER

According to information received from Commissioner Alvin T. Prestwood, Miss Joyce Clements, County Director, predicted changes in the methods by which the Department of Pensions and Security helps pay for nursing care in a licensed nursing home for those old age pensioners who need it and have it included in their budgets.

"The amount that can be paid for the nursing care item is included in the pension payments to the individual at the present time,' Miss Clements said. She explained that under the 1960 amendments to the Social Security Act the new Federal formula for medical care of old age pensioners applies only when payments are made directly to vendors rather than to the individual recipients for this purpose.

Miss Clements predicted that plans would soon be developed whereby the Department would make payments directly to nursing homes in behalf of the old age pensioners She said she could not say at this time whether other changes might be made to benefit this needy group.

Starting New Fiscal Year Aged Will Receive Over $50 Monthl

Record expenditures for 1959-60 and a record budget for the new fiscal year for the Department of Pensions and Security were today approved by the State Board of Pensions and Security meeting at the State Department, Commissioner Alvin T. Prestwood revealed

The new operating budget of $87.2 million is $5.9 million over the estimated $81.3 million spent in 1959-60.

The new budget reflects estimated State revenues, increased general fund money provided by 1959 legislation for 1960-61, and Federal funds estimated to be available for public assistance, administration, and child welfare services. This budget does not include Federal funds for medical care of old age pensioners if a vendor plan is developed in line with recent Social Security amendments.

The Board authorized the Commissioner to set up plans for making vendor payments for eligible pensioners receiving nursing home care instead of including this item in individual pension checks. Such plans, when completed, would enable Alabama to take advantage of more Federal funds for this medical care item. Prestwood said further that State legislation and additional State funds would be required for those aspects of the medical care program applicable to old persons not on the pension rolls and additional funds for an extensive medicare program for pensioners.

Of the $87.2 million budgeted for 1960-61, $82 mililon will go directly to needy people in the form of pension and assistance payments Prestwood said. Case loads for next year have been estimated, he added, according to present trends and policies.

The budget includes $63.5 million in Federal funds (over 72 percent of the total) and $23.7 million State money.

Under this approved budget average payments for the year will be close to $53.50 monthly for the aged, nearly $42.50 for the blind about $37.50 for the permanently and totally disabled, nearly $43.50 for families of dependent children nearly $31 for children in foster care, and about $12.50 for emergency aid. No single month, however will reflect these figures.

August Record—

The number receiving aid in each category in August was as follows: Old Age pensioners, 99,139; blind 1,671; disabled, 12,270; children families, 21,075;
in foster care, 1,632 and

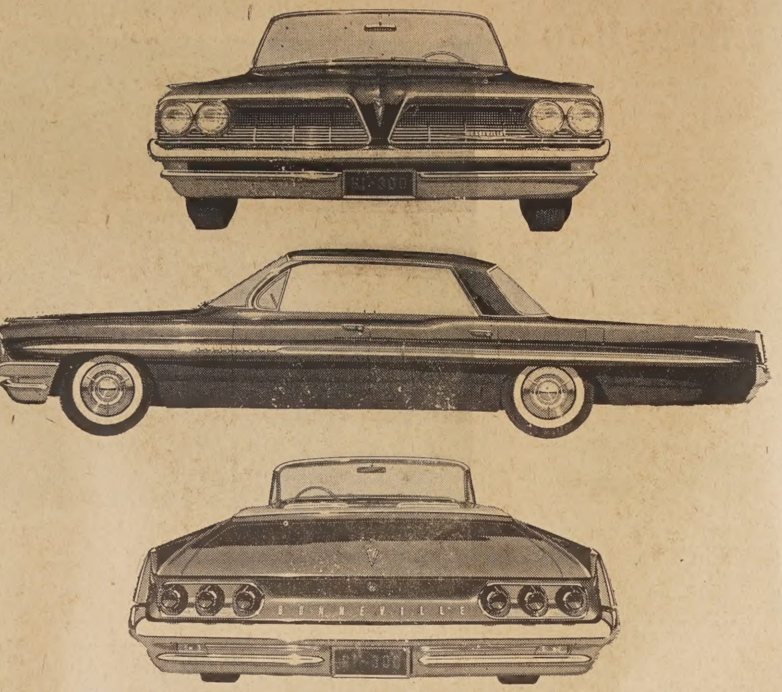
I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.—(Philippians 4:13)

Those who grow "weary in well-doing," who find themselves giving in to despair or temptation, can renew their courage and strength in this magnificent declaration of faith by Paul the Apostle. For the Christian, it is wonderfully true that the obstacles which face him are never as great as the Power behind him.

THE '61 PONTIAC IS OUT TODAY!



It's All Pontiac! on a new Wide-Track!

New track-to-body proportion! The track is the width between the wheels. Pontiac is the only Wide-Track car. Body width is reduced, shaving side overhang, balancing more weight between the wheels. Best relationship of body width to wheel width ever tailored. Lean and sway are ancient history.

Announcing the new Pontiac Trophy V-8 Engine! We've improved the engine the experts said was perfect. New fuel induction system saves gas by using more air in the gasoline mixture. This makes the engine breathe more efficiently, giving you better acceleration. Eleven versions to choose from. Horsepowers range from 215 to 348. For best economy, specify the Trophy Economy V-8. Its lower compression ratio lets you use regular gas.

More headroom, legroom, footroom for greater comfort! You'll take great comfort in the extra roominess we've built into the '61 Pontiac. Seats are higher, yet there's more clearance beneath the steering wheel and more hatroom over your head. There is more legroom, more footroom. Doors are wider and designed to swing open farther. The more highway you put behind you (Pontiac specializes in this) the more you'll appreciate the new room that's all around you in this sleek new '61.

THE ONLY WIDE-TRACK CAR!
Body width trimmed to reduce side overhang. More weight balanced between the wheels. No other car hugs the road with such sure-footed stability and precision.

ISN'T THIS YOUR BIG YEAR FOR A WIDE-TRACK PONTIAC? IT'S ALL PONTIAC!

Panthers Roll Over Dallas County With 27 To 6 Victory

by Hubert V. Ray

THE Jemison Panthers received the kick-off and in a very few seconds of their game with Dallas County High, George Plier ran 65 yards for Jemison's first TD and Jimmy Emfinger made the extra point. The Panthers picked up four first downs in the first quarter and the Hornets made one.

The Panthers added another TD in the 2nd quarter, but found out the hard way that the Hornets still had some sting. Jimmy Wade, of the Hornet team, went 58 yards for the score. They failed the extra paint, as did Jemison and the halftime score was Jemison 13, Plantersville 6.

The Panthers came out strong in the second half. Determined, partly because of will-to-win and partly because they knew Plantersville was seeking a Homecoming win and would be exerting great effort.

Benny (the Mole) Sims went in from the eight for the third Jemison tally with Plier booting between the uprights. Jerry Avery made the fourth score from the eight and 'the Mole' racked up the extra point.

Plantersville picked up one first down in the second half. Their top yardage man was Jimmy Wade with 123 yards rushing.

America First -- You Said It Mr. Nixon--

VICE-President Nixon obviously believes in voting for "the man" rather than considering the Party because he doesn't think too much of the Republicans as a Party—influentially anyway.

Mr. Nixon stated in a broadcast the other evening that "we should put America first and not a Party first". We agree very sincerely, but it is with the American people in mind that we advocate supporting the Democratic Party because it is definitely the "Party of the people" and thus is most assuredly part of our belief in our Country.

We contend once again that our government, not being a monarchy or dictatorship, needs a strong organization, backed by the people to lead us in our country's business. One man cannot do the job. And we might add, that a continuation of independent decision, rather than a Party loyalty on the part of the Vice-President is going to serve in reducing his influence and his Party strength rather than enhance his own chances or do damage to the Democratic Party.

Party Loyalty is not blind faith. It is a belief and faith in an ideal and the best way to preserve the American ideals is to stand behind a Party. . . one which you can comfortably stand behind.

We do not agree with some of the "deciders" on our Party platform, but a political Party's principles and a platform are not synonimous. We do not agree with the other party's platform either and we do not base our voting convictions solely on what some handful of men chose to put into a platform.

We still believe in the basic principles of the Democratic Party and we believe that those principles still prevail in a majority of the people. As long as the majority holds onto these principles, the 'architects' of the platform are not as strong as they may wish or seem. We still elect Senators and Representatives and these men and women, to the last one of them, are answerable to the majority of the American people!

Seven Signs To Save A Life--

A VERY respected member of the medical profession in Chilton County has suggested that someone take on as a project the placing of signs on Highway 31 North and South of Chilton County Hospital advising folks which way the hospital is.

A very small sign would be adequate providing it was painted with luminous paint and stated: "Hospital 1 Mile" or whatere the distance, and with a prominent arrow pointing in the right direction!

The most direct approach it seems to us is: coming from the south, a sign at the intersection of Highway 31 (7th Street) and 3rd Avenue, then one at the dead end on the Lay Dam Road pointing to the left. Of course, two signs at the intersection on the Highway would be necessary — one facing north and one facing south.

That's three signs!

On the northern aproach two signs would be required at the intersection of Highway 31 and Black Snake Road (near Stokes Chevrolet Co.). One at the intersection at the top of the hill, after you make the turn from the highway and then, of course, one where you hit the Lay Dam Road only two blocks from the hospital itself.

Seven signs in all . . . and those seven, seemingly unimportant signs, could very well point the way to life for someone who needed assistance and needed it in a hurry. At that price, it wouldn't take long to pay for those signs, now would it? How about it civic clubs or Chambers of Chilton?

We don't see what Mr. Nixon means when he says, in effect, he doesn't believe in Party. Every statement he makes is most likely gone over with a fine tooth comb by strategists and Republican policymakers to be sure it's the best thing to be said. He has stated that he is proud of the administration, but we've yet to hear him say as much about his party—just whose side is he on anyway?

There may be a lot of 'scared running' Democrats in the State of Alabama, as our Republican Daily friends have suggested, but you won't find many of these 'scared' Democrats who aren't proud of the fact that they are Democrats—running in the right direction—and they're ready to stand up and say so. That's more than we can say for the 'other Party' which incidentally calls itself Independent more often than not—in these parts anyway. The Chairman of the Republican Executive Committee in one of Alabama's largest counties made the statement that "people don't mind admitting openly that they are going to vote Republican." We doubt that very seriously since most of them are supposed to be Democrats! It sounds like they think they are guilty of something, but they are men enough to want to admit it! You won't find many of these 'scared' Democrats who "admit" their Party affiliation. . . on the contrary, they are proud to be American Democrats and their principles are the same—they do not change each election year to suit anybody's politics. It is not an admission . . . it is rather a proclamation!

We wish we had at our command the records so that we could see just how far any given platform, of any party, has ever been carried out in the past. The people of the South, in Alabama, in Chilton County who think they will vote Republican in November are not voting FOR the Republican, but against the Democratic Platform. We refuse to base our entire opinion wholly on this one 'piece of paper' and we hope all Chilton Countians will look at the more basic Democratic principles in November, rather than those so-called 'planks' drawn up by a handful of our number who neither understand or care what the people believe or want. And we're not at all satisfied about whether or not they are 'our number'. The platform is made but rather than cast a negative vote against it we would much prefer to vote for our principles and what we believe to be 'self evident' and stand together, firm in order to combat wrongs. The people will come through the hogwash that is prevalent in any political campaign; our principles may not be so fortunate if we let every turn in the cree k sway our thinking. These are trying times indeed, and no time for anyone to 'go fishing'!

WHAT'S IT WORTH TO YOU??

YOU don't buy a newspaper as you would a can of beans off the grocery shelf. Your newspaper, right or wrong, has much more pesonality and influence than a can of beans, and with your support and constructive criticism, is a vital force in the community.

A gentleman came in the other day, for instance, to buy a paper and when given his change he exclaimed: "does it cost that much?' We respectfully agreed that it did and he went on out—after we had asked him to subscribe and thus support his community newspaper—a point which did not reach home at all. He returned inside of a minute and said, "This is a mighty little bit for the money, I don't believe I'll take it.' Well, the customer is always right, so we gave him his money back and retrieved our newspaper.

The point is, if the gentleman would think and reason, he would realize, as so many do, that his community newspaper is his best advantage to express himself and also to keep up with his communitys affairs which should be of concern to him in more ways than just griping about them. For the job that it does in the community, the price per copy or per year is mighty reasonable indeed.

Where can you find representation on a local level for yourself, your family, your community except in your community newspaper. It reports the news, it guards your rights and it calls attendtion to injustice and lawbreaking. It is 'the watchdog' of the community.

When issues or programs are forgotten by you—when your enthusiasm has run its limit—or when you haven't yet become interested, your newspaper is steadily pounding away at it. It has to be interested in everything and everyone, in every effort made in behalf of the community and in every miscarraige of justice, because you have a right to know. Hundreds of different ideas and interests must be maintained by your newspaper. And it must show an equal enthusiasm for all.

If you don't think this is a task within itself, we'd like you to try it sometimes.

Too many times, folks tend to ignore their newspaper until something near to them becomes controversial or impotant and then to whom do they turn? To their newspaper. But remember, if you will, at the same time, others, who are just as interested and important are going into something else and your newspaper must be their and do it's best to keep up with all! When you multiply those seeking the assistance of the newspaper a few times you come up with quite a responsibiliey and one which we, as YOUR newspaper, are proud to attempt to shoulder. Sometimes a mule needs a bit of 'pull' however, to help him over a rough spot and when your newspaper is hitting rough spots constantly, week in and week out, it needs your support week in and week out—not just when you have a pet project.

Yessir mister, regardless of what you think about th eprice, it's a you think about the price, it's a tation you receive, or at least is available to you, whether or not you take advantage of it, and your regarding it as you would a loaf of bread or a can of beans is not music to our ears!

It kind of gives us a 'what's the use' feeling about supporting our community when everyhang or a rip, but we're still body else seems not to give a in there pitching and thank goodness your apathetic opinion of what your newspaper is worth is not shared by a majority of your neighbors, or we wouldn't exist.

A community would be a sad place in which to live—and a deteriorating one—without the representation of its local newspaper and it is only what you make it, through your support and that most assuredly includes reading and subscribing to it. Talking about what an inferior product it is is neither going to boost the community nor help you any!

We'd like to ask the gentleman we mentioned above, a question. . . If we gave you the newspaper free would that improve your interest? On the contrary, it would lessen it!

HOW WOULD THE TAXPAYER FARE UNDER A 'TRICKY DICK NIXON' ADMINISTRATION

Mr. R. M. Tucker, Editor
Chilton County News

The above question was asked and answered in an article in the August 8th issue of U. S. News and World Report, a conservative national weekly magazine that has the trust and respect of the entire world.

This article points out that Vice President Nixon, in numerous speeches has made it quite clear that he will seek tax law changes if he is elected President, with the intent to lower corporation income tax. To alow corporations to write off the value of thei plants and equipment faster than do now under the "Rich Men's Tax Bill" passed by the Republican controlled Congress in 1954.

To make up the losses of tax money by this giveaway to Wall Street he (Nixon) as president would levy a one and one-half cent Federal Sales Tax upon the wage earner, the farmer, the pensioners and those on social security rolls and remove the luxury tax in its entirety for the benefit of corporations which would allow them to dig deeper into the pockets of the poor people of the nation.

The kind of sales tax that Nixon would demand would be at the manufacturers level, meaning on goods sold by the manufacturers and producers, on each and every article sold and saddling it squarely upon the shoulders of the consumers. It means the farmer would have to pay this one and a half cent tax on his cotton, his corn, his hogs, his beef, his potatoes and even his sorghum lasses, if he sold any. That too would be passed on to the consumer.

Then, the farmer would have to pay this tax on his gasoline for his tractor, his fertilizer and everything he bought because the producers of these necessities would be the ones taxed, but it would be passed right on down the line to the consumer.

So, Mr. Farmer would be in a double squeeze that he might not be able to exist under. This tax has been called the worst and most dangerous tax of all because it "snowballs" as the product passes through the hands of wholesaler, retailer and the ever present "middle man". Each charging a profit on the tax paid by his predecessors in this business chain.

The Eisenhower Administration came into office on a promise to 'clean up the mess in Washington'. This mess referred to Federal regulatory agencies which have now fallen prey to the very interests they are supposed to regulate.

The numerous scandals in the regulatory acencies under men appointed by Eisenhower speaks for itself. Men who have favored special private interests over public interests.

The Administrations policy has been to stack these agencies with men who could be depended on to carry out the theories and desires of the Administration. Many of the regulators have been fired by President Eisenhower because they insisted on being faithful to the public interest. We can surely expect 'Tricky Dick' to pursue the same course, should he be elected, and it's my opinion that he would go much further in oppression of the poor and glorifying the rich. Just what does the title 'Tricky Dick' infer?

Yours truly,
G. S. NAISH

DEACONS AND AUTHORITY!

Dear Editor:

Some of the very finest Christian people I have ever worked with are the Deacons of our local Baptist Churches. However, from lack of information some of these Deacons sometimes get the wrong idea about their duties.

No Deacon in a Baptist Church has any authority except that which the church gives him. It is a mistake for any church to let the deacons become a ruling body. Often we ear of deacons making decisions without the approval of the church body. This is a grave mistake and undermines the Democracy of the Baptist Churches.

Deacons in any Baptist Church are a recommending body and not a group that makes final decisions.

Every church should have several study courses on the duties of the deacons in order that the democracy of the church might be protected. We do not believe that all deacons make special effort to become a ruling body, but the danger is there and we should guard against it.

Now and then we hear of some people questioning the rights of one member of the church to make a motion from the floor at a business meeting. The right to make a motion at a business meeting is the right of every church member. Of course such a motion may be referred to the deacons or congregation for further consideration, but final authority rests in the local church.

EARNEST S. RATLIFF

THINGS We see and hear

by BOB

SOME folks wouldn't mind a bit admitting they were wrong. . . if they ever thought for a minute that they were!

W Edeplore the actions of some individuals who turn their backs on their friends and constituents just because a strong opposition to those things seems apparent. The test of a man and a friendship or even a principle is whether or not a person is willing to stick by it when a real challenge presents itself.

A little fellow by the name of Phillip Arthur McKinney was Christened at First Methodist Church here in Clanton last Sunday morning and he certainly did himself proud. He's a little tyke, you understand, and we never saw one better behaved. Usually when the pastor starts putting water on them, Holy or not, they don't like it and say so. This young man watched what Brother Kimbrough had to say as though he knew what it was all abont. A perfect gentleman; we are sure Johnny and Sue were proud of their youngest and we're proud for 'em!

JUST as they are in political campaigns, people seem to be quite critical of one another when it comes to choosing a sport! Golfing in and around Clanton has become quite the thing with an increasing number of citizens. There is no basis for criticism for anyone choosing to play golf, or anything else, as long as it's his business and he's doing it on his own time. It does seem that many of them—especially housewives — spend too much time on the green, but then again, that's their business. Until someone invades your privacy or seeks to do you bodily harm, you have no quarrel with their choice of anything! We do not approve of some of the Clanton Country Club's policies, but until someone proves that invasion of privacy, disturbing the peace, etc., etc. has been committed, let's restrain our criticism. As for the golf—that's purely a matter of choice and if a guy or a gal wants to get out and chase after a golfball, it's their privilege you know. Golf, in itself, is a healthy sport!!

LET us thank our correspondents right now, who see fit to get their copy in on Monday for Thursday's paper. That may seem like a long time to do anything, but take it from somoene who knowns—it ain't when it's getting out a newspaper. Besides Thursday's paper must be in the Post Office Wednesday afternoon, in order to get to you, out in the County. There are a thousand and one things to getting out your community newspaper each week and setting the correspondents' copy up into type is only one of them. We thank you an awful lot for understanding what it takes, and getting your copy in to us on Monday.

WHEN you get right down to it, and not many folks are, we think the National Obsession has come to be Big League Baseball. If a guy will lay off from work or beat up his wife, it only takes a baseball game—live or televised to bring out the beast! It is an obsession with an increasing number of people and obsessions ain't healthy. Because it is the popular trend does not make it the most important thing of the day. As a sport, O.K., but putting it alongside church, community activities and business; that ain't where it belongs!

50 YEARS OF HUMOR

The late Frank Thomas, who coached more of his Alabama Crimson Tide football teams into Rose Bowl competition than any other grid mentor, was very fond of reciting one experience he had with an Alabama moonshiner, who owned and operated a farm near Monoreville. Frank was on his way back to Tuscaloosa from Mobile, and a friend had given him a note of credentials so that he could buy a gallon of moonshine.

"I presented my credentials, the old fellow went out near the hog pen and dug up a gallon jug, presented it to me, and I handed him the price agreed upon. Back in the yard, just for want of something to say, I asked 'Has this stuff got any kick?' He laughed and said to his mussus: to this man, mama, he know if it has any kick!'

"He then recited an ex he'd had with it. 'Was South forty the other plowing a two-horse team,' fided. 'At noon I came dinner, unhitched the tea the old lady didn't have ready. While I was waitin' I took three slugs iut of a et two helpin's of everythin ter eatin', I went on back South forty and broke in res. Finally when I paused the sweat off and rest suddenly dawned on me th forgot to hitch up my tea it got any kick? Bro kick your eyeballs out!'

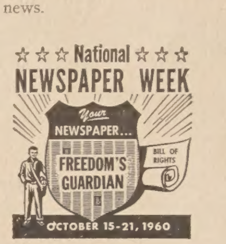
YOUR NEWSPAPER — FREEDOM'S GUARDIAN — I think the 1960 National Newspaper Week slogan is especially appropriate today and has a significance not only to the papers and the men and women of the press. . . but to all the people of the community as well. An institution that serves free people in a free society, as the press serves America, is one of the very bulwarks of that society. Speaking for myself and the company, we are glad to be a part of newspaper operations through communications facilities and to play some part in their activities as a source of news.



This significance is exemplified by our editor Mr. Ben Tucker. For the past twenty-three years he has availed himself to the community and the expression of it's desires. He has consistently directed himself and his able staff to the accurate reporting of events and opinions which effect our every day living. As evidenced by this paper, his direction manifests all the wisdom and experience gained through his many years of service. The company takes pleasure in joining the citizens of Clanton and saluting the Chilton County News during National Newspaper Week.

A NEW MEDICINE—Samuel M. Kier of Pittsburgh began selling half-pint bottles of crude oil in 1847 as a remedy for numerous ailments. A dozen years later in 1859, Edwin L. Drake drilled the nation's first successful oil well at Titusville, Pa., paving the way for many new petroleum uses. Today—in the oil industry's Centennial year—petrochemicals are used in the manufacture of many more medicines and drugs than Kier ever imagined.

It's A Big Change From This

EARLY SERVICE STATION—By 1910 regular gasoline stations, like the one in Flint, Mich., pictured here, began to spring up all over the United States. With air, water, windshield cleaning, plus many other services offered to motorists, the name "service station" in time became a specific dictionary term associated with gasoline marketing.

Ford Harvest Time in Mid-America

A wheat field sprouted new cars and an entire reaped the harvest. That's about what ppened recently when Ford Division of Ford tor Company loaned one of its new model or trucks to every vehicle owner in Flora for use for a week before they were pub- introduced. Townsfolk streamed out — t 1,500 are in the scene above — to "take very" of the massive fleet of cars, all painted white, and blue trucks. The project required 1,374 cars and more than 200 trucks. Selected by Ford as a site for its gigantic 1961 model national press preview and consumer test, Flora is located close to the official population center of the U.S. The 6,000 residents of the southern Illinois city celebrated the week-long transformation into "Ford Town U.S.A." and everybody, including competing auto dealers, drove new Fords.

May 20, 1927—Lindbergh flies the Atlantic

Another Great Day for America —and Oil Was There!

For 100 years—since 1859—oil's people and products have been responsible for milestone after milestone in America's march into the future.

From the hushed doubts of a Long Island airfield to the rousing cheers of a Paris throng, Lindbergh flew into history. Oil was there . . . oil helped make it possible!

Oil's first hundred years have brought undreamed-of changes in the lives of all of us. Not only in efficient, economical fuels and lubricants but in clothing, food, medicine, housing, and in many other ways we reap the benefits of a century of oil progress.

At the root of this progress lies the tradition of freedom fostered and cherished in our country. Working in this same freedom, oil's men and women will bring forth more Great Days for America. No one knows all the wonders that lie ahead for America. But we know this—progress lies ahead . . . and oil will be there!

Another Great Day Ahead
. . . and oil will be there!

Someday in the future, flying machines not even on today's designing boards will fly across the Atlantic Ocean in less than an hour. When this Great Day for America arrives, oil will be there!

BETTER PATIENT CARE AT YOUR CHILTON COUNTY HOSPITAL

MRS. Jewel Calloway, admitting clerk at the Chilton County Hospital is shown here "tagging" Mr. Jimmie B. Payton of Rt. 1, Clanton as he enters the hospital. The Identification bracelet will be used primarily by nursing personnel to be sure that Mr. Payton gets his medicine and the right medicine. This elimnates any chance of the nurses getting the patients mixed up and the bracelet, made of plastic, is discarded when the patient is released and leaves the hospital.

Already women's groups thruout the country have set up a series of TV Listening Parties to follow the Great Debates and other major addresses of the candidates.

The candidates wife told a group of press women at a tea in her home recently that she is 'enthusiastic and grateful for the many women joining the 'Calling for Kennedy' program. I wish I were able to go out and join in the doorbell ringing to meet more of the women throughout the country and hear their opinions.'

A special daytime television broadcast, 'Coffee with Senator and Mrs. Kennedy,' is scheduled for November 2, 3:00 to 3:30 p.m. (EST) over the CBS network.

Volunteer women working in teams of two are being assigned on a block by block basis, or by precincts, by local Citizens headquarters, according to Byron White, National Chairman of Citizens for Kennedy-Johnson. They will be expected to send back to headquarters a questionnaire reporting the isues people care about and what the people interviewed say about these isues.

Mrs. Margaret Price, Vice Chairman of the Democratic National Committee and Director of its Women's Activities office, has appealed women throughout the country to help in the project.

Mrs. Thomas Braden is coordinating the program through her office at national party headquarters in Washington.

We Cannot Live In The Past--

MR. Nixon seeks election with the claim of having more experience, and of knowing how to stand up to Khrushchev.

In 1932, Herbert Hoover had more experience with the depression than Franklin D. Roosevelt. In 1940, Neville Chamberlain was more experienced than Winston Churchill in dealing with Hitler.

Knowledge is needed, but it is the ability to think clearly and to act decisively that determines a man's suitability to fill an important executive position, not the length of time he may have been exposed to the problems of a job.

Mr. Nixon's claim that he can handle Khrushchev is hardly the issue. No president of the United States, be he Kennedy, Nixon or anyone else, will be able to deal effectively with 'the Khrushchevs' until our national economy is as geared to satisfy the needs of the American people, and the needs of those living in the impoverished areas of the world as our military strength is geared to prevent the outbreak of war. Only from this dual position of strength can we make progress in resolving our differences with the Soviet Union.

Millions of our own people live in sub-standard housing and need better educational and health facilities. Yet, our own economic machine is faltering, because we grow more food and manufacture more products than we now consume or export. We live in a world in which two-thirds of the population is in dire need of our farm and industrial products; in a world in which it is in our own self-interest to provide these products for them.

Yet the Republicans flounder with this set of problems because their approach deals with the past, not the present, nor the future.

We need men in Washington who think in terms of what is needed and not what has been done.

Creative planning, unthrottled by outdated concepts, is essential if the American economy is to move forward with a program of full production and full employment. The implementation of such a program demands the policies and the strength of leadership found only in the Democratic Party and Senator John Kennedy.

Mr. Farmer-Businessman, it is time to put aside the fiction that the GOP is the party of business and that we should sit back on our laurels. It is time to discard cliches and false, outmoded concepts. It is time to analyze issues in the light of national security, and select the Party and the candidate who is working for the average fellow—you and me!

America is in a position to profit from a Democratic Administration during the next four years. We need the mind of Senator Kennedy in the President's office. We need your support to win thes goals!

In What Are The Russians Gaining?--

ACCORDING to some of our experts the Russians are just now learning what makes the system we in America use, work—and they are 'capitalizing' on it! While we seem to be forgetting it!

Incentive to do something is what has made America great. The Russians are now rewarding handsomely those who 'do something'! Our point is this:

For the past generation we have become increasingly 'money-minded' to the extent that skill, training, knowledge means no more than just being an American. The stupidest, most slovenly and laziest American can get a job, without too much effort, which pays him handsomely and oft times more than the person who puts forth great skill and effort! In any body's book, that is ridiculous! If we don't reward achievement and desire to 'be somebody' we will indeed become a second class nation because. . . (1). Everybody will want, and get, something for nothing. (2). That in itself will destroy our belief in free enterprise and progress.

It's very plain to see how we can avoid such a catastrophe; we must create in our people a desire to accomplish by paying them—monetarily or otherwise—for those accomplishments! There's something wrong with the economy and common sense when a half-wit can go out and earn as much or more than one who honestly and earnestly does his best!

Easier To Loll On The Bank, Than To Swim The River--

But, not if we envision what's on the other side!

PLENTY OF NEW FRONTIERS

(From an editorial in the Decatur Daily)

"There are plenty of folks who look down their noses at mention of the New Deal and the Fair Deal, but not one of them failed to benefit personally by these two upheavals of the status quo in American economics.

And, because they are slow to change very much, they are again looking down their noses at the mention of "New Frontiers", the slogan of the Kennedy-Johnson Democratic ticket. . .

The Birmingham News had another sparkling editorial in behalf of Mr. Nixon. . . The News found great difficulty in pushing his cause. Again, they backed into supporting Mr. Nixon. But this time they were having something to say about conservatism. They said they like it, but they said they were opposed to reactionary conservatism. . .

In our opinion, THE NEWS would be the first to squawk if conservatism was employed to such an extent that federal payrolls were sharply reduced in Alabama. . .

The United States is full of new frontiers. We either develop progressively, or we become a second rate nation. We are far more likely to resume our roll of world leadership under a progressive Democratic Administration than we are under a continuation of the" wishy-washy "Republican doctrine."

The Republicans believe in the soft-pedal. They have an "ignore it and maybe it'll go away" attitude about our foreign affair difficulties. We do not recommend that we meet force with force, but when dealing with bully-boy dictators we must meet 'bluff' and 'mongers' with intelligent firmness!

"New Frontiers will challenge both government and business, some of it will be accomplished by both, and the brand of leadership we have in the years ahead will determine how many of these new frontiers we are to face and cross.

Jack Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson, we believe, are far more likely to lead this nation over these hurdles, both national and international, than Mr. Nixon, who has only demonstrated that he could engage Mr. Khruschev in an argument in a Russian kitchen when neither had the faintest idea what the other was saying!"

HI VANCE'S USED YARN LOT

50 YEARS OF HUMOR

Bennett Cerf, who likely knows more anecdotes and gags than any man in America, probably wouldn't be able to tell you his favorite if you got him hemmed up in a corner and demanded that he recite the one he considered best. This writer has noted, however, the one he has most often quoted in recent years. It has to do with an actor who has starred for many years but had never made a financial success out of his profession.

This thespian had become old, found engagements fewer and farther between, and as a consequence he lived in a second rate boarding house and had trouble making both ends meet. Three of his cronies, also actors and "in the chips" wanted to help him over the rough bumps, but they knew he would never accept charity. So, they worked out a scheme, telling him of a thousand dollar cash lottery. The group would explain that the lucky number in the hat, which was 4, would win the purse. So they connived to place only 4's in the hat. They would precede him in the draw, would get a 4, but would toss it away with an "aw, shucks," as if they had lost. In that manner the down-and-out friena couldn't help but draw a '4' and would come into the ossession of a thosuand dollars.

Evidently they didnt know how snake-bit any one man could get. When the luckless one fished out his number and held it in his hand, one of the fellows demanded: 'What number ddi you get?' In a sad monotone and without change of expression, he answered: 'Six and seven-eighths.'

What World-Wide Religious Revival Means

What does the great spiritual resurgence of faith now going on throughout the world mean?

From man's standpoint, the religious revival of today means one thing, but from God's standpoint, it means another thing entirely.

The Book of Acts says: "It shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh" (Acts 2:17).

From man's standpoint, the religious revival of today means that God is making a desperate attempt to save mankind.

We all realize that man doesn't trust himself. This is why men have built the hydrogen bomb. They are afraid of the intent of their fellow men. That is why we have wars. Wars are symptoms of man's distrust of man.

Subconsciously man is recognizing his need of supernatural deliverance from other men, from the problems that he brings upon himself.

This revival means man is recognizing his own failure to bring himself peace of soul and peace of mind. Man is now realizing that he is unable, by himself, to bring peace to his own mind and soul. Therefore, he is turning to the power of the Prince of Peace, Jesus of Naza-

It also means that man is failing to heal himself. In spite of great medical strides, mankind is sick. We've never known such sickness in the world as we see now. Man is taking advantage of all that medical science has to offer. But with all that, he is turning to divine healing as he has never turned before in his history.

From man's standpoint, the revival means that at last his faith is becoming aroused. He is coming to realize that he is basically a spiritual being.

Christ said, "Man shall not live by bread alone." This means that man is basically a spiritual being.

From God's standpoint, the religious revival of today means that the time has come for man's regeneration. Man is seeing the end of his own efforts, the failure of his own feeble attempts to save himself. He is realizing just how inadequate he is to face the demands of life.

The religious revival means, for the future, a division of nations, groups, families, individuals. It means a beginning of the literal and complete witnessing to all nations. It means the mass miracle for millions is dawning. It means the second coming of Christ is near

by BOB

SHADES of a 'tater hill! Ira Yeargan has done it again! Last week Mr. Yeargan, who lives on Route 2, Clanton dug up a king size sweet 'tater which pretty near breaks records around these parts. The luscious morsel (especially in sweet 'tater pie) weighed in at 8 pounds and one ounce and Mr. Yeargan says he had two more from the same hill that were also whoppers. We don't know what he's been putting on that hill, but whatever it is we hope he keeps it up. We sampled some of those same 'taters in one of our wife's good ole pies and man, that's good eatin'! Anybody grown a bigger one? If you have we'd like to see it, or hear about it. Right now, Mr. Yeargan holds the title of 'Champion 'Tater Grower' of Chilton County!

AND speaking of Yeargans; Mrs. Mary Vance (she was born a Yeargan) who is just about our biggest fan, as far as this here column is concerned, tells us that she is out of the hospital now and convalescing at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. L. M. Yeargan on Route 2, Clanton. She must be doing pretty god after that broken hip, 'cause we failed to mention this last week and she told the missus to tell us that she was going to break her crutch over our head if we didn't do it. . . and quick! That's pretty strong language coming from such a rosebud, but she's got quite a sense of humor and we don't think she means it. You'll notice however, that just in case its not as funny as we think it is, we're doing as she said. Hi there now, Aunt Molly!

WE had a terrific response to our 'early copy' appeal in this column last week. We thank you correspondents and all you other donors of news a whole lot. Your thoughtfulness about getting the news copy to us on Monday, or even before, in some cases, enables us to do our job better and thus serve you better. Monday copy will always be appreciated. Tuesday copy is tolerated and Wednesday copy. . . well Wednesday copy is pretty mutilated when we get through trying to squeeze and rush it through in time to 'put 'er to bed'!

IT was with much concern and regret that we learned (by way of the front page of the News) recently that Mr. Jim Sudduth was going back to Texas whence he came a few years back. It is with concern because Mr. Sudduth, with his boundless energies and store of original ideas has kept most everybody, including the 'docs' on their toes out at the Hospital and the place has been run in a wonderful way and has shown great improvement since he came to be Administrator. We regret his leaving because we can't be sure enough that his replacement will measure up to his good recird and finding someone who is capable of doing that is a hard task to look square in the face. Our hospital, as far as public relations is concerned, is pretty much what the Administrator chooses to make it, and if we didn't have a capable party in that position, it is certain that relations would deteriorate and so would our hospital and its services. Mr. Sudduth has also been invaluable to us here at the News in his coperation with us in our indeavors to keep you informed on the activities and advances of our hospital and its staff. He has never refused us a favor and has done countless without our even asking. We're losing one of Chilton County's best in Mr. Jim and we sincerely hope that he is in a position to thoroughly inform his replacement before he goes on to other creative endeavors. The Hospital belongs to the people and they deserve to know what takes place there. A good Administrator means everything to the public.

HAD the distinct pleasure of hearing one Perry Dalton preach his first sermon as a licensed preacher of the gospel, at his home church, Clanton First Methodist, last Sunday morning. Perry did a magnificent job for a 'first timer' and his sincerity is beyond question or doubt. He will make a fine Methodist Minister, and soon. We always did wish that we had the makings of a preacher and we suppise that is why it makes us feel so good to see a young man choose that as his life's work. We have had several from our church in the past few years choose the Ministry as their calling and in the Pastor's own words: 'It speaks well of a congregation when si many of their young people are called to Christ's great work!' It speaks well also of the man, and his Mom and those close to him who have influenced his life in such great degrees. All the best to you Perry, and you may rest assured that we are personally going to be watching your career with great interest, along with several hundred other folks from your church!

Blood Plays Major Lifesaving Role In Local Hospital

AVERAGE MORE THAN PINT A DAY AT CHILTON COUNTY HOSPITAL

Rarely does a day go by in Chilton County that does not require the use of blood, or some form of blood at our local hospital. This usage adds up to quite a total at the end of a years time. The supply that permits this life saving usage is made possible only by the combined efforts of volunteer donors, volunteer staffing of the Red Cross Bloodmobile AND by the supervision and financial backing of the American Red Cross.

Since the days of antiquity, mention of blood has always made a deep impression on people. The Jewish historian Hosephus mentions blood repeatedly and the Scriptures contain more than 300 references in ine sense or another, spiritual, hereditary or physiological.

Blood's History—

There have been frequent allusions to blood in the literatures of many nations. It has been used as a sacrament, to appease pagan gods, to invoke blessings from heathen idols and deities and to promote fertility in the fields.

Little was known about the composition of the blood until such discoveries as its circulation by Harvey in 1628 and its four main groups by Landsteiner in 1901.

Usually the sight of blood or the los of blood has been associated with tragedy and death. Now, in the light of modern knowledge, as blood is used by physicians to alleviate human suffering, the world looks on it more and more as a powerful instrument for saving human lives.

Anemias And Blood Use—

Blood is needed to sustain life. When a patient is unable to manufacture sufficient quantity to do this, or is suffering from acute blood loss, more blood must be introduced into the body if the patient is to continue to live.

Some acute anemias are so severe that time cannot be allowed for the patient to rebuild his own blood. Instead the anemia must be corrected immediately with transfusions.

Plesma And Whole Blood—

Various forms of chronic anemias produce a condition that makes it impossible for the body to manufacture enough blood to sustain life. These later anemias must be treated with periodic transfusions.

Nearly everyone is aware of the need for transfusion in the case of shock, either from severe bleeding (hemorrhage) or in cases without hemorrhage. In such cases, if blood is not immediately available, plasma or one of the other blood derivatives or palsma expanders may be given to sustain life until whole blood is obtained. Certain poisons, such as carbon monoxide, affect the oxygen carrying capacity of the hemoglobin, and in order to sustain life, the patient must receive a transfusion of fresh blood.

Failure To Clot Properly—

There are conditions also where the patient's blood does not clot properly and these require transfusions of whole blood, especially in the cases of an accompanying severe anemia. If anemia is not severe, some cases respond to treatment with fresh plasma. The leukemias, also especially of chronic variety, can often be helped by the transfusion of whole blood.

Courthouse And Jail Progressin On Schedule Says Judge White

To The People of Chilton County—

At last your dream of a new courthouse and jail is becoming a reality. Work is progressing on schedule. I'm sure that each of us are happy over this accomplishment and achievement for our county.

Much planning and thinking has gone into these buildings. It was the Board of Revenue and Control's thinking that much thought and planning should go into each of the buildings for not only to meet the present needs, but the needs for many years to come. Many people have been consultea and many similar buildings have been studied. It was for these reasons that they employed what they thought was the best Architect obtainable when they employed the Charles H. McCauley Firm of Architects. We are proud of the work done thus far and hope it meets with your approval.

Splendid Cooperation—

We are proud of the cooperation that each of you have given us. We are glad that we can say that it wil belong to the people of Chilton County and that we are only carrying out your wishes and that we are trying to do the best job possible in doing what you have told us to do.

Save Thousands—

We are glad that we were able to save you so many thousands of dollars of your tax money by using the low bid method of letting the contract. We feel that we have saved between fifty and dred thousand dollars.

We are happy that so ton County people are ployed on the jobs and are being paid the Prevaili Scale and in some instan the prevailing scale.

Now in conclusion, I to again thank each of fine spirit of coperati ing your Board of Control to accomplish mendous undertaking additional taxes and ting the appropriations ty service presently bein ed by our county.

WE BELIEVE IN FAIR COMPETITION

WE don't know whether it was a Democrat or a Repubilcan who gave the Post Office Department the O.K. to do job printing, but frankly we don't give a royal hoot! We're ready to toe the mark and fight it out if need be. . . we don't like the government taking our bread and butter—that we pay taxes with—in such an obvious fashion and at such an uncompetitive price.

Any business can fo to the Post Office and get 4c stamped envelopes with their business firm name and address printed in the corner for a mighty low price. . . in comparative printing prices. That ain't fair any way you look at it!

We, as a country newsaper, do job printing to supplement our income, due to the somewhat fickle ways of some of our advertisers and also, it's a good way to keep in contact with our busines associates on whom we depend to a great extent. When the government steps in and brazenly goes into business in competition with us it makes us see red! Especially when we have such a time keeping up the government as it is—what with taxes the way they are.

We recommend that something be done to rectify this miscarriage. Anyone who knows the least bit about it, knows that a weekly newspaper is not the most lucrative 'racket' in the world and what it takes into the till is earned, if anything was ever earned. We don't like the government horning in on our only visible means of support.

Besides that, if they of business (we're tryin see that they don't) the that much taxes and literally cutting off the spite their face. We so concerned except th past few years our Burea what have you have don of this type of nose they're making it diffic little businessman to brea businesses may be expe though we seriously do least in the eyes of the ment) but the country certainly not one of the government not only da Bureaucratic nose when down so hard on free it also cuts its own it pressures a newspaper Weve got to have profit and serve the public—to ha we must have business!

Local Farms Need Soil Tested Says County Agent John Sellers

by John Sellers, County Agent

On Friday, October 14th, a number of Chilton County farmers and feritlizer dealers met at the Clanton City Hall to study local soil problems and to discuss the sixteen essential elements for plant growth. Mr. J. C. Lowery, Extension Agronomist, pointed out the in land use, fertilizing methods, quality and quantity if plant foods used during the past decade. Dr. Walter Sowell, Extension Solis Specialist, pointed out the necessity for having soil samples made on each farm. Points to consider when collecting a soi sampe for the aboratory are:

1. What crops were planted on this particular piece of land during the last few years.
2. How much and what plant foods were used under these crops.
3. Topography of land - level, or bottom (wet or well-drained).
4. What crop is to be grown next

Research studies reveal the need for all farmers to know thei rsoil's fertility levels and Ph value. That is, they shoud know if the land needs extra potash or phosphate, or if the and is acid (sour).

They also need to know how much lime is needed to neutralize the soil to a more productive level. With this information a farmer may increase his production several times over that which he would normally get without conditioning his soil.

Mr. Sellers urges you to come by the County Agent's office and pick up soil testing supplies at your earliest convenience. This is an ideal time for collection of soil samples for crops to be grown next year.

Congratulations

New Contest To Aid People-to-People Diplomacy

To further CARE's concept of people-to-people diplomacy, a cial crusade has been organized that will take two Americans each state to three CARE-supported countries to see for emselves the work being done in this kind of diplomacy.

alled the Vicks CARE CRUADE, and sponsored by the ck Chemical Company, deletes will themselves be people- people diplomats. They will et with not only the man in street, but with foreign govment dignitaries of Rome, ens, Istanbul and Paris.

Each state delegate will be ted by a contest in which nts simply finish the sene, "Americans should CARE ut their neighbors abroad use . . . " The entry blanks be accompanied by a don to CARE of 50 cents or e. All contributions to E are receipted.

hile CARE's first job, imiately following World War was to feed the people of pe who had been victimized he war, progress dictated eed for a new kind of aid. this need grew CARE's lp program — a new o use dollars contributed Americans to help people their problems and to be- self-sustaining. Health and ational needs had also to erved, so that a self-sustain- future could be assured.

he first of the self-help grams brought simple maery to areas where it was perately needed. A new plow was developed, one that could be used with the kinds of beasts used by farmers in the areas to be served. This plow alone has rehabilitated entire villages that had been unable to fulfill their basic needs..

Specially developed fish nets turned the tide of poverty in areas throughout the world. Simple block-making machines made possible homes where, before, there had been only unsanitary hovels. Sewing machines, looms, water pumps and mechanics kits create industry where there had been only poverty-caused idleness.

CARE, supported by American dollar contributions, joined the fight against disease with clinics-on-wheels and midwifery kits. Education kits make it possible for children in underprivileged areas to grow into healthy, useful adults.

These projects, supported by American contributions, serve international diplomacy — not across a polished table — but on a people-to-people basis, with a lasting effect and a hope for the future.

New Steel-Making Formula Brings Medical Aid — Advance

DETROIT — A new high strength level for steel, developed by National Steel's Great Lakes Steel division, permits a emergency oxygen-giving device to house a 20-gallon, 60- ute "controlled-flow" oxygen supply inside a four-inch round ainer, weighing only 32 es. A full-hour supply for ms of cardiac attacks and emergency situations has ously been available only cylinder-shape "continu- flow" apparatus, as heavy 25 pounds.

Patent rights to the formula for producing the new high strength steel (which involves precisely-controlled additions of the once-rare earth element, columbium) are being sought, reports Mr. Wilfred D. "Our new steel's contribution to the engineering accomplishment which brings this medical-aid advance to reality," said Mr. MacDonnell, "dramatizes the progress being made each day from efforts to create new, so-called tailor-made steels — steels with specific physical qualities for adaptation to specific end-product engineering and design requirements.

"It reflects the increased emphasis being given to opening new steel markets by seeking out individual customer needs, rather than restricting the customer's product development and improvement opportunities to existing steel-making knowledge."

ience gained in rural development counties has shown that many farmers who are regularly employed off the farm can profitably use the Farmers Home Administration's credit facilities to increase the farm portions of their total incomes. The regulation, which had limited credit assistance to farmers who spend most of their time farming, prevented some from obtaining the maximum income from their farms and from taking advantage of opportunities for industrial and other off-farm employment.

Other Requirements Unchanged—

Applicants must have sufficient farm experience to carry on sound farm operations, must need credit, and be unable to obtain financial assistance from other sources. As in the past, credit will be extended only to operators of farms that are family-type size or smaller.

No loan will be made unless a plan for the coming year's farming operations shows that income from the farm and other sources will be large enough to enable the farm family to have a reasonable standard of living, pay debts, and have an adequate reserve for emergencies.

Loan funds may be used to pay farm operating costs, purchase equipment and livestock, pay farm development costs, and refinance certain debts. The interest rate is five percent. Repayment schedules depend upon the purposes for which funds are advanced and upon the estimated incomes from the farms. Usually, loans made for real estate purposes will be from funds advanced by private lenders and insured by the agency.

The Farmers Home Administration office serving Chilton County is located in the Higgins Building at Clanton. The agency also supplies credit for farm housing and soil and water conesrvation.

A dug pond was completed on the James Roscoe Farm recently. This pond was designed to take care of 60 cows.

Monroe Boles, of Mount Carmel Community shouldn't have any trouble with his livestock about water, a nice dug pond was finished on his place the past month and is almost full.

J. D. Robinson, out on the Higgins Ferry Road said "I like the combination of Bahia, reseeding crimson clover and rescue grass, and I plan to plant the land I have cleared to it."

Fescue grass, treated properly, will furnish lots of good grazing during the winter months, and this is one of the practices which M. R. Oates is following. He is seeding 30 acres to this grass.

C. F. Harper, of Providence Community, set 8 acres to Coastal Bermuda grass recently.

Jimm Mims of Clanton, has asked to help in making a complete soil and water conservation plan on his place.

Some Figures And Facts From CCHS Vo-Ag. Classes

Much valuable feed goes to waste every fall. Four hundred to five hundred pound feeder calbes will gain at least 1 pound per day on fall pastures, according to the Clanton Vo-Ag Department.

Yearling cattle can help salvage corn picker losses. Yearling heifers gained 2.5 to 3 lbs. per day on stalks with protein supplement, says J. Reed Thompson, local Vo-Ag instructor.

Cattle Markets are firming up: The average corn yield for Alabama for 1960 is the same as last year 28 bushels per acre as compared to 51.5 bushels for the U. S.

The estimated cottin yield per acre in Alabama this year is 425 pounds of lint.

Prospects remain favorable, according to the Vo-Ag Department at CCHS, for a record total crop production. A near frostless September, even in northern areas, allowed late crops to gain needed maturity.

Local Agriculture Students Compare Farming 1800 - 1960

Vocational agriculture students in the Ag. I Class at Chilton County High Schol have been exploring the complex field of agriculture in 1960 during a unit of study on agricultural orientation, reports vo-ag teacher J. Reed Thompson.

A comparison of today's farms and rural living conditions with those of the 1800's revealed that our grandfathers could find little on our modern farms that would be familiar to them.

Another comparison made was that in 1850 a Chilton Connty farm worker supporten only 4 persons while todays prodhction by a single worker supports 24.

This is accounted for by larger farms and more machinery.

Teacher J. Reed Thompson says that the study also revealed that 40 percent of our working force is employed in some phase of agriculture but of this number only 11 per cent are actually farmers.

The students loked at the great number of jobs available in agriculture and discussed the desirable characteristics of a job along with personal qualities necessary to make a success of a chosen occupation. Education needed aws also considered and students urged to start now preparing to get the training necessary for the job htey want.

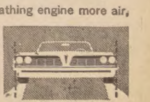
THE '61 PONTIAC IS HERE!

It's All Pontiac! on a new Wide-Track!

New track-to-body proportion! The track is the width between the wheels. Pontiac has the widest track of any car. And now that we've trimmed body-width, more weight is balanced directly between the wheels. You ride with greater poise, maneuver with firmer control.

More room, more comfort inside! Headroom, legroom and footroom have been increased. Seats are higher, yet there's more clearance under the steering wheel. Doors are wider, swing open farther with no jutting barriers to bump as you get in and out.

Powered by the new, fuel-saving Trophy V-8 Engine! New fuel induction-system gives this new free-breathing engine more air, makes gas go further. Eleven versions to select from. Horsepowers range from 215 to 348. For best economy, specify the Trophy Economy V-8. Its lower compression ratio lets you use regular gas. It's the Wide-Track way to travel! Try it!



THE ONLY WIDE-TRACK CAR! Pontiac has the widest track of any car. Body width trimmed to reduce side overhang. More weight balanced between the wheels for sure-footed driving stability.

Poll Says Kennedy Stirs Young Voters

Surveys showing a strong trend among young voters toward Senator Kennedy, and intensified efforts by Democrats to mobilize the younger generation, were among the campaign righlights as the Presidential race turned into the final stretch.

Kennedy leads 2 to 1 among young voters, the Gallup Poll indicated. Its analysis, published late in September, showed Kennedy getting the support of 61 per cent of the voters in the 21-to-29 age category, as compared to 39 per cent for Nixon.

Other soundings revealed a like trend, according to Roy Schafer, President of the Young Democratic Clubs of America.

He anounced that Roy Jacobson, President of the District of Columbia Young Democrats, had been named National New Voters Chairman to spearhead a nation-wide drive to register, inform and get out the votes of more than eight million young persons eligible to vote in their first Presidential election. The drive was highlighted by the National First Voters Month, Sept. 10 - Oct. 10.

LIBERAL WIRING ALLOWANCE To Help YOU Install An Electric CLOTHES DRYER

(If your outside wiring needs to be heavier)

Even on rainy or cloudy days, with an ELECTRIC clothes dryer your laundry will be "Electrically-fresh" — as near as you can come to "sunshine-fresh". The gentle tumbling action and even heat of an ELECTRIC dryer finishes your clothes so soft, sweet, fresh and fluffy that many need no ironing! With a FLAMELESS ELECTRIC clothes dryer you don't have to lug heavy bundles of clothes. An ELECTRIC clothes dryer means more time for you to do other things.

See the new ELECTRIC clothes dryers at our nearest store or your appliance dealer's.

Here's the LIBERAL WIRING ALLOWANCE Offer!

If your outside wiring needs to be heavier, we will make a liberal allowance toward the installation of an ELECTRIC clothes dryer, ELECTRIC water heater, ELECTRIC range, or ELECTRIC heating, whether bought new or used, from us or an ELECTRIC appliance dealer.

This offer, which includes installation of the Outdoor Housepower Box and applies anywhere in our service area, also applies if you already own one or more of the listed appliances which you are moving to a new location.

SEE where one columnist quoted former President Harry Truman on the Republican charge that he was giving them a bad time. Said Mr. Truman: "The Republicans say I'm giving them H — — —. That's not so; I'm just telling the truth, and they think it's H — — —!".

WELL, October's 'bright blue weather' finally arrived, but it was so long in coming, we hope it lasts on into November. This is beautiful weather we're having. (At the time of this writing).

NEW businesses are going up around Clanton and Chilton County by the several. . . No doubt looking forward to the prosperity which we all hope for during the next four years and decade.

IF, by now, you can't stand up and openly declare that you are for this or against that in the coming campaign, then you don't know enough about the coming election!

Baa, Baa, Black Sheep---

WE hear a lot of comment from the Republican supporting press that the Democrats have turned their backs on the South; that the South shouldn't be loyal to those who have 'used' them. We would like to ask these 'would be' Republicans what they expect to gain by their Republican choice.

The Republicans want their vote and influence for sure, but if they think that alone is going to buy them a front seat in the Party they had better take a look at history. Has it ever helped the South for Democrats to sashay over to the Republican camp? In fact, once their vote is counted, they won't even be recognized as supporters.

We feel that if we stay in the folds of our Party we'll at least know what the sheep are doing and we can fight a much better fight for the rights in which we put stock. A certainty is that we cannot fight from without—in the goats camp!

If we can be heard, and can make sense, there is always a chance that they will listen and once they listen, we will have won our fight.

The new found friends of the Republicans in the South are just that. . . new found and untried. And their constituents are 'fair weather' to boot. When the chips are down we doubt completely that they will be recognized as bona fide Party members.

Trick or Treat For Someone Besides Yourself---

THE churches of the community in Clanton, and some of the neighboring communities have joined hands in an effort to halt so much senseless and aggrating Trick or Treating and also to held underprivileged children overseas through UNICEF (United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund).

Churches in the Clanton area taking part in this 'Trick or Treat For UNICEF' drive are: Clanton First Methodist, Clanton First Baptist, Clanton Episcopal, Presbyterian, Church of Christ, First Assembly of God, Catholic, West End Baptist, Northside Baptist and the Seventh Day Adventist Churches.

Local organizer, Mss Helen Parrish, asks that we stress to the general public that 'official' UNICEF Trick or Treaters will have milk cartons with a stamp on them identifying them as legitimate volunteers. If you're the cautious type, get 'em to show you their official stamp.

The main purpose of course, is to help children who don't have milk, drugs and food to get these necessities through the United Nations program—a good cause indeed!

It is also our sincere hope that parents, teachers and anyone with any influence will get the point over to our children that this senseless Trick or Treating that they have been indulging in the past few years is selfish and they can turn it into a good thing by joining the UNICEF campaign and helping someone less fortunate who haven't ever seen a piece of candy or a Trick or Treat funny mask.

The kids will follow, if we adults will lead—but we must lead!

By the way, that's this coming Saturday night, so watch for the young UNICEF'ers and make some contribution if it's only a friendly smile to kinda boost their feelings--they'll do a better job and you'll feel good about it all!

We Owe A Debt---

FAST approaching is the day on which our whole political system is based, the day when the free choice of the people will decide the course of government.

If you haven't registered, it is too late; hang your head in shame. If you haven't decided between candidates, do it now Only a coward is afraid to decide! If you have made your choices, review them to be sure they are the best that can be made. Ask yourself: If I knew that the entire elections hinged on my single ballot, how would I vote?

We hope you will vote for candidates who combine strong purpose with careful judgement. It is essential that we keep a high level of national defense and of state and local public services. It is equally essential to avoid excessive government spending which would lead to economic weakness through heavier taxes, higher debt and more inflation.

On Election Day, let no petty dissaatisfaction with candidates or parties, no minor inconvenience of weather, or health, or distance, or other business, keep you from the polls. Our ballot was bought with blood and sacrifice by past Americans. Using it—and using it wisely—is a debt we owe our nation, ourselves and the future Americans who will inherit it. VOTE on November 8th!

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

THIS IS JESUS' DAY

Three friends of Jesus—Lazarus, Mary and Martha—lived in Bethany, a small village near Jerusalem. Jesus visited them often.

One day Lazarus became ill. He was stricken so that his sisters feared he would die. They sent for Jesus, expecting Him to come immediately to the bedside of their brother.

But Jesus continued His ministry where He was. When He finally arrived in Bethany, Lazarus had been dead for four days. A grief-stricken Martha met Jesus and said, "If only you had been here, Lord, my brother would not have died."

Jesus answered her, "Your brother will rise again from the dead."

But Martha felt that God was too late. She thought of God in terms of human reasoning and had decided that not even God could help now.

We, as human beings, often do the same thing. We say, "God might have healed cancer symptoms, but now that cancer is spread throughout the body, there is no hope."

But Christ said, "You say that I'm too late. I tell you I'm not too late. Lazarus will rise again. I am the resurrection and the life. This is my day."

Let the world hear it; this is Jesus' day. What He would have done yesterday, He is fully able and willing to do right now. This is the day when Jesus bares His mighty arm of power, when He breathes love and compassion toward all mankind. This is Jesus' day.

Jesus had Martha lead Him to Lazarus' tomb. And as she walked with Jesus, she began to believe. When they arrived at the tomb, Jesus commanded that the stone door be rolled away.

Picture this scene: The omnipotent Son of the living God has walked up to the tomb of the dead, with love and confidence. He has inspired belief and caused the stone to be rolled away from the tomb. Now He turns to the tomb and says with a loud voice, "Lazarus, come forth." And the dead Lazarus hears the voice of the living God and walks out, with new life flowing through his body.

My friend, if you listen with an ear of faith, you can hear that same voice saying to you, "Come forth from your bondage, your sin, your bad habits and wrong believing, from the sickness of your body, the torment of your mind. I will cleanse you and heal you. I will give you abundant life."

This is Jesus' day. You and I are living in it. All the power and glory of God are in effect today.

KENNEDY SEEKS REAL ANSWERS

Announcing the support of Kennedy for President in an editorial appraisrl of the rival candidates, the Milwaukee Journal said, in part:

'First there is the character of the campaign. Nixon worries about the 'image' he brings to the voters —his wife, his dog, his home, his past. These things Kennedy ignores He is a serious man trying to find real answers to serious problems.

'Nixon holds that 'all's right with the world' under Eisenhower—or almost right. The theme worked well in 1956. Where he has differed with the Administration that he defends, and he has differed on some issues, it seldom involves facing up to domestic, world problems to the degree that is needed. His is the 'peace and prosperity' argument. But peace is uneasy and prosperity still eludes many of our people. He is not above such tactics as linking war and Democrats.

'Kennedy has shown a sense of historic direction and a concern about isues and approaches them soberly. His theme is that while we are still the world's strongest and wealthiest nation we are not living up to our potential. He is outspokenly 'not satisfied' with our progress. And he cites chapter and verse from an impressive number of government and private studies of the past several years to show why no one should be satisfied. . .

'In John F. Kennedy the voters have a man with a first class mind, a man concerned with the issues and not with what he conceives to be the popular view. He is a student of government and of the world articulate and experienced. He has a program and the determination to lead America back to a position of pride, strength and primacy.'

THINGS We see and hear

by BOB

OUR young son Benji has for a long time, used the term 'like wildfire to express his opinion of someone really getting with it! The only thing, the way he says it, it sounds like 'wildfaar', but he usually makes his point anyway. Saturday we saw three or four young ladies working over in the old Sumrall Building across from the News and Benji's term fited the situation to a T. Boy, those gals were working like 'wildfaar', scrubbing, washing windows, sweeping, etc., etc. Don't know what they're building for over there, but were sure anxious to see what makes anyone really work like 'wildfaar'!

MR. Semmie Scott has really got himself a beautiful setup in his new building on Hwy. 31 south across from Ed Bowden and the Cloverleaf Motel. If you haven't, you should go by and get him to show you through. He's mighty proud of his new home and he's worked mighty hard and served the folks of Chilton County long for his new place. Mr. Semmie says he feels like a rich man now. He can drive right up to his back door and doesn't have to walk two blocks to bet to his place of business. And he meant it too, he does feel like a rich man. . . except for the mortgage of course!!

MR. Clyde Mims came in the other morning all hot under the collar about his subscription to the News not being out when we said it was. We don't know who won that argument, but we got his renewal for a year and he seemed satisfied with the whole deal! To antagonize the situation, it seems that just the night before some unobliging police officers had called Mr. Clyde's attention to a Stop Sign (which he claims he didn't see) to the tune of five smackers. Well I never, it's bad on a fellow when a Stop sign he sees costs him five dollars, but when he doesn't even get to see it, well what's this world coming to anyhow? The least they could have done was show him the Stop sign he run. . . you know, we'll bet they did just that!

ONE Bill Hays, barber extraordinary (he knocks little balls around too) has challenged us to a duel on the greens at the Clanton Country Club. It seems, when we mentioned the other day something about golfers, it hit a sore spot. Yep, he's an incurable addict of the ball and club society and is somewhat touchy about it. He had the audacity to tell us to our face that we didn't know anything about golf—a fact which we readily here and now concede—and also wanted to teach us a little something. Well, he's bigger'n we are, and since we didn't know what it was that he wanted to teach us, we politely made our exit with our 'birdies' still intact. What we said the other day still goes, 'since we made no atempt to tell anybody how to play golf. Now, if it was cutting hair, we could tell you something about that, 'cause we've got some. Anyway Bill you don't want to ruin a perfectly good golf club on us, and we know it!

A LOT of people, who don't usually have much to do with any kind of religion, are having quite a lot to say about it lately and with astounding degrees of authority. No, it's not bigotry. It's genuine 100 percent pure hypocrisy. We all understand what hypocrisy is, wish somebody would figure out a way to squash it!

THE crowds at the Democratic Rally Tuesday night proved one thing for sure. Chilton County has a reputation of voting Republican, but the votes in this election haven't been counted yet, and a new era could be dawning for our County and the rest of the South.

MAKE a note of the advertisement in this week's issue about Christmas cards and if you've been planning to subscribe to the News but haven't got around to it yet heres your chance to cash in on a real bargain. Christmas cards for the coming season and 52 or 104 weeks of 'Your Community Newspaper' all in the same package and for the same price! We've seen the cards and they're real purty!

"DICK IS TRICKY" SAYS MR. NAISH

One of the greatest, if not the greatest crises in the career of 'Tricky Dick' Nixon came in the afternoon of September 18, 1952 at the heighth of his first campaign for the Vice-Presidency.

On that afternoon the New York Post reported an $18,235 expense fund given to 'Trick Dick' by a 'millionaires club' of California oil men, real estate operators, bankers and high powered industrialists.

Nixon immediately denounced the expose' as a Communist smear. He had stated, shortly before to a news gatherer for the Kansas City Star that his only income was from his salary as a Senator. When this expose' became tempestuous, Nixon took to the air in a TV broadcast, the like of which had never been resorted to by any candidate. In it, beside him sat his graceful and charming wife. In his broadcast Nixon related his hard struggle to buy a $41,000.00 house and meekly pointed to his wife's 'respectable Republican cloth coat' He told how he used the $18,235.00 gift, 'only for political expenses' and charged that the Democratic leaders wanted only rich men to be Senators. (Time out please, while we laugh). Much later and too late, the voters awoke to the fact that 'Tricky Dick' had tricked them again. He was elected. (They began to cry too late!)

In September 1955 Nixon told a group of New York TV executives about how much preparation is needed to create 'an efficient, off-the-cuff' appearance on TV, and then explained that his 1952 telecast was put off two days to allow time for thorough rehearsals so as to 'create suspense' in the audience. Hollywood's Edward A. (Ted) Rogers was hired to drill the camera crews and according to reports, Mrs. Nixon was coached on how to keep a 'set half smile'. This was stage acting in the final degree, that only 'Tricky Dick' would have conceived and employed such trickery.

Thus was born the cognoman (so fittingly) 'Tricky Dick'.

"Nixon spent the $18,235.00 first for campaign expenses. Then he stated 'it he had not received this contribution, he would have been unable to make a due payment on his $41,000.00 home.' How many other uses will he find for this contribution? If he will accept such funds from such people, what did he give or promise to give in return? How will he react to such funds for so many different reaons and causes if he should become President? Can he ever outlive the sobriquet 'Tricky Dick'? Just how far would he go in setting the stage to create 'suspense' and false impressions on the people?

Nixon's record shows that he is no friend of working people, farmers, old folks, help for education, low ernt housing or anything else that might help anyone except the Big Business Moguls.

Dana Smith who collected this slush fund (-18,235.00) ably describes 'Tricky Dick' as 'at times Nixon's words seem to express the noblest thoughts. At other times, when it seems advantageous, he uses words for innuendo, smear and masked untruths. He is a superb political salesman. That his gift is really 'salesmanship'.'

This reveals the True Richard Nixon. Do we need this sort of 'play acting' deceit, white tie, long tailed coat and rouged cheeks in the White House?

Mrs. Nixon now owns a fitted black Persian broadtail coat, a desert gold mink stole and a white mink evening stole, besides her 'respectable Republican cloth coat. How's 'Tricky Dick' doing?

On foreign affairs he presents a double image. One is the 'chance-taker' employing bluster and threat and the other poses in the role of a cool, experienced leader in a troubled world. Which of these character roles will he follow if eected President or will he remain the same old 'Tricky Dick', presenting first one side and then the other in order to keep the nation 'in suspense' making imaginary justifications for the pose best fitted to the subject?

We certainly do not need a comedy stage in the White House or any play acting to fool the people either.

Yours truly,
G. S. NAISH

LET US FORD DEALERS SHOW YOU THE MOST MAINTENANCE-FREE FORD IN HISTORY

OUR '61 FORDS ARE BEAUTIFULLY BUILT TO TAKE CARE OF THEMSELVES... AND TO TAKE CARE OF YOU BY CUTTING COSTS, ELIMINATING MANY SERVICE STOPS!

No doubt about it, the 1961 Ford is a beautiful automobile. But the really big news is the way it can save you money!

For instance, in the '61 Ford you'll normally go 30,000 miles between chassis lubrications. Then, a quick, inexpensive Ford Dealer lube job (about $4.00) will get you set for another 30,000 miles. You'll go 4,000 miles between oil changes with Ford's Full-Flow oil filter. Ford's powerful, new Truck Size brakes save, too, for they adjust themselves automatically for the life of the lining. And Ford's double-wrapped, aluminized muffler normally lasts up to 3 times longer than the ordinary kind.

Add to these features the fact that Ford's Diamond Lustre Finish never needs waxing, and you have a car that can save you plenty in maintenance costs. And remember, we Ford Dealers were the first to extend our warranty on '61 cars to 12,000 miles or one full year, whichever comes first. Ask your dealer to show you the details.

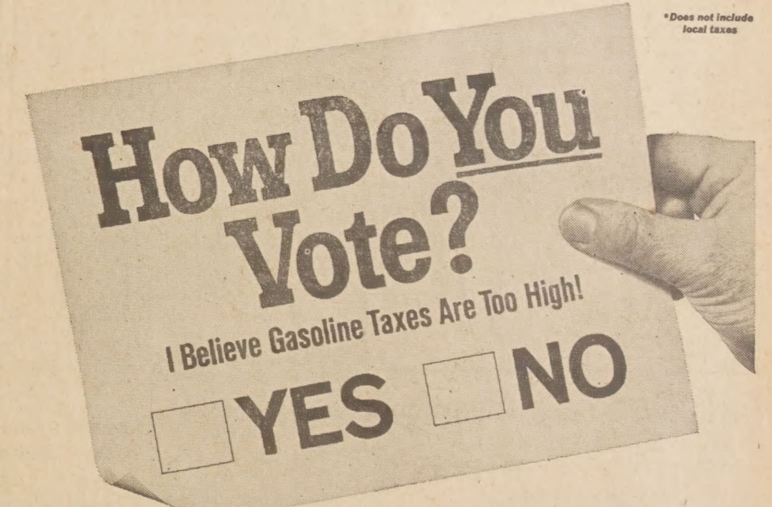
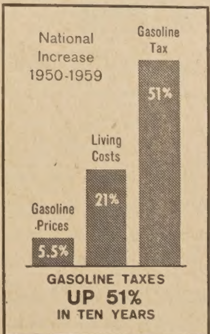
IN ALABAMA YOU PAY $$1^{10}$* TAX ON TEN GALLONS OF GASOLINE!

*Does not include local taxes



How Do You Vote?
I Believe Gasoline Taxes Are Too High!
☐ YES ☐ NO

HOW DID YOU VOTE?
No matter how you voted, these facts on gasoline taxes are important to you:



● In Alabama, car owners pay $1.10 in State and Federal taxes alone on every 10 gallons of gasoline they buy!

● Gasoline taxes across the nation amount to a 50% sales tax—and that's five times as high as the tax rate on luxuries like diamonds and mink coats!

● Since World War II, there have been three increases in the Federal gasoline tax alone. This brought the Federal tax to 4 cents a gallon, in addition to the State tax of 7 cents a gallon, plus local taxes.

● In the last ten years gasoline taxes have skyrocketed 51%—yet the price of gasoline itself has risen only 5.5% during the same period!

● Each year the average motor vehicle owner in this state pays $84 for gasoline taxes alone. That's just a few dollars less than the average week's pay for most people!

HIGHWAYS AND GASOLINE TAXES

Your gasoline retailer, naturally, favors construction of the roads that the motoring public needs. He believes in fair and reasonable taxation for this purpose but feels that taxes on gasoline have now reached unreasonably high levels. He also believes that all special taxes on the motorist should be used only for highway purposes. Yet last year, out of every automobile tax dollar collected by the Federal Government from highway users, more than 40 cents went for non-highway purposes. If these automotive tax revenues were dedicated for highway purposes, there would be no need for the latest increase in the federal gasoline tax.

The Gasoline You Buy Is Taxed Too HIGH!

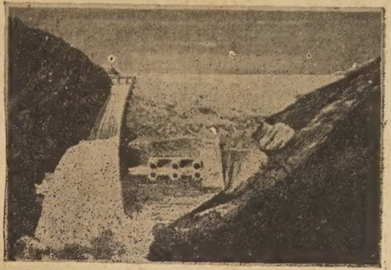
Iraqi Dam Spells Progress



Iraq's Darabandkhan Dam which is now under construction 45 miles southwest of Sulaimania, while not as ambitious a project as the UAR's High Dam at Aswan, is certainly indicative of the progress and development in which the entire Arab world is presently engaged.

The new Iraqi dam when completed will be 442.91 feet high and 1,558.29 feet in length. More than 5 million cubic yards of construction material will be consumed in the project. The installation of the bases and supports for the dam will require the removal of about 5 million cubic yards of earth as well.

The reservoir which will be formed by the dam will encompass an area of some 30 square miles and will have a total capacity enabling it to store more than 3.5 billion cubic yards of water.

The hydroelectric plant which is being built in conjunction with the dam will be capable of producing 112,000 kilowatts of electricity annually for use in Iraqi industry and to light homes inexpensively.

The project which will cost more than $24 million is scheduled for completion during 1960.

National Automobile Show

Thinking of buying a new car? Or do you just like to browse? Either way, you'll like the 43rd National Automobile Show. It will be in Detroit, Oct. 15-23 — the first major public exhibit at the city's brand new Cobo Hall.

The first show was held in 1900. The idea was to have one every year, but in 1940 World War II broke the string. The only show held since that time was in 1956.

At the first show in 1900, American automobile manufacturers had a problem. Before they could sell cars they had to sell people the idea that the automobile was here to stay. There was already a thriving automobile industry in Europe — especially in France — but American innovators were still tinkering with "horseless carriages."

How to promote a new kind of travel? Get people to try it.

So the sponsor of the first show — the Automobile Club of America — offered demonstration rides on a track of wooden planks laid down in New York's Madison Square Garden.

There was no track at the second show. The big thing was the three-way contest between the electric motor, the steam engine, and the "explosion" engine (as it was then called).

Guess which one won.

Incidentally, in those days everyone who drove was called a "chauffeur." There were no women drivers, so no "chauffeuses."

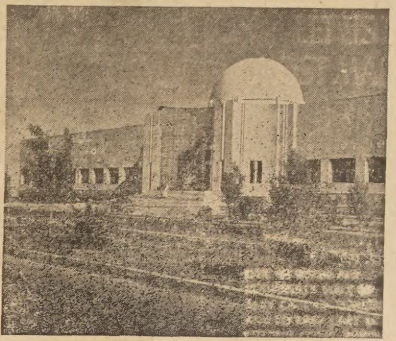
Riyadh

City of the Future



New municipality building in Riyadh, progressive capital of Saudi Arabia.

Until very recently, the Saudi Arabian city of Riyadh was as dreary and brown as the desert which surrounds it. Most of the houses were of mud-brick and the streets were foot paths, too narrow for cars to use.

But there is new sparkle and enthusiasm in Riyadh today as architects and builders work to create a modern capital on the site of the old city. The dream of King Saud, who planned the new city, is fast becoming a reality.

Broad asphalt-paved boulevards now divide the city. Sparkling white government buildings; a magnificently furnished royal palace; and spacious villas have already been built. Everywhere workmen are hammering, painting and digging to construct the new metropolis. Long rows of trees are being planted and shopping centers constructed to replace the ancient bazaars.

Six public gardens have been planned for Riyadh, and a zoo has been established. A gypsum plant is under construction; a tile plant is already operating; and a job printing firm now publishes a weekly newspaper and a variety of pamphlets and books.

Riyadh has three new hotels which are air conditioned throughout, with five-station radio speakers in each room, along with swimming pools, roof gardens, and luxurious lounges. A 65-bed hospital which is among the most modern in the Middle East has also been built.

Indicative of Riyadh's faith in the future is King Saud University, the first four-year university to be established in Saudi Arabia, which will graduate its first class in 1961. Riyadh also has seven public schools, an elementary teachers institute, and an industrial school.

The building program becomes even more impressive when one realizes that the building materials were gathered from points throughout the world, and that they had to be transported across the desert by rail. The rate of construction is so rapid that Riyadh ranks as the most quickly established seat of government in recorded history.

NEW STEEPLE TO GO UP THIS MONTH

ABOUT two years ago the West End Baptist Church in Clanton initiated a $75,000 bond drive for the purpose of building and equipping a new educational building.

'Presently', according to spokesmen for the church, 'we have about $15,000 worth of unsold bonds. It is our purpose to sell the remainder of these bonds to complete and redecorate the old educational unit and to provide further facilities for our work. We have at present in our building fund enough money to erect a steeple on our church which is currently under construction and to be delivered within the next month.

'Rev. J. Thomas Tolar, the new pastor, has been on the field for almost three months. Every phase of our church activities has increased substantially. The all time attendance records of both the Sunday School and Training Union have been broken several times during this period.

'The bonds we have for sale are church debenture bonds, bearing 5% interest, payable on May 1 and November 1 of each year. The original bond issue was for a period of 13½ years.

Anyone interested in purchasing some of these bonds can contact some member of the church or call 339 for further information.'

Telephone Talk

W. R. Waters

Your Telephone Manager

OVERSEAS TELEPHONE SERVICE came into being back in 1927. The first call connected New York and London by use of radio waves. At that time the charge for a three-minute call came to $75.00. The first reduction in this rate was made within a year. As increased usage and operating economies developed, further reductions were made. Today the cost of a telephone call from Clanton to most overseas points is $12 for three minutes on week-days.

Americans place about 40 percent of their overseas calls to nations of this hemisphere. Thirty percent of their calls go out to Pacific Ocean islands and the Orient. Europe receives 25 per cent of our overseas calls and the remaining 5 percent go to remote countries and ships on the high seas.

At the present time, about 1400 ocean-going vessels maintain contact with trans-ocean shore stations. About 60 of these ships account for the bulk of the traffic. They are the ones that carry most American travelers on junkets of business or pleasure through the Atlantic, Pacific and Mediterranean.

Firemen serving your area are on the alert around the clock to guard your family's safety and to protect your property.

Help them by removing fire hazards. Destroy old newspapers and oily rags. Have your electrical wiring checked periodically. Keep matches out of children's reach.

And remember, in case of fire or any other emergency, your telephone is the fastest way to summon help.

HAVE YOU EVER WISHED for a device which would enable you to answer your door without interrupting your work? Well it's here in the form of the new Home Interphone. Now you can answer your door by telephone and talk from room to room. Come by or call the Clanton business office for details. Be sure to ask about the Bell Chime, a musical invitation to answer the nearest phone. Find out about complete home telephone service!

SCORE 20-6—

CLANTON CHEWS UP PRATTVILLE

Elliott Monroe, Clanton's hard running fullback led the Chilton County Tigers to a 20-6 victory over Prattville last Friday night at Prattville.

Clanton scoed first with Elliott Monroe carrying the ball up the middle for 60 yards and the tally. Gene Roach tried for the extra point but failed. On Clanton's TD drive the Tigers moved 80 yards in five plays.

Clanton kicked off to Prattville. The Lions returned, but fumbled on the next play and Clanton recovered.

As the second quarter started, Quarterback John Will Wyatt passed to Elliott Monroe for the second Tiger touchdown. The play covered 32 yards. John Will Wyatt ran the extra point across. The first half ended with Clanton leading by a score of 13-0.

Clanton received in the third quarter with Tommy Shelton moving the ball twenty yards upfield. With Wyatt, Shelton, Monroe and Mims Clanton scored again. Mike Mims carried for the touchdown on a 22 yard run. Gene Roach added one point by converting making the score 20-0.

Prattville's only score came in the fourth quarter. Quarteback Shon Seamon eceived a pass from halfback Randy Breedlove. Seamon also tried for the extra point, but failed.

This ended the scoring for the evening.

Clanton's line should be commended for their outstanding offensive play. Elliott Monroe summed up the line like this: 'There were holes big enough to drive a truck through tonight.' The line was composed of Melvin Billingsley, Jerry Vines, Tommy Tiffin, Thomas Earl Mims, Norton LeCroy, Curtis Deason and Johnny Mims.

The Tigers will play Isabella next Friday night, November 4, 1960 at seven thirty.

Associational Sing Huge Success

The Associational fifth Sunday hymn sing, which was conducted at Jemison Baptist church, last Snuday, was very inspiring gospel music service. A large crowd atended it. This hymn sing is designed to encourage and inspre the churches to organize their choirs, and special singers, and to use Gospel music in all of their church programs of worship and devotion. It should also prove a blessing to the pianists, organists, and other instrumentalist. It is the desire of the music department officers to get all the singers of the churches on the program from time to time. The next fifth Sunday hymn sing will be held January 29, 1961. Rev. Louis Brasher, is director.

Depressed Areas In State Are Increasing

"Which Alabama city will be added next to the growing list of depressed areas in the State?" Governor John Patterson asked today.

In a statement made through State Democratic Headquarters, Alabama's governor referred to the fact that Birmingham had been declared a depressed area "at a time when the Republican party is campaigning throught the nation saying that we have never had it so good."

Patterson pointed out that (1) Jasper had been on the Labor Department's list of areas of substantial labor surplus during the entire Eisenhower-Nixon Administration; (2) Florence-Sheffield and Gadsden have been on the list since the February 1958 recession; (3) Talladega, since January 1953; and now (4) Birmingham in September 1960.

"Republican trickle down policies designed to favor business at the top with little of the god trickling down to the man in the street, have resulted in a situation bordering on economic disaster for these Alabama cities," Patterson said.

"It was these same policies that in 1929 resulted in the depression and justifiably the end of Republican reign in the country for 20 years," Patterson said. "Are we going to stop the Republicans this time or are we going to wait until it is too late?'

FHA Superviser Lists Loan Rules

Issac C. Byrd, local supervisor for the Farmers Home Adminstration, this week named four points that successful farmers follow in making good use of credit.

His statement was part of a review of 21 years of experience in the farm credit field, and was made at a training meeting of Farmers Home Administration county committeemen held at Clanton.

First, a succesful farmer plans every step he is going to take, figures costs carefully, and borrows only as much as he needs.

Second, he considers both price and quality when buying, gets several cost estimates, and compares the relative value of new and second hand equipment.

Third, he borrows only to finance money making enterprises.

Fourth, he builds up a good credit rating. He plans his payments to come due when income will be available for debt payment. He takes proper care of security property. He makes his payments when due.

Mr. Byrd said these credit principles gain yearly in impotrance as farming becomes mire complex and farm costs increase.

Halloween Festive Occasion At Billingsley

THE Halloween Carnival was quite a success at Billingsley High School. Everyone agreed that the climax of the evening was the crowning of the King and Queen and the Prince and Princess.

Rosanell Campbell, the Queen of Halloween last year, crowned Chas. DeRamus and Brenda Smith in High School and Rita Coppedge, last year's Princess crowned Dale Carter and Ann Donohoo, Prince and Princess in the Elementary School.

Congratulations to the new royalty and the Committee for Halloween wishes to thank all merchants, business firms and parents for their contributions and support.

Try A 'Paradise' Sundae

Any excuse for a "sundae" for dessert is a good excuse! A with canned pears and a bottle of maple-blended syrup on cupboard shelves (and, of course, ice cream in the freezer!) can make a wonderful jumbo-size sundae in a jiffy. You also substitute canned peachhalves for the pears . . . or a smaller serving use only 1 peach half in bottom of sherb dish and fill it with ice cream. Note: Pears baked in this manne are delicious, served hot from the oven, with cold sour cream.

MAPLE-PEAR SUNDAE

- 8 canned Bartlett pear halves, drained
- 4 teaspoons butter or margarine
- ⅓ cup Log Cabin Syrup
- ½ cup canned pear syrup
- ½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup whipping cream
- 1 to 2 tablespoons map blended syrup
- 1 pint vanilla ice cream

Place pears, cut-side up, in greased shallow baking dish. Pl ½ teaspoon of the butter in center of each. Combine ⅓ c maple-blended syrup, the pear syrup, cinnamon, and salt. P over pears. Place under broiler 5 to 10 minutes, or until are thoroughly heated. Or bake in moderate oven (375°F minutes.

BEAN SEES DEMO VICTORY

Louis H. Bean, the Washington economist who was one of the few to predict Truman's upset victory over Dewey in 1948, said on Oct. 18 that his studies indicated a Democratic victory next month.

Kennedy's prospects are good in the big electoral states of New York, California, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Illinois, he said. Current polls and past voting trends also point to the likelihood of the Democratic nominee winning most of the South's 113 electoral votes, Bean added.

Storage Space Galore Back of Closet Door

Auburn, Ala.—Look behind the closet door for storage space! A pegboard lining on the inside of the cleaning closet door will hold hooks for racks for keeping small equipment, tools, dust cloths, cans, and bottles, says Elizabeth Bryan, Auburn home management specialist. And the back of the coat closet door wil hold a bag for gloves, scarves, and caps.

The bedroom closet door is handy for racks for ties, belts, shoes, socks, handkerchiefs, and handbags. And the children's closet door is a perfect place for the toy rack.

$100 MILLION BEING SPENT ON FEDERAL PO

Nearly 5,000 post office buildings have been constructed since the launching of the Department's modern improvement program by Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield shortly after his appointment to this position by President Eisenhower in 1953.

In an announcement on this subject by Postmaster R. R. Sutley, it was pointed out that while these facilities have been equipped and furnished by the Department, the buildings themselves are either leased or rented in line with the completely new policy which has been closely followed during the past seven years.

On the basis of this experience, it is estimated that at least 1,600 new buildings will ge added to this total during the current fiscal year.

It was explained that this program not only reduces the government's original expenditure substanially but also means substantial additions to the tax bills in the communities where the new structures are located since they are not tax-exempt.

"This type of operation has resulted in more and more new mail handling each year since it was first inaugurated," Postmaster Sutley said, "and it is my understanding that the annual report which is now being prepared will reveal a new all time high for the fiscal year 1960 ending June 30 when agreements were signed for 1,602 new buildings costing a little over $100,000,000. We have been told that this is part of a program to completely modernize between 12,000 and 15,000 postal facilities during the next few years.

Since 1953 in Alabama alone, we have built 92 new post offices at a cost of $2,853,000. "In addition to the fact that we are getting more and more brand new buildings, it is doubtful if the Post Office Depatrment was ever before as careful in making preliminary scientific and engineering checks and surveys in order to be sure that the new facilities will adequately take care of present postal needs in their various communities, and future growth as well. And as a clear indication of just how much more rapidly this new program is being carried out the new building total for fiscal 1959 was 655 representing a total investment by private industry of approximately 762,000,000."

As an indication of the type of agreements negotiater during fiscal 1960, it was stated that 1,125 of them approximately 75 per cent were on a lease basis while the remainder were for new buildings but on a monthly rental basis in order to simplify a change should it become necessary.

With reference to the facility improvement, Postmaster Sutley also pointed out that in addition to the new buildings being made available under the commercial leasing program, the Department completed plans during fiscal 1960 for modernizing post offices located in 106 federal buildings throughout the United States and that plans are already under way for 31 similar projects.

"While some of these figures may not be finally approved until the actual completion of the annual report for fiscal 1960.' Postmaster Sutley said, "there was a recent speech before a national convention of post office personnel by Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield in which he presented some interesting statistics as a clear indication of just how the postal service has been improved in the past seven and a half years is now handling the biggest volume of mail in its history in the most economical and efficient manner on record.

"While I won't attempt to tell the whole story, it might be of some interest to mention that with the implementation of more than 80 'Metropolitan Areas' serving some 168 million people, they are now getting next day delivery of first clas mail anywhere within their respective areas. One of the principal results has been the virtual elimination of complaints about delayed mail simply because nearly all the letters which the public expects to be delivered the day after mailing are being delivered the day after mailing. This represents a radical change when compared with 1953.

"Still another change worthy of attention is that while slghtly more than 1,400 rural delivery routes have been consolidated with annual savings in excess of 4,000,000, this type of mail service has actually been extended to benefit an additional 1,500 families.

"It should also be mentioned that more than 5,700 post offices which were found to be unnecessary have been discontinued at a saving of nearly $9,000,000 a year while at the same time we have established 629 additional classified stations and branches and 980 contract stations and branches in order to provide better service for the public."

Postmaster Sutley said that a comparsion between any corresponding statistics for 1953 and 1960 would show the cumultative effects of all the day-by-day improvements under the guidance of Postmaster General Summerfield.

"His constant goal,' Postmaster Sutley said, "has been to improve service while holding the line on costs through greater efficiency. The results speak for themselves."

Start War On Insects During Fall of Year

Auburn, Al .—October and November are good months to fight scale insects, white flies, and spider mites which are major pests of many evergreen ornamental plants.

Tea scale is the worst pest that attacks camellias in Alabama while white flies are a major problem with gardenias. And spider mites attack broadleaved evergreent and conifers.

W. A. Ruffin, Auburn Extension entomologist, says that a white oil emulsion such as Volck, demeton, malathion, or parathion, when properly diluted with water, will control these pests. Follow the directions on the container for the use of the materials or call your local agent for more details.

Keep Cows From Grazing Until Crop Grows High

Auburn, Ala.—Using winter grazing crops wisely is just as important as growing them properly.

All dairymen realize the importance of winter grazing in stepping up the milk flow of dairy cows, but too many make the mistake of letting the cows graze as soon as there is a little green growth in the field.

O. N. Andrews, Auburn Extension agronomist, recommends keeping cows off winter crops until there is enough growth to provide continuous grazing for at least two hours per day or until the plants are about six inches high.

Young plants that are closely grazed recover very slowly since the root system is underdeveloped and there is little leaf surface to absorb the sunlight needed for growth.

GOP HIDES PRESTIGE DIP PROOF

While Nixon has been trumpeting that U. S. prestige in world affairs is at "an all-time high," and lambasting Democrats for calling attention to evidence to the contrary, the Administration has been sitting on factual proof that the American "image" abroad has deteriorated seriously in recent years.

The facts were brought to light by the Washington Post in a dispatch Oct. 20, which said that public opinion polls and research in foreign countries which the Administration itself conducted over the past few years show conclusively that U. S. prestige has been unquestionably on the decline ever since the Soviet Union sent Sputnik into orbit in October 1957.

These are the findings to date of a secret top-level group appointed by President Eisenhower last Dec. 2 and called the President's Committee on U. S. Information Activities Abroad. The Committee is headed by Mansfield D. Sprague, vice president of the American Machine and Foundry Co., and, until 1958, Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security.

"Now the Sprague Committee is being subjected to increasing pressure to keep its findings secret, at least until after the election,' the Post said. "Already the general tendency has been to water down some of the drafted conclusions."

Calves Dropped In Fall Are Consistently Worth More To You

Auburn, Ala.—Controlled breedinging for fall-dropped calves remains one of the most important practices for commercial cattlemen.

A study of the sales records of 500-pound U. S. Good calves on the Montgomery market this year shows that calves selling during the early summer months brought an average of 833.80 more per calf than the same grade and weight calves selling this fall, says Bob Farquhar Auburn Extension beef marketing specialist.

The fall-dropped calf not only sells higher on the early summer market, but also usually grades higher because he carries more finish. The usual abundance of early spring grazing causes the mother to give large amount of milk when the calf is old enough to utilize the increased milk flow. And the calf is able to graze the more nutritious pasture.

Cattlemen breeding for fall dropped calves usually turn the bulls in the brood cow herd from Dec. 15 to Jan. 1. Calves born from October to the first of the year should be ready for sale weigihng 500 pounds or more on the higher priced early summer market.

America Answering 'READY'---

by John F. Kennedy

November 8th will settle a question of profound moment—whether we are to continue an eight-year era of quietude or whether we are to move forward once again as a nation with the determination and majesty to meet the challenges of the twentieth century.

I am confident that America is ready to move ahead again with realistic determination, hard work and dedication to something larger than personal comfort.

The American people want a government and a nation that faces the world with strength and confidence with an unwavering attachment to the principles that made the founding of his counry and inspiraion to all mankind.

They want a country strong enough that it need not be petulant and provacative, strong enough that it need not fear sitting down in true negotiation.

They want a government and a nation that greets the aspiratios of mankind as a rewarding challenge and not worrisome disturbance.

They want a nation making genuine progress in meeting its unsolved problems, not only because they want it invlunerable to the accusations of a watching world, but also because they want a nation that does what should be done.

They want a nation inspired by a government whose voice is principled and clear, whose servants are motivated by a sense of creative purpose and not a painful sense of duty to be discharged as rapidly as possible.

I believe there is a hunger in the land for an infusion of new spirit, new courage, new idealism into our national life.

I have seen a response to the challenge of the New Frontier that I dared not hope for—a renewed sense of this country's historic purpose, a willingness to sacrifice one's time and energy for a better future with a cheerfulness that has always animated purposeful men and women in adverse times.

One Party Meets The Test---

by Lyndon B. Johnson

We are going to win the election because the Democratic Party stands for good government and progressive programs.

Look at the good legislation made into law during the last eight years.

The Democratic Congress conceived and placed on the books the National Defense Education Act, the first major step forward in years to provide meaningful assistance in assuring that our higher educational program is geared to today's and tomorrow's problems and is strong enough to keep ahead of Communist advances in education.

The Democratic Congress voted statehood for Alaska and Hawaii.

The Democratic Congress fought against wasteful spending by the Republican Administration. More than $12 billion was cut from the Republican requests for funds. Despite all the Democratic Congresses could do, the Republican Administration ran up a deficit of $19 billion since it took office and increased our national debt by more than $20 billion.

The Democratic Congress increased the funds requested by the Republican Administration for health research and took us a long step down the road to finding amelioration of heart disease, cancer, arthritis, and the other dread maladies.

Against these examples of progressive, good government, the Republicans have faced us with vetos, promises without performance, deterioration of our position in the United Nations, the growth of the cancer of Communism 90 miles from our shore line in Cuba, loss of face in the world, two recessions and general stagnation.

We are going to win this election in November because the Democrats, the Independents and an increasing number of Republicans have found an enthusiasm and a faith in a national party.

Our Reasons . . .

OUR final appeal to the voters of Chilton County concerning the Presidential Election on November 8 (next Tuesday) is one directed to the people who can consider all the issues they have heard up to this point and think clearly, logically and unprejudiced before they cast their vote.

If you are one of these individuals consider what you have to lose if you do not base your judgement on clear, sound reasoning! You have the right to vote and included in that right is also a duty-privilege of considering your fellowman as well. When you vote, do not under any circumstance, fail to decide (or at least try to decide) what is the better course to take for the good of our country and its millions of people. You have only one vote, but it is a decisive one and is therefore important, not only to you, who casts it, but to your fellowman as well!

Many persons are rightly concerned over the Quemoy-Matsu controversy. The Republicans have claimed that Senator Kennedy has "drawn a line" and "dared" the Communists to cross it. That is a profoundly ignorant statement and is untrue! Mr. Kennedy has repeatedly pointed out that the treaty calls for the defense of Formosa and the Pescadores Islands and does not include Quemoy and Matsu unless it is part of an invasion on the original Treaty agreement. Is not drawing a line and saying "come no further" better than letting it go undecided just where the "line" is. What good is a treaty if it doesn't show the boundaries of both parties involved in the situation?

Mr. Nixon has made much talk over the fact that he, as an American, believes, as an American, that we, as America, should not "give an inch" and should defend Quemoy and Matsu. We, as intelligent human beings, know that we have no more right to "take an inch" than we do to "give an inch" and therefore, according to our very own principles, we should abide by the treaty. It would seem that the Republicans and Mr. Nixon are the line drawers and not Mr. Kennedy, who has quoted the treaty and not appealed to the American people to "defend" something that is not theirs to defend. Of course we will defend our principles and freedom; but Quemoy and Matsu, as we see it, are not them.

And while we're about it, Mr. Nixon is consistently making a fool of himself in constantly declaring that he is an American, that he is patriotic, etc., etc. His 'buddy-buddy' attitude is obvious to the point of being ridiculous and we don't think many intelligent people are falling for his sympathetic gestures. If patriotic feelings were the only requirement for being President, then we'd be in there running! We think as much or more of our country as the mighty Mr. Nixon and so does Mr. Kennedy. We feel strongly about patriotism, but it is brought out in actions and not in speeches and planned appeals. Mr. Nixon: look around you! See, we're all Americans!

As for the so-called religious issue (and it has come to be just that) if you cannot agree with the Constitution of the State of Alabama, the Constitution of the United States or even the Holy Bible, then we cannot persuade by any of our feeble attempts, in comparison, and we will not try. We will say however, that we too, believe in Segregation as the Bible also teaches, but Segregation, as we have it in the South today, as we have it in the North today and all over the entire world today, is wrong! We can, and must have Segregation, without Mongrelization and we can have it without discrimination where one man is as free as another to make his way in the world and pursue it in any legal fashion which interests him.

John Kennedy is a Catholic, I am a Methodist, you possibly are a Baptist or a Presbyterian or an Episcopalian. My religion teaches me to be just and fair and honest under the convictions of my own conscience and it sets out principles for me to follow and teaches my the ways of Christ and Christianity. No one can make us believe that any Christian is any different from that, if he is true to himself and the Almighty God. We therefore, believe that any Christian, regardless of his position in life, will govern his actions according to the dictates of his own conscience, regardless or his church or any other churches views. If a man were not individual in his thinking, then he most assuredly would not aspire to be President of the United States. If the reverse were true, we'd all be running for President!

As for the national scene and the National curity, we are firm in our belief that a Democ rule is the best for the people. Not a chosen but 'For the people' as set out in the Constitu of the United States of America.

The three Wars have been brought up, as be inspired' and 'brought on' by the Democrats. E though that is a ridiculous statement—we won Wars, didn't we, if you can call anyone winn in a war. The point has also been brought out the Democrats, if they were responsible, took Wars away from the United States and fou them on foreign soil. Should we have waited u they came to us?

Another outstanding advantage is the De cratic majority in Congress. It looks as thoug will remain a majority throughout the next Adr istration. It is our firm belief that we can acc plish more, both domestic and foreign, tow bringing about world peace and a decent stand of living everywhere if the Administration is agreement with the ideals and ideas of the C gress.

As far as the Democratic Platform is concer
we do not like much of it and if we knew al men personally, who drafter it, chances are we would disagree strongly with them on other points of policy and procedure. No law popular with the majority of the people, will for very long. Ideas are the same: if the people a whole, do not want it, in our Democratic soci they will not long have it! Therefore, the platfo as it stands today is not destined to remain int no matter who supports it, if they are not in majority. Five years from now, or even two ye from now, neither party platform will be distingu able as its original self. In other words, there bound to be obvious changes in our platform we firmly believe that the changes made will b favor of the people in the sections of the coun which they most vitally and directly concern.

These are some of our reasons for voting De ocratic come next Tuesday! Do you have be reasons for doing otherwise??

THINGS We see and hear

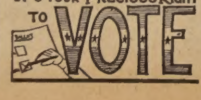
by BOB

THERE may very well be an evil force working against the freedom of America, but it is not John F. Kennedy, as some of Baptist brethren imply. When the church use its pulpit to primote or destroy a political aspirant for public office then that church is coming mighty close to mixing church and state. It is a crying shame, when the hypocrisy of some few is so efefctively used in abusing the privileges of others. We want religious freedom in our country and we shall have it, providing we do not sit up and crow to all the world that somebody is out to do us in when we're really the 'chosen religious' group! That may not be what they intend at all, but that surely is the impression they leave.

To say that Christ is a friend to these and not a frend to thise others is utter nonsense and reversal of Christs own teachings. "Let any who will take up his cross. .. ." and he is my friend. How can we mere mortals proclaim who Jesus' friends are, and for that matter, how can we point so vividly at others when our own face is so downright dirty!

WELL, Trick or Treat season has come and gone and here we are all out of goodies! Those young'uns are ruthless about that Treatin' business. One fellow had five different faces so he could call on the same house five different times. It's not confined to the small fry either. Heard one guy say that one set of Trickers was smoking cigars! Guess you feei kind silly handing an all-day sucker to a guy smoking a cigar. Not half as silly as he aughta feel though!

MR. Dewey (Thomas E.) sure made his political party (the GOP) look righteous on television Monday evening. Now if he could just convince the people that all that glorious bunk was true, he'd have a good start toward winning an election. It was getting thick and sticky there for a while. Everything he said was well stated and just about half true. Oh well, you cant win 'em all Mr. Dewey!



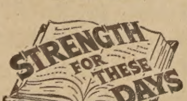
IT'S YOUR PRECIOUS RIGHT TO VOTE

The Principle Of the thing

M. G. Fields, Missionary

A BAPTIST PRINCIPLE:

Religiius liberty is still a cardinal principle of the Baptists, not for themselves alone, but for all men. Religious liberty is more than religious toleration. Toleration is a privilege bestowed: liberty is a right which no man can either bestow or take away. It is a gift of God. Reliigious liberty is the basis of all liberty. If it is be lost, all other freedoms will soon follow. Baptist, therefore, insist upon religious liberty for all men. Baptist say that a man has the right to be a Jew, Baptist, Methidist, Luthern, Presbyterian, Episcopalian, Disciple of Chris, Pentecostal, Catholic, Hindu, Mohammedan, Agnostic, Infidel, or Atheist—as he chooses to be. No man has the right to force him otherwise. There is a widespread cry through the press and public discussion concerning removing religion from the Presidental campaign. If well meaning Americans and the Catholic church and Mr. Kennedy wish to dismiss the issues of religion in this campaign, let the Roman Catholic church (1) disavow its control over its members. (2) Disavow the power to consign the soul of a believer to hell. (3) Disavow its claimed right to the control of the members' lives, and (4) withdraw its hierarchal pressures from the American political scene and the issue of religion in the campaign will die. There is only one more Sunday for the preachers of the Gospel, and the superintendents and teachers of the Sunday schools, to present some of the great princples of freedom, and pray for a true democracy to continue to prevail in America.



Even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister . . . (Matthew 20:28)

Many troubled people who turn to religion for personal "peace of mind" find it when they follow the Master's example of service and giving. Their problems grow small as they turn their thoughts and time to helping others in love and Christian brotherhood.

A CHAPEL AT THE HOSPIT'L

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE MINISTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

Kind Sirs:

As President of the Chilton County Hospital Auxiliary, I would be very grateful to each of you if you will help the Auxiliary publicize one of the projects we have decided to try and accomplish as soon as possible.

The "project" is a "chapel" in the Hospital. The purpose of this of course would be; a quiet place where those who need spiritual uplift and guidance could go for prayer, and also serve as a place where the Ministers could have prayer with the family away from the patient, when they felt the need.

The Administrator, Mr. Sudduth has told us there is a room available now that could be used.

We will need help from all the churches and organizations in the county to help us prepare this "chapel". If one or more groups, such as the MYF; the B.T.U., or any of the Youth groups in the churches, will take one item as their project, then it can be done easily and quickly.

If you are interested, will you please contact me right away. I would like to make a report on this at the Auxiliary meeting on the second Tuesday in November.

This "open letter" in the newspapers seemed to be the quickest way to reach all of you.

Thank you!

PERSECUTION OR BUST

Now since Mr. Nixon has turned thumbs down on seeing, answering questions of or making statements to the Rev. Dr. C. Emanuel Carlson and his coherents, who wears the title of Executive Secretary of the joint committee of public affairs of both the southern and northern and two large negro districts of the Baptist Church and Mr. Nixons flat refusal to see, talk to or make any statements to the well known Glen L. Archer has undoubtedly left the political wing of these self assumed, heretical proselytes high up in the air.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Nixons rebuff to these gentleman will prove to them the vanity of convincing any sane thinking man of their posed infallibility in politics, of trying to further their unscruplous isms on a sane thinking member of the protestant churches born of their narrow minded, predjudiced and biased brain.

Mr. Kennedy did meet with just this sort of a crowd in Houston, Texas and did a masterful job of answering their inane questions in a statesman like manner with patience and fortitude that should have been sufficiently convincing to anyone of his lofty principles and honest intentions of maintaining a seperation of church and state, forever more. However, Carlson, Archer, Lowell and Co., continue ti further their scare scandal with a vim and vigor that only the depraved could attain. Such as these just must have an outlet of their souls to persecute, slander, criticize and abuse someone or they will literally blow up and burst wide open. Who and what will they turn on next? Maybe they could get into the K.K.K. I doubt it.

Signed, A long time reader of your News.

10 men on A fearful Night

Struggling for their lives after their PT-boat had been slashed in two by a Jap destroyer in the pitch black off the Solomons one night in August 1943, ten men saw their skipper, Lt. (j.g) John Kennedy, with an insight they may never achieve again-an insight that still affects their judgment of him today.

To a man, six of these survivors, tracked down by Newsweek correspondents last week, agreed that without Jack Kennedv, they would not be alive today. "In all honesty," said former Radioman John E. Maguire, now a finance-company man in Jacksonville, Fla., "the survivors owe their lives to him. Never, at any time, did he lose control of himself or get shook up. A fellow Bostonian, Cheif Gunner's Mate Charles .Bucky) Harris, now a laboratory worker in Waltham, Mass., recalled crying in panic to Kennedy "Skipper, I can't swim.'

With New England matted-of factness, Kennedy, treading water, snapped him out of it. "For a man from Boston, you're really putting on some exhibition out here, Harris.

It was not only that Kennedy's crew gave him credit for getting them out of the water alive, but also for keeping up their spirits for five days on a tiny atoll, surrounded by Japanese forces. "I knew he'd get us back," said former Quartermaster —dgar E. Mauer, now an electroplater for St. Louis metal works. "He said he would and I had confidence in him. Once I remember he told us: It can be done I think he knew we were in an awful tough spot and he wanted to reassure himself, too."

'SHAFTY': Even before the awful hours in the night and the water Kennedy's crew regarded him with pride and respect. They called him "Shafty" because of his youthful, skinny legs; but admired his quiet, self-possessed way. "Though he was young. I looked up to him like an older man," recalled former Torpedoman Ray Starkey of Garden Grove, Calif., now a grandfather. To former Machinist's Mate Patrick H. McMahon, now 54, and a mailman in Cathedral City, Calif., he was special because, though an officer and a millionaire, "he acted no different than Joe Blow who didn't have a dime in his pocket."

Not surprisingly, the survivors have kept in touch with their old skipper over the years and he with them. "I was just a sailor," Maguire recalled, "but he' called me whenever something was going on in his life." Maguire and his wife were invited to the wedding of both Jack and brother Bob. McMahon and his wife, Rose, went East late in the war to take part in a war-bond rally in NewYork and to visit in Hyannis Port. On their way home, Mrs. McMahon recalls, she turned to her husband and said: "Oh, what a President Mr. Kennedy would make." "Well Pat replied I am afraid his religion might be against him."

All the survivors reached by Newsweek are planning to vote for Kennedy and some are already campaigning spontaneously. Former Motor Machinist William Johnston, a trailer-truck driver of Waltham, Mass., appeared with Kennedy on a stage in Milwaukee during the Wisconsin primary. And the whole crew may be working for their old boss again. Starkey has recently been asked by Kennedy aides in Washington whether the whole crew of the PT-109 could be recruited for a 'We're All For Jack' campaign.

HI VANCE'S USED YARN LOT

50 YEARS OF HUMOR

John Wilson and his wife, Norma have been feeding wayfarers in the Great Smoky Mountains for years. Mrs. Vance and I were among their first customers where they had a small log cafe, and where they have always fectured country ham and home-made loaf bread. Since those early days they have built a modern restaurant and have a stone motor court of many units to go along with it.

They call their place at Townsend simply "The Wilsons" and they advertise it along the highway all the way to the resort town of Gatlinburg with hillbilly characters who look as if they were right out of a cartoon in Esquire Magazine.

Mr. Wilson's favorite yarn, (and he's chock full of stories) is about his Uncle George, the real champion drinker of corn squeezings of the entire Wilson family. John tells you that George's fondness for the jug caused him to drink up a 60-acre farm. And that George just kept right on guzzling until he got down

HOW'S THAT, AGAIN?

THE wonderful and wacky movie "Let's Make Love" will be featured at the Clanton Drive-In Theatre on the nights of Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, November 13th, 14th and 15th. Above is a scene from the movie.

A.L. "Bulldog" Kemp Named Chairman Of National Federation of Independent Business

Announcement of the appointment of A. L. Kemp of the Kemp Dry Goods Co., at 704 second Ave., as Chairman of the Clanton Chapter of the NATIONAL FEDERATION OF INDEPENDENT BUSINESS, was made this week by Chas. E. Timbie, District Manager of the Federation in this area.

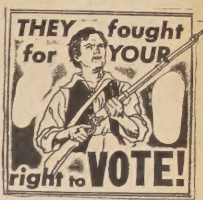
Each business and professional man member of this organization maintains a voting membership, and is polled by ballots regularly throughout the year on bills and issues that affect independent enterprise at the national and state levels.

In an effort to do everything possible to maintain the American way of life, and keep our free competitive system of business, the businessmen express their own personal opinion on the ballots each month and turn them over to Mr. Kemp, who makes tabulations of the total number and the manner in which they voted.

These tabulations are sent, with the underlying signed ballots, directly to the desk of Congressman Armistead Seldon, at Washington, D.C., and to State Senator Joe Graham. They are the only means whereby independent business and professional people can keep in continuing, organized, personal, direct contact with their national and state legislators on measures that affect locally and nationally, free enterprise opportunities.

The NATIONAL FEDERATION OF INDEPENDENT BUSINESS is a non-profit orgization that has the largest individual membership of any business organization in the United States and independent business and professiinal men of every vocation participate with voting memberships, regardless of their other civil or trade affiliations.

The amount of labor used in farming in 1958 was about one-half the number employed in 1960.



THEY fought for YOUR right to VOTE!

Why Separation of Church and State

Written By Charles Hudson

(The following is A Resolution Adopted By the Chilton-Unity Baptist Association)

Our fore fathers came to this country over three hundred years ago seeking religious freedom. They left England because they were forced to belong to the state church and were taxed to support it. They did not believe the church should be an institution supported and governed by the state. They were firm believers in separation of church and state. So they came to America and suffered more hardships than any of us have ever experienced that we might be able to worship as we see fit.

We Have Grown Camplacent— But down through the years we have come to take this freedom which our fore fathers fought so hadr for, for granted. We have grown complacent. But the time has come for the people of America to awaken out of their complacency and be made aware of the fact that there is a force working hard and fast to destroy this freedom.

School Buses— You might say that could never happen to free America, but I would like to give you some facts you may not be aware of. After the Constitution was drawn up the first amendment to the set of laws was, and I quote "Congress shall make no low respecting the establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise there of," unquote. In spite of this Roman Catholics have demanded public bus money(partially disgused as welfare funds) for transporting their children to parocial schools. School buses have become a major item in educational enterprises. One-third of the nation school children ride buses and 4.5 per cent of every public school tax dollar goes fir transportation. If the Catholics are successful they stand to gain more than $35,000,000 a year.

They are trying also to get aid for their lunch rooms pragrams. We are facing a grave crisis in this school issue. Many of our public schools have ben taken over by Catholics. These are called captive schools and are staffed with nuns, brothers, and priests wearing the distinctive garb and insignia of their denomination. School room walls are lined with statues, madonnas, and crucifixes. The Catechism of the Roman Catholic church is taught in class periods to all children. The confessional is urged upon the pupils by the teachers. These captive schools are supported with public tax funds. Most people believe this could not happen in the U. S., but it is a reality. There are hundreds of these institutions in at least 22 states.

Catholics Taking Over— In Kentucky, Ohio, New Mexico, Michigan, and Illinois there have been cases in which local public schiol boards, with a majority of Catholic members, have attempted to turn the public schools into some sort of parochial schools. Why are we concerned with the schools? Because what goes to the school, goes to the church. There is no distinction. The school is the church and the church is the school.

Catholics and Hospitals— Some years ago Congress passed legislation providing Federal aid for church hospitals. The money was there. All the church had to do was take it, and they did. Across the southland the Roman Catholics erected handsome centers of healing and propaganda. The church and the school and the parish soon followed the hospital and this denomination was in business. They have received $112,000,000 for their hospitals.

Catholics Want Control— Another danger we face is the Roman Catholic censorship program. It is world wide and is concerned with books, magazines, and newspapers, also T.V. and radio. Where the emphasis has been placed on elimination of smut and filth all righ-minded people will rejoice. The fact is however, that the Catholic censorship has other concedns. The real object is control. The program seeks control so they can eliminate anything critical of the Roman Catholics and encourage favorable treatment if this church.

Catholic boycott threats caused timid W.G.N. TV in Chicago to cancel a telecast of the Martin Luther story. It was never argued the film was immoral, but was based on theological reasons. It was just that the hierarchy did not like its point of view. A similar threat caused W.T.O.P. TV in Washington to cancel the flm.

Wrong Teaching— Did you know that 595 clerically controlled periodicals reaching 22 million Americans monthly speak ill of church and state separation, and that four million young minds in 15,000 Roman Catholic schools are indoctrinated into the belief that church, state separation is unsound, unwise, and un-American principle. Similar teachings reach another 3 million minds in public schools taught by nuns.

The Roman Catholics political action was able to drive through an appropriation for one million dollars to refurnish the Pope's summer home outside Rome.

Who Are Friends of Christ— Let us ask ourselves who are the friends of Christ. Are they those who promote this deadly cycle? Are they those who spend sleepless nights ploting ways by which laws can be circumuented and constitutional provisions nullified in order to provide tax funds for their church. Or are Christ's friends those who stoutly resist the whole trend and fight it as they would any other deadly foe. (Yes, we must fight to keep this heritage, this freedom that our forefathers gave us.) I challenge you now to wake up and find out what is going on around you. We have people who are devoting all their time to this issue. The Protestants United with offices in Washington, D. C., supplied me with many of the facts I have given you tonight. Baptists also have committees working to keep us informed through our Baptist papers and periodicals. Read them and when an issue comes up, let your congressman know how you feel about it.

And now I ask you, why separation of church and state- Because it is the only way we can have complete religious freedom.

Christmas Seals Goal Set At $1365, Chilton

Monday, November 14, Tuberculosis-fighting Christmas Seals will be making their annual debut in Chilton County and across the nation.

Mrs. R. M. Tucker, Chilton county Christmas Seal Chairman, said that a goal of $1,365 is the minnmum amount needed for the TB Association's health-protecting and life-saving work during the year ahead.

Money raised by the annual TB campaign, is used to promote good health for all by fighting and preventing tuberculosis in chilton county.

Mrs. Tucker added, "Of every Christmas Seal dollor, 79 cents is spent to finance the association's local program. Another 15 cents goes to aid the state-wide tuberculosis control program of the Alabama Tuberculosis Association, and the other 6 cents helps to support medical research projects and other work on a national level.

"The community could not begin to finance all the medical research with its pooling of Christmas Seal funds, the chairman pointed out, "but we benefit from the findings.

"We've come a long way since Emily Bissel, a Red Cross worker in Wilmington, Delaware, mailed out the first Christmas Seals 54 years ago to raise money for a small TB hospital. We've seen tuberculosis reduced from a horrible plogue to an illness that can be cured. Progress in the fight against TB, since the first Christmas Seal was sold, has meant a saving of more than nine mililon lives.

"But we have a long way to go before we can say TB is finished'! 278 Alabamians died of TB last year, and more than 2,055 new cases of active TB reported, with 75 of those cases right here in Chilton County. Now it is iur problem and duty to find these people when this disease is in an early stage, get them hospitalized and treated, and then see that the treatment continues after they return home.

"That is why the Christmas Seal Campaign is so important to all of us, why it is vital that it remain our first line of defense in the war against TB as it has been since 1907, that is why this committee is partment and it's staff if efficient working with the local Health Deand trained people who make it their job to follow up on such cases and educate them on carrying for those with whom they come in contact. Serving on this committee are, Mrs. R. M. Tucker, Chr., Mrs. Julia Hester Hicks Trea., Mrs. Doris G. Gay Sec., Mrs. Lloyd Howard, Mrs. Audrey Smith, Miss Louise Foshee.

Jackson Heads River Development Here

J. HOLLIS JACKSON

J. Hollis Jackson, Chilton County Chairman of the Coosa-Alabama River Improvement Association Membership Committee said today that the campaign for new members, which began on November 1st, has stimulated interest in the river development throughout the county.

"As is the case in most projects of such vast proportions," he continued, "the people who will be the direct beneficiaries of the development in most cases are not aware of the actual status of the project nor the extent of the benefits which they will derive from its successful completion. Business within the basin of a navigable waterway will take on a new complexion, and it's sometimes hard to visualize the future prosperity that will result."

He said the membership campaign will continue throughout the month of November and should result in a sizeable increase in the Chilton County membership.

Among the fourteen leading causes of death, TB alone can be completely wiped out if every active case were found and treated.

CEDAR GROVE HD CLUB PLANS BIG CHRISTM'S PARTY

The Cedar Grove HD club met Nov. 1, 1960 with Mrs. J. B. Parrish. The meeting was called to order by he President, Mrs. Amos Smith, Devotional was given by Mrs. Fred Robinson and story of the hymn was read by Mrs. Emmett Smith. Mrs. Kermit Lowery read the minutes of the last meeting and gave the treasury report.

After briefly discussing our Christmas party plans, electing demonstration leaders for each month and renewing a magazine subscription for a shut-in friend, the wonderful demonstration on Christmas gifts and decorations was given. Mrs. Lillie Mastin and Mrs. Pauline Hayes were in charge with the members telling their ideas or showing something they had made Some wonderful things were shown and directions for making them were given. We learned to make a Chritsmas tree of cardboard sprayed with silver or gold paint, a hot roll basket liner, potholders, pin cushions, dolls from work socks, birds from net, footstools from juice cans, aprons, and the cutest little coke napkins made in the shape of an apron, of all the demonstrations this year, I think we all enjoyed this one best.

The hostess served soft drinks and cookies to twelve members and one visitor.

Our next meeting will be the first Tuesday in December with Mrs. Lillie Mastin.

Garrett Seeks Presidency Of Alabama Farm Bureau

JOHN A. GARRETT

John A. Garrett, Veteran Montgomery County farmer, will be a candidate for the presidency of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation when the anual election comes up at the statewide meeting in Mobile November 16th.

Garrett's candidacy grew out of a "Grass Roots Ground Swell', a movement by farming people all over the state that stems from their dissatisfaction in the progress of the Alabama Farm Bureau and its failure to get approval for legislation favorable to and desired by the farmer, and reflects the loss of confidence in the Farm Bureau by many of its members.

Mr. Garrett did not seek the nomination but agreed to acept it when the Montgomery County Farm Bureau Board of Directors passed a resolution to put his name in nomination for the chief office n the state organization, and to instruct their 11 voting delegates to cast their votes for him.

Garrett, director of commodity services of the Alabama Farm Bureau for several years, a former president of the Montgomery County Farm Bureau and well grounded in Farm Bureau work in all its phases, was born and reared on a farm in Baldwin County and knows firsthand the problems of farm people and their goals and aims.

Mr. Garrett has pledged, when elected, to carry out the wishes of the membership and develop a sound program to serve the farm people of Alabama.

Parasites On Cattle; Fall Work For Farmer

Many Alabama catlemen are now in the process of treating yearlings and older cattle for parasites. Since the most rapid build-up of these parasites occurs in the late summer and early fall. it is imperative that all animals be treated before winter, says Dr. Worth Lanier, Auburn Extension veterinarian.

Although several new drugs of the organic phosphate family are showng up well in experimental tests in removing internal parasites, none have been released yet; therefore, phenathiazine is still considered the choce drug for parasite treatment.

The emulsion form of the drug usually proves superior to the bolus or powder form, Lanier says. And he warns cattlemen to buy phenatiazine from a reputable dealer because the drug is sometimes prepared improperly—that is, the particles in the drug are too large making it ineffective.

The canning industry is the third largest user of steel in the United States. The amount used for cans, machinery, and other equipment is exceeded only by the automobile and construction industries.

Local Farmers Have Big Investment In Machinery

Alabam farmers have $600 million invested in machinery. This is a huge sum, but farming, like all big business, demands modern equipment.

There are approximately 80,000 tractors operating on Alabama farms plus a large number of self-propelled harvesters and similar equipment. J. T. Gaillard, Auburn Extension specialist in farm mechanization, estimates that the average mechanized farm in the state has about $7600 worth of farm machinery.

Gaillard reminds farmers that a $600 million investment demands protection . using, servicing, and storing machinery properly. Follow carefully the recommendations of the manufacturer for equipment he says.

Keeping Local Government Local--

THE next administration will have to deal with two crucial responsibilities—national defense and foreign policy. It seems likely that the survival of this nation and of the free world will depend largely upon how successfully these responsibilities are met.

Defense and foreign policy are true national responsibilities, since they can not be handled by any branch of government below the federal level. Because of their importance, they need the fullest and most skillful attention of both the Congress and the Executive. Yet in dealing with them,the national government will be hampered by a surplus of 'national' problems that are not truly national. Most of these problems can and should be handled at the state, county and city level where they originate.

Lack of local funds is most often given as the reason for not dealing locally with problems such as slums, roads and schools when in reality it is more a lack of interest and proper leadership on the local scene. If as much interest were shown about these things normally, as there is in an election campaign—there would be no problem and we would not have to depend on that 'big brother' the federal government.

Except for import duties, the federal government has access to no tax sources that are not available to the state and local governments. The total national wealth is no greater than the sum of local wealth of the nation.

Putting more and more burdens on the federal government is dangerously shortsighted. Every secondary duty that distracts the national government from its primary responsibility for foreign policy and defense increases the danger of war and disaster. But we will not have our local level government, the way we'd like, until more good citizens take an active and interested part in local politics!

A.E.W. And Veteran's Day--

THOUGH not intimately related, there is a close resemblance in American Education Week (Nov. 6-12) and Veterans Day, Friday the 11th.

On Veterans Day, we honor and recognize the men and women who have fought and lived, or died, for the preservation of our way of life. Our educational system is a vital organ in our way of life and thus owes its life—in a manner of speaking—to our fighting men and women.

Not only are these two occasions closely related to each other, but they should serve an important part in our lives as citizens of this great country of ours.

Most assuredly recognize Veterans Day, come Friday, in your own way and in your own actions and also, if you are prone to take our school system for granted and do not take an active part in education then you should visit your schools during this week and renew your acquaintance with the 'learning processes' of our children.

Yessir, education and the preservation of it are vital to us all and we should observe and pay our respects to both.

THINGS

We see and hear

by BOB

THE truth can now be told! We doubt seriously that anybody in Chilton County has written more in support of Kennedy-Johnson and the Democratic Party during this Presidential Campaign than we have. And we're still glad that we did. Our oldest boy Ben (five) is truly going to be individual in his thinking because even his Dad has no influence on his opinion. We did a lot of hard selling the past few weeks, but to no avail, he was strongly determined that he was going to vote for 'Nixon'. His reason: "He's more pretty than that other man." Well, we tried, but at least we can say that the young man thinks for himself. We proved something else during the process and that is; you dont have to smoke anything to make up your own mind. That's relieving now ain't it?

AND for all we know, he voted for Nixon!

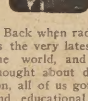
REV. James Baker from East of Clanton came in this week to inform us that he and his missus would celebrate 60 happy years together come the 20th of November. Mr. Baker is one of the most enjoyable gentlemen to talk to we have ever met and it is mostly due to his light outlook on living. He is a happy man and he shows it. The biggest thing about Rev. Baker is that he realizes his own unimportance in this old world. He is humble and readily jokes about his own inabilities or shortcomings. His outlook on life is refreshing amidst the pessimism of everyday living and we wish he, and those like him were spread a litle thicker in our society. Congratulations Rev. and Mrs. Baker on a partnership which we're sure has brought happiness and joy to many hundreds of your neighbors and friends.

ONE of the most faithful, gracious and sincere men in Chilton County is a comparative newcomer into this flock and deserves the recognition and thanks of all those whom he represents. Brother M. G. Fields, the Baptist Associational Missionary for Chilton County, has done a splendid job of keeping his people informed about the activities of their denomination since his arrival here. Bro. Fields works hand in hand with us here at the News, as we're sure he does elsewhere and his devotion to his people is manifested in his daily routine. Bro. Fields is a fine gentleman and one whom we think is a credit to our community. We need men of this calibre in our community -- don't take them for granted!

IT is the most reasuring thing in the world to learn that you have friends who are not only willing to sacifice their time and interests in your behalf by doing something physical for you, but who will also pray for you in a time when it is the most important thing in your life. We had occasion to learn that firsthand this week and our feelings are unexplainable, except that we know we have friends, and thank God for it.

WE are hopelessly in love with beautiful music, especially hymns and anthems played on a pipe organ. Mrs. Clois Robertson, organist and music director at the First Methodist Church here in Clanton has a talent for making beautiful music and all the things which we lack to accomplish this, she posesses. It is most uplifting to sit and hear Mrs. Clois interpret a lovely old hymn or a stirring anthem. If you haven't heard her, we recommend it highly.

A bit of somebody's philosophy which has been proven time and again: You can take a boy and a pig, and give them everything they want, and you'll have a good pig and a bad boy!



HI VANCE'S USED YARN LOT

50 YEARS OF HUMOR

Back when radio was looked upon as the very latest eighth wonder of the world, and they hadn't even thought about dreaming up television, all of us got our entertainment and educational thrills out of the airwaves without any picture to go along with it.

I remember very vividly even at this remote time tuning in one night when the program featured the only-living human survivor who was with Admiral Peary at the time his exploration party discovered the North Pole.

Norman Brokenshire, one of the truly great anouncers of that era was master of ceremonies for the program, (they didn't call them shows back then) and Brokey never missed the chance of throwing in a little humor - sometimes of the spicy variety.

The old fellow who was with Peary as history had been made had a dog with hm, and Norman brought this out sans script: 'This lone human survivor has been accompanied to the studio tonight by Admiral Peary's dog, who was also with the group when they hit this epic spot in history.' Then, with a trace of laughter in his voice, Brokenshire concluded: 'As a matter of fact, I think it was the dog that discovered the Pole.'

The U. S. Department of Agriculture supplied some 3.2 million needy persons with food in the year ending June 30, 1960.

ABUNDANT LIFE

GOD ANSWERS PRAYER IN HIS OWN WAY

"Why didn't God answer my prayer, Preacher?" the man asked his pastor. "I thought God was generous. He didn't give me what I asked for!"

The preacher replied: "Brother, God did answer your prayer. His answer was 'No!'"

Yes, God answers prayer . . . but He answers prayer in His own way.

Many times people expect God to do great things for them, without their doing anything for God in return.

God shares His abundance with us, but He expects us to give Him something in return . . . our time, our talent and our means.

Humility is essential when dealing with God. The man who questions God's generosity does not possess humility. His attitude in questioning God clearly shows this.

In this modern age, whatever belongs to the father belongs to the child, too. The only difference is in the right to personal use. We possess no resource that we would not gladly spend to protect or to help our children in time of need.

There are only two kinds of requests our children could make that we would deny them: (1) for something we know will do them harm, and (2) for things which we know we cannot afford.

God knows no lack! His wisdom of what is good for us far surpasses ours.

God is a better Father than we are, and He makes it possible for us to share in all His goodness, His Wealth and His benefits. While it is true God reserves the right to administer His goods, God withholds nothing from us that we actually need.

To claim God as our Father and in the next breath to declare that there are needs in our lives which cannot be met would be to accuse our heavenly Father of being stingy!

God is not stingy! He is kind and He is generous. He loves His children. He is ready to hear us and to grant our requests.

But when we ask God for anything, we must remember that He knows what is best for us.

God in His infinite wisdom sees all, hears all, knows all. Often He answers prayers in such a way that we may feel the answer has not been given. But we may feel this way because we have already formulated in our minds the answer we want God to give us!

No, we cannot command God to give us any certain thing. We must not order Him to do anything. Rather, we must ask Him in faith according to His will, then it shall be done.

Whatever the answer, we can always rest assured it is the best answer.

All prayers are answered . . . God answers them in His own way!

OUR FARMERS CAN MEET THE NEEDS OF 1975

American farmers will have 50 million additional people to feed and clothe by 1975, a recent report from the United State Department of Agriculture predicts. But the USDA expects farmers to have no trouble meeting the country's needs.

Not only can we expect enough food and fiber for our consumptiin, but we can also still maintain a fairly high level of agricultural exports, the report says.

A. W. Jones, Auburn Extension marketing specialist, says that it would take 35 percent more farm output than we had in 1956-58 to provide for a population of 230 million. But thtre will be no presing need for new technology of for programs of land development solely for the purpose of increasing production.

The need for increasing livestock production will be greater than the need for increasing crops. Assuming that we will have a 10 percent increase in livestock feeding efficiency and that farmers will apply new technology oat the rate they have adopted it in the past, we would still need the equivalent of the production from p0 million acres for feeding livestock.

Enough acreage could not be obtained by reclaiming land through irrigation, drainage, clearing and conversion practices at the rate that this was being done in 1953-54.

But Jones says that with a 10 pescent increase in feeding efficiency and a maximum yield attained through a full efficient, and economical application of presently known technology, the same acreage of cropland and cropland pasture used in 1956-58 would be more than enough to provide for the 1975 needs.

Farmers have twice as much invested in machinery as does the steel industry and five times as much as does the automobile industry.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS from The Bible

Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man.—(Ecclesiastes 12:13)

Why are we here? Through the centuries man has tried to discover the purpose of life. Is it to acquire wealth or wisdom or happiness? To do good for other people? The only satisfactory answer is found in the Book of books; our goal should be to fear God and keep his commandments.

Disability And Social Security

Are you a disabled worker under the age of 50? If so, you may have an important financial stake in the 1960 social security amentments.

Cecil L. Simpson, manager of the Birmingham district social security office points out that the new law makes it possible for the disabled person less than age 50 and who worked under the social security 5 out of the 10 years before he became disabled, to become eligible to receive disability insurance benefit payments.

"Disabled workers under age 50 who have had their social security records frozen, but have not yet received a letter asking them to get in tiuch with their social security office, should do so at once. Dependents of disabled workers may also become eligible to receive payments under the new law," Smpson says.

WATCH OUT FOR SICK RABBITS

Rabbit season is in, and here's a word of caution for rabbit hunters from Earl F. Kennamer, Auburn Extension wildlife specialist.

Although the chance is probably less than one in 10,000 in this warm weather, there is a danger of contracting tularemia or 'rabbit fever' from infected animals. Rabbits with this disease are sluggish. If you shoot one that didn't run fast, don't handle the carcass.

After shooting a rabit, cut him open and inspcet the liver. If the liver is well speckled with white, there is a possibility the animal is infected; however, one or two white spots on a normal colored liver need not cause alarm. A good protective measure while handling or skinning the carcass is to wear gloves.

After the first sharp freeze, these sick rabits usually die. And the though tularemia is no longer condanger of infection is lessened. Alsidered a fatal disease, it is still a serious malady.

Income From Beef Cattle Influenced By Herd Sire

During the next three months many Alabama cattlemen will be making a decision that will affect beef catle income for several years-the selection if a bull to use as a herd sire.

Some of the bulls being sold this fall either through association consignment sales or breeder production sales carry information on the weaning weight, gain on feeding test, weight per day of the entire animal's life, and the confirmation score. Bob Farquhar, Auburn Extension beef marketing specialist, highly recommends these two sources when the information is available because the records take most of the guesswork out of selecting a herd sire. Unfortunately, there are not enough of these bulls to fill the needs of Alabama cattlemen.

A neighboring registered breeder is also a possible source. Cattlemen should spend a half-day here selecting prospective herd sires, Farquhar says, giving consideration to confirmation, size, and scale of both sire and ram as well as milking ability of the dam.

At First Baptist --

Dow-Wade Vows Exchanged Here

A profusion of ivory tapers in brass cathedral candlelabra illuminated the sanctuary of the First Baptist Church for the 7:30 o'clock wedding Saturday evening, October 29, 1960, of Miss Melinda Wade and James Jornson Dow of Birmingham. Dr. J. Gilbert Hutchinson officiated at the cereminy.

Magnolia trees in symetrical design formed a background for sunburst arrangements of calla lilies, yellow stock, and ivory fugii mums. The recessed windows were decorated with clusters of magnolia centered around a single cathedral candle.

Traditional wedding music was presented by Mrs. Erle Ellis of Lakeland, Fla., organist, and Mrs. William P. Burnett, siloist.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Quitman Wade, was given in marriage by her father. Carrying a clutch cascade of empire butterfly roses, stephonatas, liles of the valley and centered with a white archid, she wore a gawn of lustrous white satin and chantilly lace resigned with Basque bodice, portrait neckline, and long sleeves pointing over the hands. Jewelled lace edged the neckline and was appliqued on the bodice front. The biuffant skirt ended in a chapel-length train. Her finger tip veil of silk illusion fell from a miniature crown of pearls.

Miss Kathie Wade, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Misses Betty Dietrich of Louisville, Ky., Lindsay Nathan of Birmingham, and Julie Wade, sister o the bride. Mrs. Thomas N. Boone, Jr., of Birmingham was bridesmatron.

Mary Burnett was flower girl. Her dress was of white organza and featured a bertha of lace and a green velvet sash. In her hair she wore a tiara of white sweetheart roses.

The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Julian Ellis Dow of Birmingham. He was accompanied by his brother, Steven E. Dow as best man. Groomsmen included M. H. Bite, Jd., Crawford Nevins, Dr. William M. Daly, Charles Henderson all if Birmingham, and James Quitman Wade Jr., brother of the bride.

Mrs. Wade wore for her daughter's wedding a nosegay green peau de soie sheath with the bodice trimmed in self color and irridescent beads and a demi-hat of matching material. Her corsage was of cymbidium orchids.

Immediately following the cereminy, the brides parents entertained with a reception in their home which was decorated with arrangements of yellow roses and cream colored stack. The receiving line was formed before the bay window which were banked with magnolia trees and accented by floral arrangements and ivory tapers in floor candlelabra.

The bride's table was spread with an imported cloth of cutwork and lace and centered with a triple-tiered cake of pale yellow, embossed with spun sugar orchids, lilies of the valley and fleur d'amour. Flanking the centerpiece were five-branched silver candlelabra and cherub compotes. Mrs. M. C. Hayes and Mrs. J. W. Hayes, aunts of the bride, assisted in cutting the cake.

The refreshment table was decorated with grapes and yellow flowers accented with Fall crotin foliage. Miss Mary Courtney Jones was in charge of the bride's book. Guests were served by Mesdames Hugh Jones, J. C. Burnett, John Mullins, E. L. Mullins, F. N. Scott, Charles Moore, Douglas Barton, Joe W. Moore, Harold Lawrence, Joanne Burke, W. G. Buchanan of Selma, John H. Lavette of Birmingham, Algert Agricola of Gadsden, Charles Paterson, Misses Clair Mullins, Sharon Hubert, Susan Elsevier, Josephine Moore and Nelda Mullins.

FOR SPRING—

Strawberries Should Be Planted Soon

A 200-foot row of strawberry plants will provide a lot of good eating for the family next spring—that is, if they are planted in the next two or three weeks.

Strawberries are the very earliest spring fruit in Alabama. And they come into production at a time when there is little fresh fruit on the market.

Auburn Extension Horticulturist John Bagby says that Klonmore is a good variety to plant in South and Central Alabama. And the Dixieland and Pocahontas varieties are well-suited to northern Alabama.

Sensational Christmas Parade Planned By Local Jaycees

THE only word that will describe the preparations and plans now being drawn up for Chilton's Annual Jaycee Christmas Parade which will officially bring old St. Nick to Clanton and Chilton County and get the Christmas Spirit fully underway—is Sensational!

10 Floats, More Coming—

Morris Moatts, publicity chairman of Clanton's Jaycee organization reports this week that no less than 10 floats will appear in the parade with more coming in each day; two color guards; one, possibly two bands and clowns along with Santa Claus, who will make his grand appearance on that date

Friday, December 2nd—

The date? Well, it's Friday, December 2 and tentative plans are to have Santa come in on the American Legion train which appears in parades all over the country Tentative plans also include the Legion Band, but plans fo this have not been completed.

Here They Are—

Floats which will definitely appear in hte parade are: Jaycees, Jaycettes, Kiwanis, Lions, Clanton Garden Club, Hemerocallis Garden Club, Women's Study Club, Clanton Study Club, Beta Sigma Phi and Shelton Motors. The CCHS Band will march in the parade and the Business and Professional Women are in charge of decorating the Christmas Tree which will decorate the grounds at the City Hall and which will be lighted up for the first time, as will the lights all over town on that date.

The Civil Defense Rescue Squad and color guards from the American Legion and the National Guard will also participate in the activities.

These are just partial plans and already it promises to be the biggest thing Clanton has ever seen, under local sponsorship.

Invitation—

Business houses, according tc Moatts are invited to enter a float into the parade. The floats will be judged and a winer will be announced and be published in the News.

Stores 'Dress Up'—

Local merchants are coperating fully with the Jaycees in decorating their store windows for the occasion and they too wil be judged on the 2nd and the winer, picture and all, will be published in the News.

Look for more informatiin on the big Jayce eChristmas Parade next week! It's going to be a lollapalooza!

Clanton FFA'ers Make History

THE Clanton FFA Chapter achieved the goal that agriculture leaders thoughout the State have been striving for during the past several years and that is that every acre of crops grown by the future farmers in their supervised farming programs has had a soil test

Sixty samples wer etaken by the FFA'ers and sent to the Soil Testing Laboratory at Auburn. Fertilier recommendaitons according tc needs of the crop to be grown and the amount of fertilizer already in the soil were followed in purchasing fertilizer for spring crops. Mr. J. Reed Thompson, local adviser says that in some cases the tests saved money for the students because the fertilizer recommendations were not as high as they would have likely used.

Coach Finlayson and Coach Scruggs played mostly second string players the last half. The Tigers failed to score in the third quarter but played good defensive ball.

Clanton final score came in the final seconds of the fourth quarter. Quarterback John Will Wyatt passed to halfback Tommy Shelton for the six points. The play covered 52 yards.

The scoring went like this. Shelton 18 points, Monroe 7 points John Wyatt 1 point, Mims 6 points.

Clanton had more yards rushing in this game than in any other.

labama Cotton Crop even-eights Picked ama's cotton chop was about eights picked by the end of ek. Good progress was also arvesting corn, peanuts, soy- and grain sorghum. Light near the end of the period field operations only tem- ly.

A week of open weather allowed farmers to make god progress gathering their cotton crop. Picking ranged from virtually complete in southern counties to about 70 per cent finished in the latest areas of the northeast. As the season progressed, boll snapping became more prevalent.

Corn picking advanced rapidly during the period. Harvest reached the half way mark in a number of counties. County Agents in a few counties reported 90 percent or more of the corn crop already in the crib. Yields vary considerably, even within counties depending in large part on moisture available during the growing season.

Soybean harvest is at its peak in the commercial area of the southwest, and is underway in other areas of the State. Good to excellent yields of high quality beans were general in the commercial area. Combining grain sorghum increased during the week. Harvest of this crop generally follows corn harvest. Peanut threshing is in the final stages. The Federal-State Inspection Service had inspected 94,362 tons of 1960 crop through November 7. A total crop of 107,250 tons forecast for this year.

Seeding of winter grains and grazing crops continued. A shortage of moisture hindered germination of recently seeded fields and retarded growth of early fields in southern counties. Many fields, however, are supplying good grazing at the present time. Top dressing of early planted fields with nitrogen was underway.

Digging of sweetpotatoes was rushed in Cullman County in an attempt to complete harvest before killing frosts. Light supplies of good quality tomatoes moved from mountain areas of Blount and St. Clair Counties Harvest of pecans was in full swing in Mobile County and underway in other southern counties. First marketings moved at several cents above last year's opening price.

Short days and cooler weather caused seasonal deterioration of permanent pastures. Early good grazing for this time of year is still available except in southern and southeastern areas. Dry weather in that region has caused a shortage of grazing and farmers were moving livestock to glean fields as harvest was completed. Marketing of livestock, especially cattle, was seasonally heavy.

DURING OCTOBER—

COTTON HARVESTED AT FAST CLIP

Alabama farmers made good progress harvesting cotton during October, the Alabama Crop and Livestock Reporting Service announced today. Ginnings prior to November 1 were enumerated by the Bureau of the Census at 627,314 bales, or 82.2 percent of the 765,000-bale crop now in prospect. Ginning to this date last year accounted for 83.4 percent of production and the 1949-58 average is 89.5. percent.

Prospects declined slightly during the past month. Ginnings to date indicate the crop is coming up a little short of preharvest expectations in parts of North Ala. Indicated yield per acre of 422 pounds however has been surpassed only by the record yield of 478 pounds harvested in 1955. Per acre yields in north Alabam are somewhat lower than the excellent crop of 1959. Yields in other areas exceed those of last year.

Ginning to November 1 accounted for over 95 percent of the South Alabama crop, about nine-tenths of central Alabama's production and about three-fourths the outturn expected in north Alabam. Almost two-thirds of the crop forecast for Sand Mountain, Alabama's latest cotton area was in the bale as October ended. Farmers pushed cotton harvest during the first week of November in a period of open weather. By November 8 about seven-eighths of the crop now indicated had been picked.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Headley visited Mr. and Mrs. Clayton McCullough in Clanton Sunday afternoon. Several of the families were together for the first time in a good while, as one of the children had been in Alaska for some time

Don't forget services at the Mt. Nebo Church Sunday. There will be worship at 11:00 a.m. and the MYF will meet a tPleasant Grove at 6:00 p.m. with preaching immediately afterwards.

Wood for the house to be built years from now should be growing in some forest today. Because of the long period it takes to produce lumber, a good system of planned reforestation is needed for the country.

Whenever possible, have a cover guard to enclose dangerous machine belts and pulleys.

MR. CHILTON FARMER—

GET SOIL READY BEFORE TIME TO PLANT

William R. Futral
Assistant County Agent

Too often we make the mistake of waiting until it's time to plant to start getting the land ready.

If you plan to plant dallis grass, coastal bermuda or bahia grass next spring, niw is hte time ot start.

Good seedbed preparation is an important step in the successful establishment of a clover-grass permanent pasture and will pay off for several years.

Here are some items to consider now that may save you time and money in the future:

1. Lime and fertilize according to to soil test.
2. Prepare your seedbed well in advance of planting.
3. Thoroughly mix lime and fertilizer with the top soil by disking.
4. Smooth the seedbed with a harrow or drag before planting.
5. Firm the soil with a cultipacker after seeding.

You know how hard it is to mow or spray a pasture where there are stumps or the surface is rough. Research and experience have proved that you can't substitute more seed for good land preparation. Good pastures will pay cash dividends. If the weather permits why not start now and be ready to plant pastures in late February or March.

POLITICS will thaw out for a while now, and a well-earned thaw it is too!

SOME people don't know the meaning of the word hate or discrimination. . . they call it 'doing their duty'!

MANY of the comments made by the newspapers during the recent campaign for the presidency indicated that a lot of editors were confused about just what was going to happen. . . as things turned out, they were right. . . they were confused!

"BEAUTY is in the eye of the beholder", or: chances are good that if you 'look' ugly, you'll see ugly!

SOMETIMES we feel like too many people are more concerned with the status quo rather than the abilities and how we apply them to the betterment of our society. Tomorrow's status quo depends entirely upon the actions which we take today and how we use the talents which God has seen fit to give us. The "giving to us" of our heritage is not nearly as important as how we use our abilities and talents to improve upon it! We would have no heritage, had not our forefathers applied their talents and understanding.

ONE thing which the election brought to bare stronger than any other, to our way of thinking, is that the man who receives the popular vote in any election is the man who should serve in the office in question. We know little of the electoral college (which is exactly the point -- not many people do), but we do know that if the majority is going to rule, then that is where the power should lie. . . with the majority!!

Hunter Problem--

NOW that the hunting season is upon us it is apparent that percautions are necessary so that ardent hunters do not invade the privacy and rights of property owners in their quest for game.

A case in point was related to us this week by Mrs. Harold Culp of Route Three Clanton, who was very disturbed over the fact that some hunters had killed her children's riding horse in their own pasture. She was not only disturbed, she was downright angry and she commented on the fact that earlier the same week she heard what she thought to be a rifle shot hit the side of her home.

Now this sort of thing is inexcusable and most certainly uncalled for. If a so-called hunter (and we use the term loosely) knows anything at all about firearms, and most of them seem to know only how to load them and pull the trigger, he would take the necessary precautions and not fire a gun in any direction where the possibility of hitting anyone or any domestic animal existed. It's not what you aim at, but what you hit that matters! There are laws governing the range of the weapon with which you hunt and there are also laws about invading privacy and shooting up another man's property.

But, more important than any of these is the possibility that next time it might be a child (Mrs. Culp, for instance, has three) and no game in this world or any other is worth even a small percentage of a child's life!

The next time you go hunting, go with the realization of the destructive power of the weapon you carry and command and also the thought ever in mind that thinking ahead applies in hunting with firearms, just as much as in driving your car or doing your job.

It is apparent that too many hunters, not only abuse the privileges left open to them, but also their lack of common sense renders them dangerously ignorant to the dangers of firearms. These two shortcomings could very well cause a catastrophe and turn your hunting outing into a haunting nightmare. Somebody owes Mr. and Mrs. Culp a horse. There is also the ever present possibility that your 'target' could shoot back; so choose that target well, Mr., before squeezing that trigger! The skin you 'bag' may very well be your own!

A Matter Of Honor--

IT has been mentioned to us during the week that some members of the Democratic Executive Committee voted the Republican Ticket in the November 8 General Election. Certainly we are not inferring that any man is not entitled to his own choice, but when anyone serves a specific cause, he is honor bound to support that cause or else resign his position of official capacity.

Serving as a member of the Democratic or Republican or any other Committee, is most assuredly a specific cause and anyone feeling that he or she could not support that cause in every respect should state such feelings and offer a resignation befitting the holder of an important position.

If you are an Independent, then you should not take the partisan responsibilities which go along with serving on an Executive Committee, unless it is the Independent Executive Committee.

State your cause and your allegiance and then stick by your convictions. Everyone, be he Democrat, Republican or Independent will think all the more of you for standing up and clarifying your position. You cannot play both ends from the middle in any undertaking and get far toward either end for very long. Sooner or later your two-facedness will come to light and your word will not mean very much to very many. As a matter of fact, under those circumstances, your word would mean very little to you, yourself.

You And The Fire Department--

WE have had numerous accounts related to us this past week concerning the fire that destroyed the Wells home on Higgins Ferry Road last Friday morning. Some folks have a misunderstanding of the City's position in such an emergency and we'd like to clear the air at this point.

First of all, the City Fire Department is proven one of the best in the State and their alertness and devotion to the cause of fighting fires is unquestionable.

For a fire outside the City limits and the Police Jurisdiction, a charge of $60 is made and must be accepted by a responsible party before the City will dispatch its facilities. This was clarified to us by Mayor Jackson, who stated that whoever called in the alarm could accept the responsibility and the truck would be dispatched immediately. You do not have to sign a promissory note or anything of the sort before the Department will answer your call for help. The $60 charge is made to offset the expenses involved in answering a call which is miles from town and the Department's first duty is to the town's taxpayers that sustain it.

Upon investigation of Friday's fire, it was disclosed that the party calling in decided, during the conversation, that the house was too far gone and that it would be useless to send the truck. They obviously felt that the expense would be impractical since the fire had such a head start.

According to our information, the home involved is approximately one mile outside the Police Jurisdiction of Clanton which extends to Concord School.

There were charges that the fire siren did not sound until fifteen minutes after the call for help. This is unfounded, because the Mayor, who happened to be present at the time, stated that the party calling nullified the alarm by stating that they did not want the fire department, that the house was too far gone to help. Before you repeat such statements, be sure you know of what you speak and can depend on your source of information. In this case, you could damage a reputation which is outstanding and deserves the support of the people whom it serves. The Clanton Fire Department is at your disposal and we stand ready to vouch for their good intentions and fast action.

YOUR HEALTH

HEALTH OF THE AGED

"We older folks have to expect a lot of aches and pains." That is an opinion in a large group of persons 65 years of age and over. There may be a large number of illnesses; but few are serious enough, according to the older persons, to require medical care. In fact, despite the many illnesses reported in a recent survey, most older people do not think they are sick.

Half if all those over 65 who were interviewed reported their health as good. This estimate was confirmed by relatives and friends of those interviewed who stated the older person's health was good, or good for his age. Most illnesses reported by older people are chronic ones of long duration, and half of the total illness was reported as having bothered these older people for five or more years. Most older people, as reported in the survey, usually will not see a doctor unless they experience an acute illness or beleve they are seriously ill.

When the question of cost came up, only one in sixteen mentioned lack of money as a reason for not seeing a doctor. Figures indicate that only from 3 to 5 per cent of the 15 million older people in this country are in institutions. Two-thirds of the people interviewed reported illnesses, but had not seen a doctor; and their reason reveal an attitude toward health problems differing from that of the general population. Most of them said they did not fel sick enough to see a doctor, and most of them thought they were competent to treat their illness themselves.

Three out of every four oldsters 'interviewed opined' "The way things are now, people can expect to feel pretty good when they are 70."

CENTRALISM DANGEROUS SLIGH SAYS

American government is suffering from an over-dose of centralism, Charles R. Sligh, Jr., executive vice-president of theNational Association of Manufacturers, asserted in two recent speeches.

Too many problems that should be handled by state and local governments have been dumped on the Federal government, he asid.

Addressing Kiwanians in Wilmington, Del., and the Industrial Association of Northwest Ohio in Elyria, O., Sligh called attention to an NAM study of federal functions called "The Primrose Part of Centralism."

This study points out that there are functions which only the national government can perform, and that these are particularly critical today," he said.

"It asks whether we can expect to find a President and cabinet so capacious beyond ordinary met that they can be expected to provide the right decisions and administration to our foreign affairs, our defense our place in space and other truly national arminister free food stamp local sewage disposal and middle income housing projects."

The NAM offical said many people hold the mistaken belief that many problems can be solved more efficiently by the national government than by the states and localities.

Contradicting this idea, he pointed out that billions have been spent over the past quarter century to solve the farm problem, yet it remains the number one domestic problem.

The cure for centralism Sligh said, "is to bring government back home."

"No President and no Congress can make billions do the work of brains," he declared. "All the brains in our cities and states are needed to solve our problems, not just those in marble columned ofice buildings along the Potomac."

Manners Important In Thanksgiving Driving

Floyd H. Mann said today, "As we get ready to celebrate Thanksgiving Day next Thursday, we should think a great deal about our manners."

Have you ever observed the discourteous and ill-mannered drivers who feel that the highway really belongs to them? No doubt you have. They are easily spotted due to their selfish, discourtous behavior patterns. Some of them are called road hogs. Others are known as speed demons.

Slow Pokes—

Next, we recognize another dangerous group of drivers we shall call the slow pokes. Then, there is the group that anyone of us might fall in unless we stay alert; those who fail to give signals, and do what we think are small and insignificant violations, such as jumping amber lights and easing by a stop sign if an officer of the law is not in sight. These violations show bad manners and a disregard for life.

Heavy Traffic—

Director Mann said, "As we face the Thanksgiving holidays, traffic will be heavier than normal and our exposure to the dangers of nomal traffic will increase. Also, our exposure to the happy-go-lucky irresponsible drivers always inceases on weekends and major holidays."

Good Manners—Good driving—

Mr. Mann pointed out the fact that those who will take time to use good manners in traffic during the holidays will have an excellent chance of going through the holidays without a traffic mishap. If you make it a habit to obey all traffic laws, not only you but everyone will be safer. Safe, sane, courteous driving on your part may cause others to follow your example of safe driving.

I hope that every motorist will refuse to take chances in traffic today and every day; that everyone will help protect himself and others by following the rules of the road, and applying lots of common sense and courtesy to their driving habits.

The Control Center—

The Director also pointed out the fact that many say that traffic control begins with steering wheel. He said, "That is close to the control center, but the control of every vehicle is the person behind the wheel." It is the person behind the wheel that determines whether the horsepower will be used in a way that its passengers may be safely transported upon the highways, or whether ii will become a mass of high speted desruction pointed toward innocent bystanders or other motorist who happen to be traveling at that moment at a place that may later be marked as the spot where the fatal accident occurred.

Life And Death—

Bad manners in traffic can well mean the difference between life and death.

Mr. Mann concluded his remarks by saying, "Help make this your safest Thanksgiving Holiday Season by:

1. Knowing and obeying the traffic laws.
2. Applying lots of common sense and courtesy.
3. Yielding the right of way quickly when others demand it, the chances are that you will live longer.'

RAYS OF HOPE

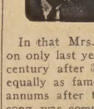
—(The following is the first in what we hope will be a long lived column writen by a local lass and concerning the people of Chilton County and their opinions. It is a first for this County and for the News and we hope you wil lend your support to the column by reading it. This week Mr. W. H. Wilson was interviewed. We hope you like the results)—THE ED.

By Virginia H. Stover

The Autumn months are a good time to seek the solace that comes from the quiet of mother nature. It is a good time to learn anew what peace is found in silence. A walk through the woods to view the unlimited beauty of the leaves and feel the crisp air on your face can bring much inner contentment. To rob one's self of this priviledge is like refusing the best part of life. At this season the "hills declare the glory of God" and we find a yearning within us to draw a little closer to the Source of all power and strength. A new hope is born within us and our faith is strengthened.

We find ourselves quoting our favorite Scripture verses an wondering what our friends favorite verse is. Each week this column will give one of Chilton county's residents favorite verses. If you would like to have your selection printed here just mail to me along with any comment you wish to give. There is strength and comfort to be found in God's word and it is a precious heritage. Until next week then remember-There are Rays of HOPE for you just as long as you keep Hoping.

This weeks favorit Scripture verse was selected by Mr. W. H. Wilson who is 81 years old and has lived in Chilton County all of these years except one when he lived in Talledega. Mr. Wilson's selection reads thus: "Remove not the ancient landmark, which thy fathers have set." Prov :22-28. He is of the opinion that we need to return to the things our fore-fathers taught us in regards to spiritual things. I think he has a good point to think about, don't you?



HI VANCE'S USED YARN LOT

50 YEARS OF HUMOR

In that Mrs. Casey Jones passed on only last year, more than a half century after her famed husband's equally as famous wreck, and many annums after the widely circulated song was composed about it, I am intermittenly reminded of some correspondence I had with the dear Lady some years back.

It was on the anniversary of the song that I printed the ditty in its entirety with comments on the engineers death, the saving of his fireman, whom he commanded to jump, and other pertinent items about the man who had hailed from Jackson, Tennessee, and had married a belle from there.

Unfortunately, I had then quoted from memory and had allowed a verse to creep in which I later learned was writtenby a pardodist. Some one mailed my comments to Mrs. Jones, who was living to a ripe old age in Memphis. at the time.

Old timers will remember that particular verse, wherin the recently widowed female was supposed to have told the surviving tykes:

"Go to bed, Children, and hush your cryin'—
'Cause you got another Papa on the Salt Lake Line."

At her suggestion in a letter thanking me for the piece, I brought out in a later article that the former belle of Jackson had notified me that particular couplet had certainly had not appeared in the original authentic version of the ballad, but had been pardized and adred by a person who was seemingly a habitue of some bistr in an effort to smear the hero in an otherwise happy and innocent song.

THINGS We see and hear

by BOB

WE just finished reading an article in Reader's Digest entitled "America, Wake Up" and Gen. Romulo, the Phillipino who wrote the article hit the nail on the head and put into words the things which weve been thinking for the past several months with regards to our weak foreign policy and "watered down" efforts in handling Communism and all who represent it.

We are against taking a stand against anothers religion or another's belief when basically we believe in the same thing, namely God! But, it is our strong opinion that it is time all Americans 'stand up' to Communism for what it is, and give no ground, nor courtesy and no apologies to anyone who does not put the Almighty first in their living. Also, these Godless men have threatened to 'bury' us and to take over the world. It makes us mad for our President to apologize to these atheistic monsters; it serves no good cause and certainly does not promote peace. It makes us pretty hot to learn that we coddle the whims of these dictators and bow to their every wish as if we owed them something and that they were our superiors. They are our equals, in regards to man, and if we cannot win them over with kindness and understanding, then we must fight, tooth and nail, the outrage which they represent -- which is world Communism.

The Lord did not mean to 'turn the other cheek' when it meant the threatening to end mankinds freedom and slavery for His people. He himself said that there would be those in this world whom we would have to resist and we think Communism fits into that category perfectly.

We are sick and tired of our state department 'negotiating' with people who cannot be negotiated with. To them it is nothing to be sincere and the truth is only a tool to gain their unscrupulous ends. If lying fits the ocasion, then lie they will! We cannot reason with men like this and we must show them that we will stand, fight, yes die fir the cause of Christianity throughout the world. If we stand firm, with the Power behind us, the

by ORAL ROBERT

THE PERSON GOD USES

A man stood on the outskirts of the city, surrounded by an angry mob. The mob was throwing stones, screaming, and hurling abuses at him. He had been condemned to death by the Jewish council and sentenced to execution by stoning.

Why was this man, whose name was Stephen, being stoned? He had robbed no banks; he had murdered no one. He had committed no crimes. Instead, he had been praying for the healing of the sick—performing miracles of deliverance among the needy people of his day.

He was not a minister but a layman. However, the Bible says he was full of faith. He was willing to do anything he could through the Spirit of God. There was nothing too big or too little for him to do.

Stephen had felt the call of the Lord and had gone out to help people. But as he ministered to them, a great host of the Jewish leaders became jealous of him and made up lies about him. They said that Stephen had blasphemed God, which was a capital crime under Jewish law.

Even as the mob testified against him, Stephen testified to them of his love for God. They became so incensed toward him that they fell upon him and began to stone him. But Stephen

Tests Indicate General Soil Trends

In one year, from July 1959 to June 1960, the Auburn University Soil Testing Laboratory tested 24,883 soil samples for Alabama farmers. These figures mean only one thing great progress has been made toward fertilizing Alabama crops according to the best research information available.

These tests are not only valuable to individual farmers, but they tend to point to general needs in Alabama soils. One of the most notable examples of this is the fact htat over half the fields tested last year needed lime, says Dr. Walter Sowell, Auburn Extension soil management specialist.

Since lime can be applied during the slack season in fall and winter, Dr. Sowell suggests that farmers plan next year's crop now and send samples to the laboratory to determine the lime and fertilizer needs of their soil. Detailed information on shipping and obtaining samples are available at county agents' offices.

Moisture, Insects Enemies of Stored Seed Says Expert

The quality of seed cannot be restored after it has been damaged by moisture or insects. And that is why most Alabama farmers make a habit of inspecting their stored seed regularly.

Check the roof and walls of the storage building for leaks and the floor for seep moisture, reminds Melvin Moorer, Auburn Extension specialist in seed marketing. Weevils and other insects can be easily end economically controlled by fumigation. And Moorer recommends a three to one mixture of ethylene dichloride and carbon tetrachloride for seed and grain or pyreone for shelled corn and grain for this purpose.

Deer, Turkey Season Opens With Record Numbers Of Hunters

The 1960-61 deer and turkey season opened throughout Alabama Nov. 10. Conservation Director William C. Younger said the seahunters would find the largest combined deer and turkey population recorded in Alabam in the past 30 years.

Deer population figures from latest Conservation Department preseason game inventories, show 100. 650 deer — 12,650 over the last year for the highest single gain recorded, and the largest herd since the middle 19th century.

Turkey population figures show a continual increase with an estimated 62,393 birds, an increase of 4,000 over last year.

Younger said hunting opens on private lands and on some managed hunts for bucks only with antlers visible above the natural hair-line.

From all indicatiins, an estimated 30,000 hunters will take to Alabama forest and fields this week in quest of the white-tailed deer, and the elusive tom turkey. The hunter estimate is based on 311,454 hunting licenses sold in the 1959-60 season. This represents a gain of over 5,000 license sold over the previous season.

In announcing the opening big game season, Younger called on sportsmen to respect and obey reguiations govering game hunting in Alabama, and to observe sate hunting practices.

"To anticipate future hunter demand, and to protect the present population against illegal shooting, the Game and Fish Division under Charles Kelley, has instigated one of the most effective law enforcement programs in the state to date," Younger said.

Outlining the enforcement program, Keley said, "It is the Conservation Deuartment's desire that every hunter bag his legal deer and enjoy hunting for the clean sport that it is, but hte violator will find the sledding tough."

He said hunting areas would be patrolled on land, on water, and from the air by both Game and Fish and Water Safety personnel. Movement of these forces will be coordinated by 30 addtiional two-way radio units, installed since last season.

Kelley reminded hunters of the unlawful hunting of deer and turkey from any type vehicle on land or water, and destroying the sex, or mutilating them to make the determination of sex uncertain.

Game and Fish regulations say only buck with antlers visible above the natural hair-line may be taken one a day, or three a season. The turkey limit is restricted to gobblers only, and one a day, or five a season may be taken.

On the use of firearms, the Game and Fish Chief said shotguns and rifle are legal in Alabam, while hunting on private land. When hunting in public management areas rifles of.240 caliber or larger, using softnose or hollow point ammunition, or shotguns 20 gauge or largerusing slugs only are legal on stalk hunts. Shotguns 20 gauge or larger using buckshot only are legal on dog hunts.

Deer hunter permits will be issued from checking stations located within the management areas, and will be open from 5 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Conservation Director Younger urged sportsmen to follow the first rule of good sportsmanship: "Make your shots true, insuring that an animal will not be left to die a lingering death. Make your shots as clean as the sport itself, and the sportsman you are."

Home Storing Meat Easy; Gives Top Quality Flavor

The old smoke house, once a standard building on every farm, is gone. But not without leaving its mark on a lot of people who still remember how a country-cured ham tastes.

If you are harboring a desire for an old fashioned cured ham, try storing meat at home, suggests Ray Cacender, Auburn Extension Service meat marketing specialist. People are doing it these days. In fact, after having an animal killed and processed, many people are finding that the freezer locker plant doesn't have adequate facilitites to stoe cured meat properly, Cavender points out. And home-storing becomes a necessity.

Cavenred gives the following tips on storing meat. Excesive moisture on meat will produce molds that cause undersirable flavors and odor and may contribute to spoilage. But storing meat in a room that is cool dark, dry and well ventilated with a temperature of 65 to 70 degrees should take care of the problem. If molds occur under these conditions they are harmless and ncabebrusdeh they are harmless and can be brushed off easily.

A clean storage area and the application of recommended insecticides will take care of insecst. But wrapping meat and making sure that windows and doors fit are also good precautions to take.

Most home wrapping artists use a heavy paper and wrap each piece separately and securely making sure that there are no insects on the meat, according to Cavender. Placing the wrapped meat in a bag and stuffing paper around it helps to absorb moisture and ham drippings. The last step is to fold the neck of the bag over and double tie with heavy string or small wires. Then hang the bag from the wire so that it can swing freely.

Following this procedure, you should have a ham with a genuine country cured flavor in about six months, Cavender says. x

Save By Buying Quality Potatoes

Knowing certain quality guides can be the difference in obtaining good products. And when selecting sweet potatoes, smart shoppers know that potatoes which are smooth, well-shaped, plump, fresh and clean are usually high quality, says Dorothy Overbey, Auburn Extension specialist in consumer education.

Well-shaped potatoes have less waste according to Miss Overbey. And clean ones are less likely to decay. Slight dark scars on the skin do not injure the flesh if only skin-deep. However, decay spots are objectionable because flavor is disagreeable even when spots are removed.

For added protection, store sweet potatoes in a cool place and avoid brusing while handling them, the specialists says.

Verbena's Homecoming

The Verbena Red Devils played the Billingsley Bears. It was Verbena's Homeconing. Before the game Gwen Frucci was crowned Miss Homecoming. Her escourt was Tommy Pierce. Alternated were Nancy Carmicheal escorted by Roy Ball, and Eloise Wilson escorted by Gerald Grifin.

TommyPierce made the extra point to make the score 7-0 in Verbena's favor. Billingsley then took the ball and drove hard to make the score 7-6. The Bears did not make the extra poitn. Neither team scored during the second quarter.

In the third quarter Billy Thomas ran fifty yards to have a fine touchdown called back. The Red Devils then pushed the Bears around and Timmy Pierce made a touchdown.

In the fourth quarter, J. R. Jones took the ball across the goal to make the score 19-6. Wesley Robinson missed the extra point. In the final minutes of the game, George L. Dobbs intercepted a beautiful pass intended for a Billingsley. The final score was Verbena 19 and Billingsley 6.

EARLY!—

POSTMASTER SAYS MAIL FOR CHRISTMAS

Faced with the possibility that the 1960 Christmas season will set an all time holiday mailing relord, Postmaster R. R. Sutley announced today that he's starting his annual "Mail Early For Christmas" Campaign immediately.

The Postmaster offers these helpfhl mailing tips to insure delivery of your Chistmas cards and gifts on time.

First, check your Christmas card list very carefully, make sure each addess is complete with full name, street and number, city, zone and state. Second, for your Christmas gift packages, stock up now on heavy wrapping paper, sturdy rorrugated dartons, stong rod, and pape adhesive tape. Third, remember that you ran include your Christmas card or letter inside your gift package by adding the appropriate First Class postage to the package itself. Fourth, buy your postage stamps now. Don't wait until the last minute when long lines form at the stamp windows.

The Post Office will help you plan your Christmas mailings. Get a copy of Pamplet No. 2 which gives full information about proper packaging and wrapping of parcels. The Post Office will also supply free labels which read, "All for local delivery" and "All for out of town delivery", so that you can sort your Christmas cards into two groups, with addresses all facing one way, thus insuring fast delivery.

Use only First Class postage on your Christmas cards. Cards sent by First Class four cent, or seven cent Air Mail, may include personal handwritten messages. First Class mail also receives full forwarding and return service. Don't fail to put your return address on every Christmas card envelope. Not only is this socially correct, but is helps tremendously to keep the mailing lists of both you and your friend up to date.

This Is Farm-City Week

EACH year the mutual dependence of Farmers and Merchants is brought to light in the celebration of Farm-City Week, this year observed November 21st through November 26th in Chilton County and throughout the nation.

The week is so designated to bring about a closer understanding and broadened harmony between farmer and businessman and to show the public the meaning and the 'harvest' realized through cooperation.

This year, as we celebrate this occasion, it would be appropriate for the farmers-businessmen of Chilton County to take stock of their attitude toward one another and see whether or not they can improve relations by understanding more fully, the other fellow's problems.

Farm-City Week is just what it implies and we here in Chilton can profit greatly through a greater realization of the problem facing us and a closer working together and swapping of ideas in order to solve these problems to the best interests of all concerned.

Local Officer Takes Still By Himself

"SOMETIMES, in an emergency, there's nothing else you can do" said Chief Deputy Sheriff T. J. Lockhart, commenting on his single-handed action on a 400 gallon tank-type still on Sunday, November 13th!

Deputy Lockhart apprehended Howard T. Campbell, 36 and Grover Hubbard, 40 at the site of the still in the vicinity of Communities Northeast of Clanton.

No whiskey was confiscated, but 400 gallons of mash was poured out, according to Lockhart and the still destroyed.

Time of the arrests was about 10:00 a.m. Sunday and Lockhart said he was intending to scout the operation so that it could be raided, but he ran up on the operators and there was nothing he could do but act.

Campbell and Hubard are out on $500 bond, according to the Sheriff's office. They are charged with manufacturing and possessing illegal beverages.

CHRISTMAS SEALS—

MAYOR PROCLAIMS SEAL WEEK

An official proclamation, signed by Mayor Jackson, today designated this week as Christmas Seal Week.

In special recognition of the work of the Chilton County Tuberculosis Association, the Mayor urged all residents to contribute to the Christmas Seal Campaign now in progress.

Two outstanding problems in the control of tuberculosis in this area were cited by the Mayor who said, "Efforts to find the unknown cases of TB among people over 40 must be intensified, as a large part of the TB problem is now among our older citizens, especially men.

"Our community also needs increased rehabilitation facilities to help the growing number of TB patients who are recovering from the disease to once again become productive members of society."

The Proclamation follows:

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, tuberculosis is a major health problem in Chilton County with nearly 200 people currently under treatment or in need of medical supervision;

WHEREAS, with adequate help from the community, the great majority of TB patients can be expected to recover and maintain their health;

WHEREAS, we are determined to protect our homes from invasion by this contagious disease,

I, J. H. Jackson, Mayor of Clanton, urge every citizen to contribute generously to the Christmas Seal appeal of the Chilton County TB Asociation, to help support its program designed for the protection of us all from tuberculosis.

RUSSELL Jones, age 53, was shot and killed Saturday night at about 6:00 p.m. when his son, during an argument, shot him once in the stomach and once in the upper chest penetrating the neck, with a 25 calibre pistol.

The Jones family lives in Marbury, south of Clanton just across the Chilton-Autauga County line. The son, John Paul, 22 was arrested and placed in custody at the Autauga County Jail.

Martin's ambulance answered the call and T. J. Lockhart, Chief Deputy Sheriff (Chilton) also went along. He reported that the elder Jones was dead on arrival at the County Hospital in Clanton.

Alabama Youth Plan Chicago Trip

Four Alabama 4-H'ers have been proclaimed state winners and recipients of expense-paid trips to the 39th National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, Nov. 27 through Dec. 1st, according to the Cooperative Extension Service.

Julia Frost

Alma Arant

McCullar

Bullock

These outstanding young people are: Julia Frost, 18, of Calera, clothing winner; Alma Elizabeth Arant, 18, Equality, dress revue winner; Jackie McCullar, 16, Jasper, the first state automotive winner; and Stacey Bullock, 17, Evergreen, agricultural winner.

Miss Frost, an eight-year 4-H'er, is enrolled in home economics at Alabama College and hopes to become a home demonstration agent. In eight years of clothing, she made a total of 614 garments through which she estimates a savings of $1,260.

She is a past president of Calera Junior-Senior 4-H Club, and served as recreation leader of the 4-H County Council, and neighbor-aide leader in Spring Creek-Valley Grove community.

Her Chicago award trip is sponsored by Coats & Clark Inc.

Pretty nine-year 4-H'er, Alma Elizabeth Arant, is another girl with sewing talent and adeptness in costume designing and modeling. Although she is now attending Massey-Draughn Business College, her future plans are to major in home economics or designing at Auburn College.

Her prize-winning costume was a bustled-evening gown of peau de soir and matching white Chantilly lace. She spent $21 on the lovely creation and estimates its value at $150.

She will model it again at the national 4-H dress revue at the Chicago congress staged by the Simplicity Pattern Co., program sponsor.

This is the first year for the 4-H automotive awards program, sponsored by the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company. So seven-year 4-H'er Jackie McCullar is its first state winner in Alabama.

In 1958 Walker county was chosen as one of three pilot counties in Alabama to start a 4-H automotive project. McCullar has spearheaded the project in Jasper.

Through McCullar's group are stressed the objectives of the automotive program: the importance of safe motor vehicle operation and maintenance, and observance of motor vehicle and traffic laws.

Being the agricultural state winner is a "natural" for six-year 4-H'er Stacey Bullock who lives on a 3,600-acre farm. He has managed the hog herd, improved the pastureland, worked in the 250-acre cotton fields and had charge of the garden.

For his conservation project, he planted 18,000 pine seedlings on 21 acres of unused farm land to produce timber and prevent erosion. With profits from calves, he has saved $1,156 toward his college education.

International Harvester Co. sponsors his club congress trip and all other awards in the agricultural program.

HINGS We see and hear

by BOB

F you have ever jokingly re- ed to the "Bee Keepers Asso- ion of Alabama" take it from ain't no joke! There really ch an organization. Quite a one we might say and some y nice fellers indeed.

might also add, that if you know what its like to be t in a 'bee hive you can take from us too, we've been there! ll started innocently enough us waiting on the steps of the ay Inn in Montgomery prior ting in on a meeting of the tive Committee of the Cen- Alabama Rehabilitation Com- (Crippled Children). Some men showed up on the inside thought we'd find out if they friendly or otherwise. Turned ey were too durn friendly and t all mixed up with the Bee- rs! We realized we had made take when someone asked us c going to say something about honey, aren't you?" that got us to wondering honey had to do with Crip- Children and thinking also, who the heck was 'Honey'!

were most cordially introduc- about 20 folks who, it turned idn't want to meet us at all, e wouldn't take anything for xperience.

ually it wasn't our fault; ex- he fact that we look like a y bumpkin come to town. troduced ourselves and before ld get any further than 'from n. . .' we were being robust- eted, welcomed and pounded back by two very nice gen- n. Well now, we're not one ue about the trivial, so when tle group started acting like old home week, we figured nock it', we thought we were e Flynn'.

hen George said 'come on and e a cup of coffee with us.' t's where we met the delega- and we were lapping up the at- ion when all of a sudden onc able gentleman said 'Have yoı our display over here?' Wel' hadn't, and we looked and there a bee hive swarming with live mind you and honey in little big jars and middle size jars over hte place! Needless to say, were no longer wondering what ey' had to do with Crippled dren. . . absolutely nothing! Neal Miller of Safford, Ala. President mind you) and a d suggested that we go back re we started from and see their exhibit! We knew the place deserted compared to this rm' of humanity and bees too we welcomed the oportunity tc de the scene'. When we got tside (after rationally considering hat running would be out of the uestion) we strongly suggested the ossibility of a mistake having been made by somebody, somewhere and they sat up to listen. They hadn't suspected us for an imposter in the least! 'Fellows', we began, 'I think we're making a mistake here, I'm supposed to be in a meeting for Crippled Children.' 'You mean you're not from the Montgomery Advertiser?' asked one shocked Beekeeper. And thereby hangs a tale! Our committee was meeting right next door to their convention and we had all been taken in by a bit of mischeivous misunderstanding.

Now, we began to enjoy the experience, mainly because at last, we were on the offensive and they were looking for a reasonable way to get rid of us withhout doing bodily harm to a member of the press. We told them we were from the newspaper in Clanton and they warmed considerably and showed us the entire layout and we learned a lot about Apiaries and bees. (Didn't stay long enough to get any lessons on birds, but we figured we better not push our luck!)

Neal Miller, Jr. is the President of the Southern States Conference of Beekeepers and he and his brother and a host of fine ladies and gentlemen treated us with much cordiality. The way things turned out, it's a good thing we didn't run because they gave us a sample of some fine honey and they also had to go through our dining room to get to their own, so we saw quite a lot of them the remainder of the evening. It was a wonderful experience which we wouldn't take anything for, but should we know beforehand that it is going to happen to us, well friend, we'll follow that first impulse and run like a Thanksgving Turkey that's been sat on by an Alabama Bee! We'll always have a place in our heart for the Beekeepers of Alabama and the Southern United States and we hope they don't think too hard of us just because we don't know a Beekeeper when we see one or a bee hive from a wasp's nest!

MR. Doc Levine, head of Crippled Children in Chilton County, calls our attention to the fact that the Local Carpenter's Union in Clanton (No. 2286) is about as interested a body as you can find in Chilton County in Crippled Children. The most recent check donated by the Local was for $124 and they are always concerned about this group in our County. Speaking for the public, if we may, we'd like to thank these gentlemen, not only for their donation, but for their interest in this organization and hope they will continue their much needed and appreciated support of the Crippled Children and Adults in this area!

THE mother of our children has got the sewing bug! We don't mind mind you, it saves us untold dollars for clothes for she and the young-'uns! It's just that she's kinda new at the game and with that new machine and all. . . well, to tell you the truth, we're just getting sick and tired of buttoning up our socks and having to cut our pockets open every morning! Come on, Sugar!!

FELLOW came in the other day who had invented a new gadget which would make a job which we have been doing the hard way for years, look like child's play. Durn smart aleck!

ONE of these days we're going to run for the House or the Senate and the first bill we will introduce will be one in support of the poor husband (naturally). It will be to the effect that it should be unlawful for a housewife to purchase more than a half pound of balogna at one time. If we're lucky maybe we can make a Federal case out of it. It isn't that we have anything personal against balogna, understand; but as one fellow so ably reminded us 'folks get tired of ice cream and cake if you give 'em enough of it;' or peaches and cream or even (if you'll pardon the expression) honey. . . anyway, you get the message! The danger exists that we will turn to balogna—we've already been accused of it!

Use hot, sudsy water to wash oily dust cloths and store in an air-tight container to prevent combustion.

ACROSS THE EDITOR'S DESK—

READER THINKS DOGS SHOULD BE 'LODGED' AT NIGHT

There is an Ordinance which says that dogs are to be kept up within the City limits. I love animals as much as anyone, but I do not feel that dogs should be allowed to run loose at night, to upset garbage cans, or in the daytime to completely ruin the yards and shrubery of neighbors, who pay much in time and money to keep their yards clean and beautiful.

If those who own these 'pets' really love them they will keep them in their own yards and not let them run loose to molest other peoples property. If they don't, then the City should see that this Ordinance is observed.

A PET LOVER, TOO!

RAYS OF HOPE

by Virginia H. Stover

(This week honoring Mr. O. L. DeVeughn of Maple Springs Community)

I walked across the yard of a ountry friend to a hand-dug well. he let the bucket down unitl we eard it hit the water and blubber ull. She grasped the windless and ulled the dripping bucket to the op. I stood - anticipating a long ool drink from the depths of the arth but she said, 'You will have o let it set a spell to settle, the- ell is a little muddy.'

In Mark 6:31 Jesus said, 'Come e yourselves apart into a desert lace and rest awhile.' It seems hat in this instance Jesus agreed ith the Prophet that there was a ime for everything. A time to be usy, but also a time ot rest. A me to let the gears of our mind all back in place and gain a new erspective.

As my friend said about the wa- er, we human beings, harried as e are, ned to 'set aspell ' and set- e. We have mud in our thoughts nd grit and gravel in our spiri- al and mental attitudes. Turmoil nd tension is too much a part of l of us. We have need of peace f mind and Isaiah tells us that Thou (God) wilt keep him in per- ect peace, whose mind is stayed on Thee.' Too little of our thoughts are on things of eternal value and far too much of our time and energy is spent on material things. As we mentioned above, there is a time for everything and when we spend all of our time living and planning only for this life and its comforts we loose the better part of life. Regardless of how bad the world seems, there is still One true God - the hope of the ages. Our trust should be in HIM. So until next week remember—There are RAYS of HOPE for you—just as long as YOU keep Hoping.

Personality of The Week—
This week our resident of Chilton County that is honored by this Column is Mr. O.L. DEVaughn. He is a member of the Maple Springs Baptist Church and has lived in Chilton County all of his life. He is 70 years old and has 6 children. His favorite Scripture is the 23 Psalm. I think all of us could say with Mr. DeVaughn that truly we love this Psalm also, for it gives us much assurance as we realize anew that 'The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want. . .'

Send your favorite verse to me in care of this Column.

WE'RE thankful for a lot of things and a lot of people this Thanksgiving and not in the least of these are our subscribers to the News, without whom we could not exist and represent our Communities. . . Thanks Folks! See you all next year?

THE greatest tribute to a man is the love and respect of his family and when a child comes up and hugs your neck just after you've had to correct him severely, brother, you've got it made!

WHY is it some people are so good, kind and understanding; some mean, arrogant and resentful and we blame it all on Human Nature?

IF you ate a meal, enjoyed any entertainment, read your community newspaper, or even carried the trash down to the garbage can this past week you helped prove our point that "Trading At Home" helps all of us! When you do business with a local firm you are literally supporting your community and as they say "that's what makes the old mare trot!"

Make Thanksgiving mean something -- Go to church!

A Double Victory--

THE recent general election which saw the Democratic nominees for President and Vice-President of the United State in the woners circle was a double victory for clear-thinking Democrats an to our way of thinking was a partial victory for clear-thinking Republicans, too.

A landslide victory by either party would have, or could have, resulted in a "look at me" attitude on the part of the winner which would not have been good for any of us.

As it stands, with the popular vote a close one even though the electoral vote was not, the man in the President's chair will be ever mindful that he is answerable to the people even more directly than if he had won a broad majority victory. With such a popular vote, the Party in power and its representatives will be well aware of the fact that, as somebody put it, "just about as many people were against them, as were for them" and this will be evident in every decision made.

Any reservations we may have had about Mr. Kennedy are lessened now to a great degree, because of this public opinion and we definitely believe that he will make us all--Democrats and Republicans--a better president for it.

We Democrats are sitting in a good position now, as far as leadership is concerned. We have the reins in our hands and we now have a firm hand on those reins in regards to the fellows pulling the cart! We couldn't ask for better opportunity to create peace, harmony, and goood will!

We Can All Be Winners--

Mr. T. E. Wyatt of the Union-Banner went beyond his usual "sour grapes" with this recent election and is still slinging with both fists at the Democratic Party and their candidates--one in particular. Mr. Wyatt and his Republican friends, along with the help of some fence-straddling Democrats walked away with Chilton County in the recent election and swung a big victory. We took a licking here on home ground and we are ready to concede and acknowledge that obvious fact.

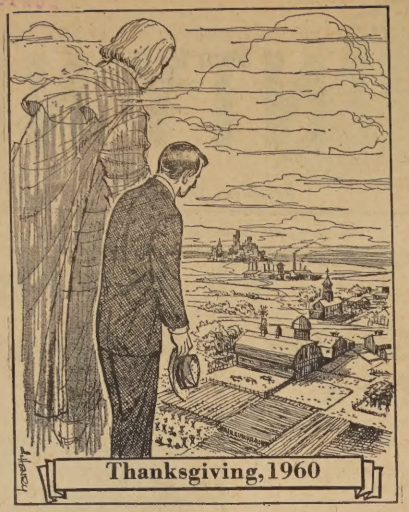
We think also, that in overall defeat the opposition would be big enough to come up with something better than the pre-election mud-slinging and be willing to acknowledge defeat, even though they feel they cannot support the administration. To ask them to support the administration would be futile indeed.

It takes a pretty big man to admit defeat and join in the ranks when we are all supposed to be working toward the same end. It has and is being done, however and those who were defeated are not asked to give up any position of conviction, but rather to resign party prejudice and join in the struggle to make America great.

Continuous name-calling, back biting and cynicism is not going to promote any good cause and is therefore out of place now and completelv useless.

There is no loser in this kind of victory and if we all pull together we can gain the ends which we seek, together!

". . . AND KEEP US FREE"



ALL of us have things to be thankful for which we do not count in our everyday appraisal of our living.

Usually we count friends, possessions and health but some of the smaller things we fail to remember or recognize.

For instance, thanking God for the things which Do Not Happen to us just as important as the things with which He blesses us.

Another factor to consider is, when we do have good fortune from the Almighty Hand, how many of us tell Him "thanks" for so blessing us?

We forget, but He does not and it is in our favor that he doesn't. It is not asking much to give thanks for your blessings and if you fail to do so, your reward will be lessened a great deal. Humility is a virtue which gives us full hearts when we are truly thankful and show it.

One of the best ways to show your thankfulness is to "Do unto the least of these...". Your reward will come from Heaven true enough, but in a form which we can all see and understand... the grateful heart of a fellowman whom we have generously helped in a time of great need.

That is Thanksgiving my friend and we sincerelv hope that this annual recognition of the day will bring you peace, joy, understanding and most of all, the thanks of your fellowman because you have been generous to him in every thought and action!

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

HOW YOU AND GOD CAN MEET ANY CHALLENGE

When I was a little boy, our neighbor, Mr. Raimer, bought a new Chevrolet. Later, in an accident, the car turned over and pinned his son under it. I saw Mr. Raimer pick up one end of that car by himself and lift it completely off his child. I saw that.

How did he do it? God, who created our bodies, has placed within us the power and strength to meet challenges. It was not normally possible for Mr. Raimer to lift such a weight, but that extra God-given power flooded his being and for a few minutes it made him a superman—well able to meet this challenge.

A well-known man once said, "There are no great men, only great challenges that ordinary men are forced to meet." I believe he should have said, "There are only great challenges that God helps ordinary men to meet."

Consider the story of Moses. Living far back in the desert, Moses was an ordinary shepherd watching his flock day by day. The Bible tells us that he was slow of speech and tongue. Many scholars feel that he suffered a speech impediment, and with his plain dress, he was an ordinary man—a simple shepherd.

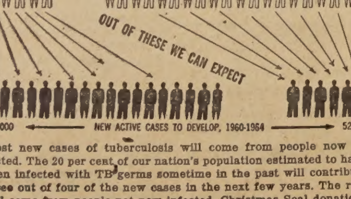
But Moses was concerned that his people, the Israelites, were prisoners and slaves to the Egyptians. Being filled with the Spirit of God, Moses challenged the Egyptian Pharaoh. And not only did he face Pharaoh, but with God's guidance he succeeded in obtaining the release of the Israelites.

Just think about it: An ordinary man, faced with the awesome challenge of freeing an entire captive nation, was able to lead his people from bondage because God helped him. Without God, a shepherd with a halting tongue could never have faced an Egyptian monarch and come away victorious!

I believe that any person can meet the difficult challenges that life offers if he will join himself to a power greater than himself. That power is God. A person can say, as did the Apostle Paul, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

When you are faced with difficulty, remember that you and God can meet any challenge. Believe there is a way to God and you will succeed.

THE ORIGIN OF FUTURE TB CASES



Most new cases of tuberculosis will come from people now infected. The 20 per cent of our nation's population estimated to have been infected with TB germs sometime in the past will contribute three out of four of the new cases in the next few years. The rest will come from people not now infected. Christmas Seal donations help to find these infected people.

HI VANCE'S USED YARN LOT

50 Years of HUMOR

J. B. Owents, builder of homes and subdivisions in Birmingham, tells me he is willing to make an affidavit that this is absolutely true. According to Mr. Owens he purchased some acreage in the Rocky Ridge area some years ago, got hold of a contractor and tol' him he was ready to start construction. The latter advised him that he would at first have to do away with a pile of saw-dust on the site of an old pecker-wood mill which had been close to the road.

"I don't know how on earth we are going to dispose of that saw-dust," the man said. 'I notice that somebody has tried to burn it off and didn't succeed. That would require too much time any way. You know how slowly that stuff burns."

"Such a procedure won't be necessary," Owens told him. "Just leave it to me, and I'll almost guarantee that I will get rid of the stuff in pretty short order. Not only that but is shouldn't cost us a cent to dispose of the stuff. Just leave it to me, brother.' He did, and in less than two weeks not a sign of that saw-dust was left, except some scrapings that had almost got buried in the sand."

I had a blank on my face, which is not uncommon for me, and I asked the gentleman how in the world he had accomplished such a gigantic moving job.

J. B. grined, and replied: "I had a sign painted and stuck alongside the pile, which simply read: 'Saw Dust For Sale - 50 Cents a Load.' Well, we waited about two weeks and then went back to our building site. There, the skeptical contractor and I noted that persons had stolen and carted off every last vestige of the saw-dust."

UNEMPLOYED SHOW SHARP OCT INCREASE

Unemployment in Alabama during October increased sharply as reflected by the number of initial claims filed for unemployment insurance and the amount of payments issued, Ralph R. Williams Director of the Alabama Department of Industrial Relations, announced today.

Initial claims for unemployment insurance filed in local state employment offices in October totalling 21,951, showed an increase of 57 percent over September and 25 percent above the camparable month in 1959. Unemployment compensation payments totalled $2,090,309, increasing $150,000 more than October of last year, Williams Pointed out.

An estimated 29,000 persons drew unemployment insurance during October with the average size check for a week of total unemployment being $23.70, Williams said.

The largest gains in initial claims filed for unemployment insurance during October over September occurred in the Gadsden, Ensley, and Birmingham local offices. In Gadsden, the increase was due chiefly to the termination, by a large steel company of force account construction workers engaged in effecting a dhange-over in the plant; the closing of an independent pipe foundry A lack of orders for steel resulted in sizeable layoffs in Ensley and surrounding areas. Curtailed activity in shipyards and seasonal layoffs in apparel and lumber manufacture swelled the claims load in other sections.

The number of weeks claimed reflected an increase of two percent to 115,545 in October as compared with 113,295 in September. When measured against October a year ago weeks claimed showed a gain of eight percent.

THANKSGIVING WITHOUT YOU

Thanksgiving Day is an affair for family gatherings. This custom dated from the day set aside by the Mayflower Pilgrims after their first harvest in 1621 and became an established American tradition. The early day of devotional observance has given way largely to sports, recreation, family reunions and feasting.

"Over the hills and through the woods to grandmother's house" has also changed to "over the freeways and through the highways" we go. The lesisurely day of Tranksgiving ras envolved into a hectic day of rushing the family into the car and driving frantically to get to the destination in time for the Thanksgiving Day feast. Then, the departure delayed until the last possible minute, the highways are crowded with weary travellers, still sluggish from unusually large repast.

The Alabama Motor Club wishes to encourage motorists to try to revice some of the old-time leisure into the day, and reduce the tension and danger of the rush on the highways.

Plan your day carefully, allowing time enough to drive at a safe and relaxed pace to preserve the quieter spirit of the day. Do not allow tragedy to mar this precious time of family Thanksgiving.

YOUR HEALTH

A DECREASE IN TB

The number of persons who died of tuberculosis in the United States last year was one-fourth of the tuberculosis morality rate ten years ago. There were 50,000 fewer new cases reported last year than ten years before. Tuberculosis was the seventh cause of death ten years ago, and today it is fourteenth.

In 1900, tuberculosis was the second largest cause of death in this country with a death rate of 194 for every 100,000 in the population, and today the death rate is under 8 per 100,000. These great reductions have been brought about by a combination of aggressive tuberculosis control and greatly improved treatment. However, with 12 to 25 million infectious cases of pulmonary tuberculosis existing in the world, the disease is far from being defeated.

In India alone there are four to eight million active or probably active cases of tuberculosis. In this country, despite the vast improvements in control, tuberculosis is still the chief disease cause of death among our young people between 15 and 34 years. It is estimated that some medical supervision for active on inactive tuberculosis; and of this number,400,000 have the disease in active form with a possible half of them likely to be spreading the tuberculosis germs to others.

While tuberculosis can strike any person any time, any place, certain groups have righer tuberculosis rates than others. The undernourished. the overtired, or those in poor general health who do strong resistance are more tible to the risease. Tu seldom begins with symptoms, and it may pro months or even years be sence is suspected. There persons 15 years of age should have a chest x-r year.

Lecroy Speaks To P-TA On County School Crisis

THE Chilton County High School PTA met on Tuesday, Nov. 8 at 2:45 p.m. in the High School Library. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Lewis Headley. Mrs. Charles Moore, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting and they were approved as read. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. T. C. Davis. She reported that there was a need for some money-making projects, as we were short of money set up in the Budget.

After a short business meeting Mrs. Joe Moore, program chairman introduced Rev. Hal Bray, minister of the Presbyterian Church. He brought an inspiring message.

The speaker for the program was Mr. W. A. Lecroy, Supt. of Education. He spoke on the 'School Crisis in Chilton County'. The situation is serious and he wanted every parent to know the situation.

A member of the County Board of Education, Mr. James Duke Heflin was present and after much discussion the meeting was adjourned until December.

Roast Turkey Can Be Better

To help you turn out the best roast turkey of your kitchen career, home economists of Foley Manufacturing Company have come up with six new and time-saving tips on turkey preparation.

1. Use the adjustable V-shaped roasting rack and pan now available in kitchenware departments. Like the rotating spit, this permits full circulation of heat for true roasting and eliminates the steamy braising effect of deep-pan cooking. It cradles any size fowl —or roast—perfectly and holds it clear of cooking greases.

2. Roast your turkey for half the cooking period before adding dressing. This saves as much as an hour of cooking time by letting heat penetrate from the inside out, and allows you to prepare the dressing while your bird is roasting. You'll find the dressing easier to insert, too, in the firm, partially-roasted fowl.

3. Roast the turkey for half reverse it. This is easy to do with the convenient V-shaped rack.

4. Before roasting, season the cavity and add a bouquet garnish (a stalk of celery, a carrot, bayleaf and a sprig of parsley) plus an onion studded with six whole cloves. Tie the bouquet garnish with string to simplify its removal before adding dressing, and place it in the pan for gravy flavoring.

5. When you stuff your turkey, don't bother to sew the bird. Just close it by inserting a heel of the bread used for dressing.

6. To separate grease from gravy juices easily, drop ice cubes into the pan, then remove them quickly with tongs or slotted spoon. Grease will

Cranberry Dessert Boasts Of Few Calories

Don't miss out on the tantalizing goodness of tangy cranberry desserts, relishes and salads during this holiday season. One of the prettiest and best tasting cranberry desserts we've come across lately is a light and luscious Cranberry-Orange Tapioca, piled high in sherbets or parfaits and served icy cold.

With so many people counting calories these days, this festive dessert is sure to be a popular one. Unnecessary calories have been slashed away by the use of the calorie-free sweetener, Sucaryl, rather than sugar. You need count only 42 calories per serving, which is less than one-fourth the normal calorie count when sweetened in the ordinary fashion. Best part is, non-dieters, too, will enjoy the pleasant, natural-tasting sweetness of this calorie-streamlined holiday dessert.

Cranberry-Orange Tapioca
(Low-Calorie)

2 cups fresh cranberries
1 cup water
2 tablespoons Sucaryl solution
3 tablespoons tapioca
1 cup boiling water
½ cup orange sections
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine cranberries, water and Sucaryl; cook until skins pop. Cook tapioca in boiling water, stirring constantly, until thick. Stir in the cooked cranberries, orange sections and vanilla. Cool until mixture begins to set; then spoon into dessert glasses. Chill.

Makes 6 servings. Each serving contains 42 Calories; trace of protein; trace of fat; 10 grams carbohydrate. If made with sugar, each serving would contain 170 Calories.

Verbena Vo-Ag Has Tractor Clinic

A tractor clinic was held recently in the Verbena High School with Mr. Claude Mims, teacher of vocational agriculture, in charge. Forty boys enrolled in vocational agriculture participated.

Highlight of the clinic was the demonstration given on how to correctly service a tractor where all boys actually performed the services themselves. In addition to the demonstration, films were shown on farm tractor safety, and periodic maintenance. The films were shown by Mr. W. O. Bice, Agricultural Representative, Standard Oil Company. Mr. Bice also led a discussion on the proper choice and use of lubricants and the importance of performing daily and periodic maintenance services. These are most important to long life and economic operation of the farm tractor.

Inasmuch as farm mechanization has became such a major factor in our modern day agriculture, the vocational agriculture department is adapting its mechanics program to give the students studying vocational agriculture a working knowledge of farm mechanics and preventative maintenance. The tractor clinic is a part of the emphasis that is being placed on the farm mechanics program in the Verbena vocational agriculture department.

These tractor clinics are made possible thriugh the cooperation of the Agriculture Representative of the Standard Oil Company and the local Standard Agent, Mr. William Thomas. Similar clinics are being held in vocational agriculture departments throughout Alabama and are in cooperation with tractor operation contests sponsored for F.F.A. members.

a. PSC, Attorney General Go To preme Court On Refund Case

Alabama Public Service ssion, together with the Of- the Attorney General, has an appeal to the Supreme of Alabama from the decision Montgomery County Circuit in the Southern Bell Tele- ate case. At the same time ct to the attention of the ers the following facts:

telephone company has col- nd is holding over 40 million subject to refund to Alaba- cribers. Under the decree Circuit Court the principal $4,908,303, plus interest and xes, would be refunded and hone company would be er 35 million dollars of this his is in addition to the 15 dollars per year increase in e rates that have been since World War II under the Circuit Court of Mont- County.

the order of the APSC December 8, 1959. there e refunded to the Alabama rs approximately 25 mill- rs, plus interest and excise d not the wholly inadequate sum of $4,908,303 suggested ircuit Court of Montgomery ates presently being collec- he telephone company in are among the highest in Southeastern States in which the company operates.

4. The decision of the Circuit Court of Montgomery County would give to the telephone company during the periods involved in this case over $35 million more than the telephone company would have received under the recent decision of the Mississippi Supreme Court, and over $23.5 million more than the telephone company would have received applying the law as set out in January 11, 1960, decision of the Supreme Court of Louisiana.

5. In its order of November 11th the Circuit Court of Montgomery County noted that the subject case has been pending for over six years and stated that;

"It seems clearly consistent with the public interest that this controversy be finally determined."

The original application was filed on January 20, 1954. The original order of the Commission was issued on April 21, 1954, or 90 days after filing of the application. The original order of the Commission was appealed by the telephone company to the Circuit Court of Mintgomery County, which court held the case from April 22, 1954, to November 16 1955, or 19 months. The present appeal was taken on December 9 1959, and has been held by the Circuit Court of Montgomery County for more than 11 months. The Commission heard all the testimony in the original case and issued its order in 90 days. The Montgomery County Court took 19 months ot issue its order which the Supreme Court of Alabama reversed.

6. The order of the Circuit Court of Montgomery County would not mean a reduction in the future, as suggested in telephone company press releases. The order of the Circuit Court would increase telephone rates in Alabama $4,700,000 per year, in addition to the $15,000 000 per year that telephone rates already have been increased in Alabama since World War II, and, invites the telephone company to file another application for still further rate increases.

The Alabama Public Sehvice Commission will continue to resist the exorbitant, unfair and unconscionable charges which would result under the decree of the Circuit Court of Montgomery County. At the same time, it is the purpose and intention of the Comission to assure all utilities a fair return on the reasonable value of their properties used and useful in rendering service in Alabama.

But the subject order, in our opinion, would impose exorbitant and unfair rates on the public. For that reason, the case is being appealed to the Supreme Court of Alabama

• Southern Bell • Prepared To • Refund $7 Million •

FURTHER in connection with the Montgomery County Circuit Court's order affecting telephone rates in Alabama, Mr. Frank Newton, General Manager of the Southern Bell Company, stated this week his Company was prepared to abide by the Court's make these even million dollar order and proceed immediately to ($7,000,000) refund as ordered. He repeated his belief the amount was excessive, but stated that it was in the interest of both telephone service and the public to bring this litigation to a close. As to the present rate being too low for today's cost levels, the stated he hoped to be able to work this out with the Commission without further Court action.

How The New Social Security Law Affects You

The new social security law makes it possible for survivors of a worker who died after March 31, 1938, and before January 1, 1940 tc get payments on his social security account if he had worked under social security at least a year and a half before his death.

According to Cecil L. Simpson manager of the Birmingham district social security office, these payments may onw be made to the worker's widow, his ager dependent parents, and to his disabled son or daughter.

To qualify for these payments, the widow or dependent mother must be at least 62 years of age. The dependent father must be at least 65. The disabled son or daughter must have a disability so severe that it keeps him or her from doing any substantial gainful work, and the disability must have begun before the child's eighteenth birthday.

Simpson urges all persons who believe themselves qualified to receive these payments to get in touch with the social security office at once. "October, 1960, is the first month for which benefits can be paid. However, and application must be filed at the social security office before the payments can start," he says.

Meringue Crested APPLE JUICE PIE

Here's a gay surprise ... a meringue topped pie that stars apple juice. True, it has a bit of lemon juice and grated orange rind for old time lemon-pie sake ... but its zing and refreshing zest stem right from apple juice itself. The true spirit of the apple is there, held captive in the smooth, tender filling, under the toasted meringue.

This pie is a dazzler for looks, too. You can bring it out as a tea time refreshment. Or serve it at a luncheon party. Or, best of all, make it an often-time treat for your family.

For all its extravagant look, the pie is most simple to make. The apple juice filling is easy, and the pastry can be a mix.

- 1 cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons cornstarch
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups apple juice
- 3 eggs, separated
- 1 tablespoon grated orange rind
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 9" baked pastry shell

Mix together in top of double boiler ½ cup sugar, cornstarch and salt. Gradually add apple juice; cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Cover; cook 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Beat egg yolks; gradually add hot apple juice mixture. Return to double boiler; cook until thickened, stirring. Add orange rind and lemon juice. Cool. Pour into baked pastry shell. Beat egg whites stiff, gradually add remaining ½ cup sugar, beating constantly. Spread meringue on filling. Broil until brown. Cool.

Farmer Makes Profit

KEEPING complete records has helped Alvin Reeves make a profitable business of his Cherokee County farming operation.

Reeves recalls that he talked with Assistant County Agent Tom Owens about his farming program five years ago. He was especially interested in improving his hog enterprise. He told Owens that he was weaning around six or seven pigs per litter and that he didn't know whether his hogs were making him any money.

Owens advised Reeves to start keeping records. Now, at the end of each year, his records tell him exactly what his hog program did. And during the last five years Reeves has weaned 9.8 pigs per litter on 55 litters, according to Owens. The Auburn Extension Service agent went on to say that the farmer's accomplishments are due to good record keeping and management, both in production and marketing.

By keeping a record of the breeding dates, Reeves puts his sows in the jackets two days before they are due to farrow. He says by doing this, the sows become more adjusted to the farrowing facilities. "Staying with the sows during farrowing has saved me around two pigs per litter," says Reeves. At the same time, he is busy clipping needle teeth. In three to five days, he gives each pig an iron shot. And each pig is castrated when one to four weeks old, depending on the weather and how busy Reeves is.

At eight weeks of age, the pigs are put on concrete and are given a treatment of piperazine for worms. This treatment is repeated when the pigs weigh around 130 pounds. Each time the concreted area is thoroughly washed with lye and water.

Reeves tops out around 200 hogs each year on corn, supplement, and grazing. Owens said that Reeves studies the market outlook. If it looks favorable, he buys pigs in addition to the pigs his eight sows wean. He buys only good thrifty pigs from a reliable source. And this past year, his record book shows that he bought 75 pigs and made good money.

Reeves stated that a neighbor has also profited from his improved operation. The neighbor had been raising only about one-half of the pigs his sow gave birth to since they farrowed in mud holes, the woods, or anywhere they happened to be. The neighbor saw what Reeves was doing and wanted to do likewise. With Reeves' help, this farmer now has a sow with nine four-week-old pigs.

In addition to his hogs, Reeves has 55 acres of corn which he markets through hogs. He had six acres of cotton this year and made 666 pounds of lint cotton per acre.

Mr. and Mrs. Reeves are proud of the accomplishments they have made on their Bethel community farm, and they give a part of this credit to the help they received from the local Extension Service personnel. They became a Farm and Home Development family five years ago and say this program has greatly aided them in developing both their farm and home.

Owens, left, and Reeves admire a group of good, thrifty pigs that are on grazing.

RESULTS
from Auburn University Agricultural Experiment Station

BORON NEEDED. Cauliflower, broccoli, turnips, rutabagas, beets, and carrots require the addition of boron for high yields and good quality. A rate of 10 to 20 pounds of borax per acre is recommended. Some boron-deficient orchards were found in a survey of 34 Alabama apple orchards. Nearly half (44 percent) of the orchards had leaves below the national average for boron content. Ten pounds of borax per acre is recommended for apples on light-textured soil.

CLEAN ALABAMA WOOL. Shrinkage determinations show that Alabama wool shrinks little and yields a high percentage of clean wool. Compared with wool produced in other areas of the United States, Alabama's fine wool yields 10 to 20 percent more clean wool, 15 to 20 percent more half-blood wool, and 10 to 15 percent more medium wool.

CHRISTMAS HOLLY. Good care will increase the decorative life of cut branches of American and Chinese holly. Branches are cut in short, usable lengths, split at the base, and the bases are immediately put into warm water and allowed to cool overnight at 40-50 degrees F. After overnight conditioning, the branches are arranged in vases containing water or in a water-soaked plastic. Spraying the prepared holly with a clear plastic will also prolong the decorative life. The holly and spray plastic should be at about the same temperature (70 degrees F.) to prevent a frosty appearance.

UNDERPLANTING PINE STANDS. Underplanting slash pine in natural stands of shortleaf-loblolly pine stocked with 130 small stems per acre was unsuccessful in Alabama tests. The slash pine seedlings were suppressed by the established trees. After 18 years, only 10 slash pines had survived the competition. An additional 140 volunteer stems measuring four to 16 inches in diameter at breast height had become established from seed, making an adequately stocked stand of 290 trees per acre.

FARM MORTGAGE DEBT. Farm mortgage debt in Alabama was $193 million at the beginning of 1960. This was 12 percent higher than in the previous year. Increases were experienced by all lender groups. Average term of farm mortgages recorded during the first quarter of 1959 was 6.7 years. Bank term was lowest, two years, and insurance companies highest with 18 years. Average interest rate for all lenders was 5.43 percent. The rate of increase in mortgage debt is expected to decline in the years ahead.

AUBURN 56 COTTON. Greater resistance to root-knot has been shown by Auburn 56 cotton than by other commercial varieties tested. Even greater resistance may be possible in the future, Auburn studies reveal. Resistance to root-knot was not because nematodes failed to enter cotton roots but because resistant varieties slower nematode development in the roots.

BEEF PASTURE. Results of Alabama studies indicate that grazing calves instead of their dams gives more efficient use of winter pasture. Calves creep-fed oat and clover pastures gained an average of 1.6 pounds daily. Others not on good pasture gained 1.3 pounds per head. Dams of both groups got the same ration. Brood cows fed coastal bermuda hay and cottonseed meal produced almost as much milk as those on lush grazing.

FORTY YEARS OF AGRONOMY—Looking over Madison County's outstanding soil testing exihibit are Frank E. Boyd, left, president of the Alabama Soil Fertility Society, Montgomery, and J. C. Lowery, Alabama Extension Service agronomist, Auburn. Boyd, the first Extension agronomist, and Lowery, his successor, have covered agonomy in the state for the last 40 years. These two agencies backed Alabama's soil fertility drive.

LOAD OF SOIL SAMPLES—F. K. Agee, right, county agent in Limestone County, is showing the last load of Limestone's soil samples to Dr. Roy Rouse, left, Auburn soil testing laboratory, and Jack Taylor, district agent. Limestone County has taken more soil samples than any other county for the past two years. Last year's number totaled 2,492 samples—882 more than the county that placed second.

Up Yields In 1961

Take Soil Samples Now

THE cost-price squeeze is still on and net farm income continues to drop. But what can the farmer do about it?

Two obvious solutions are to increase production and to operate more efficiently. And the results of the soil fertility program sponsored over the state by the Auburn University Extension Service last year show that soil testing is one way to help do both at the same time.

J. C. Lowery, Auburn University Extension agronomist, says the results last year—from July 1, 1959, to July 1, 1960—were extremely gratifying. A total of 24,883 samples was processed at the testing lab in Auburn during the period, according to Lowery. This was 5,298 over the year before. The intensive program was especially successful in some of the North Alabama counties, explained the veteran agronomist. Limestone County farmers sent in 2,492 samples; Lauderdale County, 1,610; Morgan, 1,022; and Madison County, 645.

But just taking samples is not enough, pointed out Lowery. The farmer must go by the laboratory recommendations to get the best yields and the most efficient use of fertilizer. And he pointed to the statements of some of the farmers who used soil testing to prove the success of the program.

"I am convinced that soil testing is the only way to buy and use fertilizer," declared D. S. Belew of Rogersville in Lauderdale County. "We farmers can now discard the old general fertilizer recommendations we used to follow and apply the kind and amount of plant food our land really needs. Soil testing has taken the hit and miss fertilizer buying out of the picture for farmers who want to buy it on a plant basis," he added.

Belew was shown the value of soil testing to determine soil needs when a strip of land was missed when limestone was applied. When he harvested wheat from the land, he observed that the unlimed strip made about 10 bushels per acre as compared with about 40 bushels on the rest of the land.

Hugh H. Walker of Florence Rt. 2 said, "I saved $3,691.05 by soil testing 297 acres before planting it in sericea. To have received ASC payments for applying fertilizer without soil tests I would have had to use $5,256.90 worth of fertilizer. Soil test recommendations called for only $1,565.85 worth of fertilizer."

Lester Evans of Athens Rt. 2 in Limestone County stated that he was about to apply 60 tons of lime on 24 acres of cropland. But he took soil tests and found that the 60 tons would cover 60 acres. "I have cut my fertilizer applications from about 500 pounds per acre to around 300 pounds per acre by following soil test recommendations," declared Evans.

And down in South Alabama, C. G. Lee, Jr., of Choctaw County stated, "Before soil testing I applied 800 pounds of 4-10-7 per acre under my cotton and made around a bale to the acre. After discussing soil testing with County Agent Matthew Sexton, I decided to try it. And by following the results of the samples I applied 450 pounds of 4-12-12 per acre and made a half a bale more cotton to the acre."

An organized soil testing program was carried out in more than half of the 67 counties, and similar stories were told in most of them. Civic clubs, schools, businesses, churches, newspapers, radio stations, and all agricultural agencies cooperated in promoting soil testing as one way to improve farm income.

"The goal in Limestone County was to raise farm income by $3 million," said Lowery. "And there is no telling how much more the income was increased by the efficient use of fertilizer."

Lowery stressed that the soil fertility program is continuing in Alabama. "The slogan, DON'T GUESS—SOIL TEST, should be the by-word of every farmer," he added. "Since July 1 there have been 1,775 soil samples sent in to the laboratory at Auburn. But before next July 1 we expect this figure to far exceed the record 25,000 tests taken last year."

Lowery pointed out that soil tests can also be used by all home owners in growing lawns, flowers, and vegetable gardens. He said complete details and supplies can be obtained from the Extension Service office in each county.

Keep Your Salads Fruit-Fresh

Though cabbages are king they still can be roses, too. For your next party or special meal, try making a cabbage rose and filling it with apple slaw. It's not hard to make and it will cause great comment among your guests. You can prepare the rose well in advance as well as the apple slaw so that all you do at the last minute is to mix the slaw with the dressing and fill the "rose." When cutting the apple pieces in advance, to keep them fresh and colorful toss them in a solution of Fruit-Fresh (ascorbic-acid mixture) and water, and place in the refrigerator until ready to use.

APPLE SLAW IN A CABBAGE ROSE

- 1 medium cabbage
- 1 cup shredded carrots
- ½ cup chopped green pepper
- 2 teaspoons Fruit-Fresh (ascorbic-acid mixture)
- 4 tablespoons water
- 2 red-skinned apples (3 cups chopped)
- ⅔ cup sour cream dressing*

Remove outside leaves of the cabbage. Cut out center with a sharp knife. Place in ice-cold water about 1 hour. Drain dry and turn back outer leaves of cabbage to resemble open rose. Shred removed cabbage. There should be 3 cups. Add carrots and green pepper. Combine Fruit-Fresh (ascorbic-acid mixture) and water. Core apples and chop directly into ascorbic-acid mixture solution. Toss well to coat pieces. Just before serving, combine apples with cabbage; pour dressing over all and toss well. Fill cabbage rose and serve. Makes 6 servings.

Sour Cream Dressing: Combine ½ cup sour cream, 2 tablespoons pineapple juice, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ⅛ teaspoon tabasco, 1 teaspoon sugar. Makes ⅔ cup dressing.

Williams and Mrs. Carlos Williams was in charge of the shower, instead of games being played short skits were given by people from the two churches. The table for the gifts was covered with a white damask cloth and was beautifully decorated with green streamers and bows. The centerpiece was a bowl of yellow chrysanthmum and southern smilax. The piano was also covered with smilax and the flowers were small mums flanked on each side by burning yellow tapers. The honoree and her fiancee, Rev. Jerrell Mahison opened and displayed the many lovely useful gifts. Refreshments of homemade cake party mints, nuts, coffee and hot chocolate was served buffet style from a beautifully decorated table The cloth was damask and the centerpiece was yellow mums, smilax and burning yellow tapers. Mrs Doris Moore and Mrs. Peggy Smith served the cake and Mrs. Helen Atchinson and Mrs. Noreen Durbin served the coffee and cocoa. Everyone enjoyed the shower and wished for the couple much happiness in married life. Mrs. J. T. Williams wishes to thank each lady that helped in any way with the shower.

Mt. Nebo and Pleasant Grove MYF's have been combined. Mrs Helen Atchinson and Mrs. Louise Williams are the councelors and they invite each young person in this or surrounding communities to atend each Sunday night. The group is divided into two sections and they feel that there wil lbe more interest. Please see that your child attends and takes part in the MYF each Sunday night. Next Sunday the group will meet at Pleasant Grove at 6:30 p.m.

The number of patients admitted to public prolonged-care mental hospitals in this country rose from 150,000 in 1950 to 219,000 in 1959, Health Information Foundation points out. But the number of patients resident in such hospitals has decreased in the last few years, largely because medical advances have enabled many patients to be released sooner than was once possible.

Kenneth Copeland

ALMOST every week as I read the paper, I notice that another person has been killed or injured while hunting. This is getting to be a serious problem. And the tragic part about it is that so many of these calamities could be avoided if hunters would use a little caution and common sense.

When the holidays arrive, the woods will be populated with hunters—not only experienced sportsmen but also eager, green youngsters who don't know how to treat a gun with proper respect. Because so many people are hunting, accident rates always rise sharply during holiday seasons.

COPELAND

Earl F. Kennemer, Auburn Extension wildlife specialist, has what he calls "the 14 Commandments While Hunting." If you'll put them into practice, you might help lower the disastrous accident rate.

1. Treat every gun, even though unloaded, as if it were a primed stick of dynamite.
2. Never bring a loaded gun into an automobile, camp, or house.
3. Before loading, check to be sure the barrel is free of any obstruction.
4. Carry your gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle if you should stumble.
5. Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger. The game at which you're aiming may be your hunting buddy.
6. Never point a gun at another person unless you intend to kill him.
7. Unload all unattended guns.
8. Don't climb trees or cross fences with loaded guns.
9. Never shoot at water or other flat, hard surfaces. The bullets may ricochet.
10. Never drink while hunting.
11. Check your background well before you shoot. Be sure there are no houses or livestock in the field of fire.
12. Don't mix cartridges.
13. Never fire a gun that you know is not operating as it should.
14. Always store ammunition and guns so that children and other inexperienced persons cannot get to them.

The pointers may seem simple, but I'm taking them seriously. And I hope you will, too.

Women's Determination

Women never cease to amaze me. Although men are supposed to be the stronger sex, the average women has more backbone, grit, vigor, and pluck than men will ever have.

I saw something in Cherokee County recently that convinced me more than ever that I am right. The members of the Calcedonia Home Demonstration Club are working on their third club house.

Their first club house burned several years ago. Boldly, they built a new one only to find that it would have to be torn down because of the development of Weiss Lake on the Coosa River.

Mrs. Homer Bishop, president of the club, told me that the third one was just about finished. It was built with funds received from the Power Company for their old building, donations from friends, and profits from a cake supper.

Keeping Ahead in Farming

Cotton Supply Situation Improving

THE U. S. cotton supply (carryover plus production) for the 1960-61 marketing year, which began Aug. 1, is estimated at 22.2 million bales. This is about 1.4 million bales smaller than last year's supply, due largely to a smaller starting carryover. This year's crop is expected to be about the same size as last year's—14.6 million bales. The cotton carryover has declined steadily over the last four years. This smaller carryover is due to increased exports and domestic consumption.

Quality of Cotton Carryover High

The quality of the 1960 cotton carryover is reported to be good. The average staple length of 1-1/32 inches for American upland cotton is the longest since 1951. The average grade index of 97.9 (Middling White=100) is the highest since 1940. The 1959 average staple length was just under one inch and the grade index was 95.0.

More People Own Co-ops Than Invest in Market

Twice as many U. S. families invest in cooperatives as own shares in non-cooperative corporations, the Cooperative News Service reveals. Of the 52 million families in the U. S., about 7.25 million —or 14 percent—own shares in corporations listed on the nation's stock exchange. This has gone up from 10 percent in 1955. Co-op leaders estimated that 14 million families own U. S. cooperatives—twice the number that has invested in profit-making corporations.

Long-range View of Surplus Problems

In a recent report on the farm surplus problem, the House Government Operations Committee said that the surplus isn't so bad when compared to total production.

While accumulations of surpluses, particularly wheat and feed grains, are tremendous, additions to carryovers of the commodities from 1954 through 1958 amounted to about five percent of total production. This represented production from about 10 million acres annually. The report called attention to the fact that horses and mules used on farms consumed production from 90 million acres in 1920, 43 million acres in 1940, 15 million acres in 1952, and only 10 million acres from 1954 through 1958. Thus, 80 million acres formerly required to produce feed for horses and mules have been released within the past 40 years to produce crops for other purposes.

"We cannot afford to let the present surplus problem cause us to lose sight of what could in the future become a more serious problem of scarcity," the report declared. "Our population is growing rapidly. Good cropland is limited and is decreasing swiftly as cities expand and highways multiply to cover fertile farmland at the rate of one million acres a year. An expanding population and a shrinking supply of good land have not yet closed the gap, but we cannot afford to take the future for granted."

Farm Income Lags Still Further Behind Nonfarm

Recent figures confirm the fact that the per capita income of the farm population is losing ground compared to that of the nonfarm population.

In 1950 the per capita farm income from all sources was 52.9 percent of the nonfarm average from all sources. In 1959, it had slipped to 43.5 percent. And farm income, 9.5 percent of all U. S. income in 1950, dropped to 5.6 percent in 1959.

In dollar figures, the per person income of farmers from all sources in 1950 averaged $838; the nonfarm, $1,585. However, in 1959, the farm figure averaged $965; the nonfarm, $2,216. In this period nonfarm average income increased $631 per person, the farm average less than $150.

Gross Farm Income from Poultry and Eggs

In 1959, income from poultry and eggs slipped to nine percent of the U. S. gross income from farm products; in 1958 it was 10 percent. Declining prices for eggs and poultry meat last year are the principal explanation. Prices so far this year average higher than last year, and they are likely to continue higher.

In Alabama, we get 20 percent of our gross farm income from poultry and eggs.

Feed Consumption

Consumption of feed grains and other concentrates by livestock has gone up sharply in recent years. In 1959-60 the tonnage fed was 25 percent above the 1952-56 average. This has been accomplished through heavier feeding per animal and only a moderate increase in the number of livestock on farms. Big feed grain crops, lower feed prices, and the trend toward heavier feeding of grain and other concentrates to dairy and beef cattle have contributed to the rising rate of feeding per animal.

Poultry Adds To Economy

While I'm handing out congratulations, I want to include my home county, Marshall, for the success it's having in the poultry business. W. L. Martin, county agent, tells me that poultry is responsible for an average of one additional clerk being employed per store in the county.

In addition to the $6½ million income from broilers, several hundred men and women are employed in the county's four processing plants and 14 hatcheries. And men are also working as catching crews as feed servicemen, and as delivery men.

As I remember Whitesville community from several years back, you'd pass a chicken house only every now and then. But now it is not uncommon to see as many as three or four on a farm. Martin says that the number of houses being built is on the upswing again after a two-year breathing spell. In the last two months, 17 new houses have gone up; these have a holding capacity of 125,000 birds.

M. G. Hodges of the Five Points community, a new chicken rancher, told me that he plans to raise more chickens, hogs, and cattle and less cotton.

THE PLANT

amounts are added, the plant can produce enormous amounts of food and fiber. For example, one acre of alfalfa fertilized with 1,000 pounds of 0-10-20 pounds per acre of fertilizer plus 25 pounds of borax is capable of producing 12,740 pounds of hay. This amounts to well over 1500 pounds of protein. The alfalfa plant requires, however, that lime be applied to the soil to raise the soil pH to near the neutral point, 7.0.

Auburn University has conducted research to find out the amount of chemical elements required in the soil to supply the plants with sufficient amounts for maximum production. Also, Auburn University has the soil testing laboratory to find out how much phosphorus and potassium are in a soil. With these two factors known, the soil testing laboratory can give specific and exact fertilizer recommendations for any soil in the state.

Help your green factories produce more. Have a soil test made so the correct amount of fertilizer and lime, or raw materials, may be added to the soil.

Plan Now For A Safe Christmas

By Bill Cox

Farm Buildings Specialist

TO have a merry Christmas and happy new year, plan for safe ones. Don't be homeless after the holidays or have a tragedy happen to some member of your family.

During the Christmas holidays, the danger of home accidents and fires increase due to more guests and entertaining. The wise family will plan now for safety.

One of the biggest fire hazards is the Christmas tree. Here are some suggestions to help avoid its turning into a blazing torch.

COX

Select a freshly cut tree a few days before Christmas. Cut the base of the tree diagonally so that it will obsorb more water. Set it in a container of water. Place the tree away from the fireplace, powerful electric lights, radiators, and other sources of heat.

There's nothing more beautiful than a bright Christmas tree and nothing more dangerous than a poorly lighted one. A poorly lighted tree doesn't mean one that doesn't have enough lights on it but is one that has dangerous wiring. Poor wiring is the cause of most fires during the holiday season. One bare place on the wiring of a string of Christmas tree lights may cause a spark that can send a dry tree up in flames and completely destroy a home.

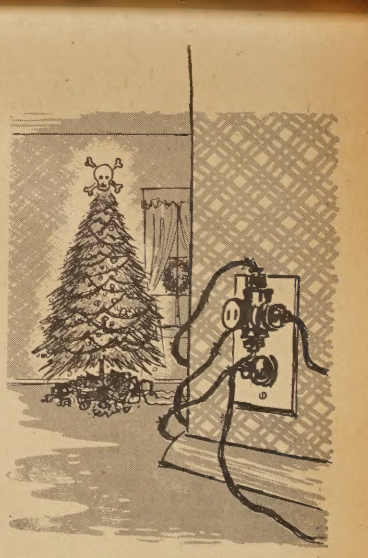
Use only approved lights and inspect the entire string, including the sockets, before wiring the Christmas tree. Be sure they're safe. If you buy new lights, be sure they carry the underwriters' seal of approval.

Christmas tree light strings for home use are of two types, series and multiple. For your safety and satisfaction with Christmas tree lighting, it's well to know the difference between the two. If wired in a series, all the bulbs will fail to light if one burns out or becomes loose in its socket. When this happens, you'll have to locate the bulb or socket that's breaking the circuit.

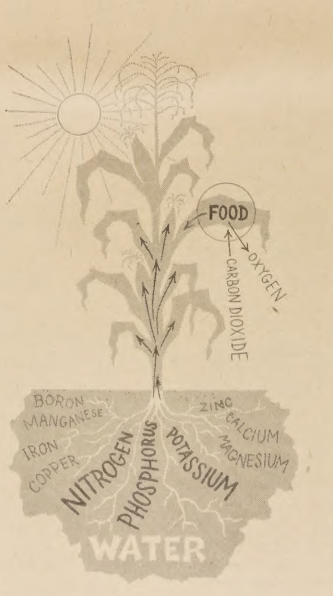
If the light set is wired in multiple circuit, each bulb lights independently. When one burns out, all others will remain lighted.

When you begin to decorate your tree, door, and lawn, remember to avoid overloading the electrical circuits with additional lights, toys, and appliances. If a fuse blows, remove some of the load by connecting some of the equipment to another circuit. Replace a blown fuse only with one of the proper size. Never use a larger fuse or a penny. Be sure to turn off the tree lights before going to bed or leaving the house.

Christmas trees are not the only fire hazard at Christmas. That big pile of wrapping paper can become a big blaze from one wayward cigarette or a spark from the fireplace. To reduce this danger, place all wrapping paper in a container as soon as it is taken off the packages and take it outside the house.



The Plant--Greatest Factory On Earth



By Walter Sowell

Extension Soil Specialist

IN this age of atoms and rapid scientific development, there is sometimes a tendency for people to overlook the more common things in life. That is, we sometimes take for granted the convenience, usefulness, and beauty of those things we enjoy and use each day.

Man strives to learn more about the so-called "scientific" and more technical aspects of earth and space. In so doing we tend to overlook, to some extent, one of the most unique and marvelous wonders of nature—the greatest factory on earth—the green plant.

SOWELL

The green plant can manufacture tremendous amounts of feed, food, and fiber. One acre of sweet sorghum plants is capable of manufacturing 40,000 pounds of livestock feed in the form of silage. One acre of corn plants can manufacture 7200 pounds of grain, enough to produce 1600 pounds of liveweight hogs when fed in a balanced ration with supplements. One acre of cotton plants is capable, if properly managed, of producing two bales of cotton fiber. This is enough fiber to make approximately 2,000 men's shirts. One pine tree 17 to 20 years old will produce enough pulp to make 3600 12-pound grocery bags.

The green plant manufactures its own food. Raw materials are obtained from the soil and air. The sun supplies the energy. Tiny root hairs get chemical elements from the soil, and the chemical elements are transported to the green leaves where the wonders of production occur. The green leaves take in carbon dioxide from the air and combine it with oxygen and hydrogen. And with the aid of the chemical elements that come from the soil, leaves manufacture sugars, starches, and fibers. The sugars and starches are then combined with other elements from the soil to produce proteins, fats, and oils.

The plant uses sugars, starches, proteins, fats, and oils to grow and produce seed. Animals get these foods when they eat the plants or seeds.

In addition to manufacturing food and fiber, the green plant uses carbon dioxide in the air and adds oxygen to make the air we breathe more refreshing and invigorating. Then for supplying beauty—flowers, shrubs, grasses, and trees—no other factory can compete with the green plant.

Plants use nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, calcium, magnesium, and sulfur in larger amounts to manufacture food. They also use other chemical elements such as iron, manganese, molybdenum, copper, boron, and zinc in small amounts. Chemical elements from the soil make up only about five percent of the solid material in plants. Even so, these chemical elements must be in the soil in a form which is available to the plant roots for the plant to grow and perform its function of manufacturing food.

The major chemical elements that we in Alabama have to add to the soil for plant growth are nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, calcium, sulfur, magnesium, boron and zinc. However, occasionally other elements such as iron must be supplied. Research has shown that copper, molybdenum, and manganese are usually present in the soil in sufficient amounts.

Chemical elements which serve as raw materials for plants are added to the soil in the form of fertilizers and lime. When sufficient

Alabama Delegation Represents State Well

THE top 4-H'ers in Alabama! And Alabamians have a right to pride themselves on the young citizens pictured here.

These youngsters represent the very best of more than 133,000 4-H'ers in the state in project work. Each was selected this fall as a state winner in one of 30 divisions.

The group has just returned from the 39th National 4-H Congress in Chicago—a trip which is the ambition of every 4-H'er. At the congress, the delegates not only represented Alabama in the national project contests, but they spent a week filled with entertainment.

Most of the delegates will long remember such exciting events as hearing some of the country's most outstanding speakers, dining in some of Chicago's famous restaurants, touring the city, a concert by the Boston "Pops" Orchestra, dancing in elaborate ballrooms and the numerous parties given by agricultural and industrial firms.

The clubsters also visited the International Livestock Exposition which is held at the same time as the 4-H Club Congress. There they had an opportunity to view different breeds of cattle, sheep, swine, and horses, educational and commercial agricultural displays, and a horse show and rodeo.

The group was accompanied to Chicago by Hanchey Logue, state 4-H Club leader; Ann Barr, state 4-H Club leader for girls; Dr. E. T. York, Jr., Auburn Extension Service director, and Mrs. York; James Cooper, assistant county agent, Tuscaloosa County; Willie Mae Crockett, assistant home agent, Lauderdale County; and Robert Chesnutt, Extension editor.

For a full report on what happened at the Congress, you'll have to ask one of the winners. Or perhaps you'll be lucky enough to hear a formal report from one of them. For several weeks, they will probably be reporting on the Congress to civic clubs, school organizations, and 4-H'ers who were not able to attend this year.

Representing 23 counties, these boys and girls have been in some stiff competition all the way up from their own local clubs to the national contests. Most of them will say that winning an award takes a lot of hard work, determination, and spirit. But most of them will add that the satisfaction gained from the work is reward enough.

The state award winners, their counties and fields are Sylvia Sykora, Baldwin, girls' achievement; Alton Cantrell, Marion, boys' achievement; Jackie McCullar, Walker, automotive; Ellen Mitchell, Marion, beautification of home grounds; Wylie Johnson, Macon, beef program; Stacey Bullock, Monroe, boys' agricultural; Rita Faye Davis, Pickens, canning; Julia Frost, Shelby, clothing; Hugh Clyde Law, Jr., Cherokee, cotton; and Zana Bailey, Morgan, dairy achievement.

Andy Hitch, Montgomery, dairy cattle showmanship; Shirley Walker, Lee, dairy foods; Alma Arant, Coosa, dress revue; Tommy Smith, Cleburne, electric; Wilmer McAllister, Geneva, entomology; Jack Edge, Montgomery, field crops; Barbara Roberts, Mobile, food preparation; Jimmy Martin, Bibb, forestry; Deloris Hurst, Calhoun, frozen foods; and Wanda Scott, Lamar, garden.

Carolyn Gibson, Montgomery, girls' home economics; Patsy Payne, Madison, health; Beatrice Williams, Mobile, home improvement; Brenda Jo Pirkle, Morgan, girls' leadership; David Moore, Madison, boys' leadership; Joe Billings, Tuscaloosa, poultry; Mary Pulliam, Fayette, recreation and rural arts; Patsy Watkins, Lauderdale, safety; Max Walker, Crenshaw, swine; and Harold Brown, Cherokee, tractor.

FIRING RANGE—These 4-H boys are actually firing on the rifle range. At the same time, they are being taught the proper positions, gun safety, and ways they can improve their marksmanship.

CAMPING FACILITIES—In some counties, club houses are not available for indoor sleeping. This does not prevent Washington County 4-H'ers from having a club. They make their sleeping facilities by using mosquito nets, blankets, and poles.

Through Wildlife Camps

4-H'ers Learn To Protect Resources

THROUGH the development of 4-H fish and wildlife clubs, three counties have become outstanding in the protection of Alabama's wildlife resources.

In Chambers County, Robert Horn, assistant county agent, started the first county 4-H wildlife club with 63 members. At club meetings, the young wildlifers are given basic instructions in conservation principles and the correct use of the various types of fishing equipment. "Most outstanding is the fact that we have boys living in towns taking wildlife projects," commented Horn. "They don't have space for a corn or calf project. But they help plant food patches for game, erect wildlife tree dens, and raise fishbait."

During 1959, when rabies was raging among foxes in Chambers County, 4-H boys helped trap and catch 82 foxes—one-fourth of the total foxes caught.

Washington County Assistant Agent Dewitt O. Estes has been conducting his 4-H wildlife program for three years with an enrollment of 48. Seven meetings are held each year covering firearm safety, shooting, casting activities, and basic conservation. One deer drive is held each year with only 4-H'ers participating. However, an adult is placed at each stand to give the boys safety instructions.

Last summer, Kenneth Copeland, Conecuh assistant county agent (now with the state editorial office), conducted a two-day wildlife camp will all the frills. Twenty-three 4-H boys participated in the activities and slept overnight in the woods. His camp consisted of fishing techniques, rifle range, trapping, water safety, and a tour of a wildlife reserve.

In all three counties, local merchants, civic organizations, and other individuals contribute equipment, money, prizes, and their camping facilities each year. Without this help it would be impossible to have these clubs.

Plans are under way in other counties for organizing similar clubs. Good conservation teaching is an investment for the future because today's youngsters will soon be managing our fish and wildlife.

FISHING AND CANOEING TECHNIQUES—In the top picture Washington County 4-H'ers are receiving fishing instructions from Assistant County Agent Dewitt Estes. After giving the instructions, Estes let each boy fish, and he made suggestions as to how the 4-H'ers could improve their techniques. In the bottom picture Chambers County 4-H'ers are receiving instructions in canoeing.

PLAN CLUB—A meeting of Chambers County leaders was held to help plan the sponsorship of the 4-H wildlife club. This group provided funds for equipment and served as instructors. Cooperating were the Farm Bureau, county conservation club, and local sporting goods dealers.

CAMP SCHEDULE—Former Assistant County Agent Kenneth Copeland is going over the camp schedule with 4-H'ers at the first Conecuh County fish and wildlife club. The schedule included fishing techniques, trapping, rifle range, tree identification, and water safety.

In Top Ten Car Salesmen

RICHARD Lawrence, of Clanton Motors, Inc. made the "top ten" in the Atlanta District 2 months in overall sales (actually it was automobiles not overalls). This is not the first time Clanton Motors salesmen have received such honors. All of them, Richard, Red, Dudley, Clement and Joe made the "500" Club again this yea rwhich simply means that they are about the best doggone car salesmen to be found anywhere. And you know what they always say: It takes a satisfied customer to make a real salesman".

Keep corduroy looking like new by hanging the garment on a line and letting it drip dry. Don't wring after washing.

Trade at home with Merchants who Advertise

THIS is the third week in which several of Clanton's ding merchants have cooperated with the News, by way of page advertisement herein, to remind buyers of the benefits received from Trading At Home.

It also brings to our mind the fact that the buyer should support the merchant in his community who advertises through community media, such as the newspaper, for here a valuable service is rendered also. The newspaper informs the public of the community and also supports causes of a local nature which nobody else is interested in or cares about.

The newspaper depends greatly on the local merchant who boosts and sells his business through the pages of the hometown newspaper and the merchant is dependent wholly on those community spirited persons who believe in Trading At Home!

We all need each other to keep our community healthy and growing... and informed on vital issues!

Support your community merchant by buying his product and support your community newspaper by subscribing, reading and commenting upon it. That's a long step toward a growing, prosperous community; and that's what we all want!

Who can understand his errors? Cleanse thou me from secret faults.—(Psalm 19:12)

THERE always seems to be a market for illegal booze! All the evidence points to that fact and there is something like 500 brand new gallons of the stuff in Chilton County, or shipped out by nom, that was run off last week.

According to Chief Deputy Sheriff T. J. Lockhart, the Sheriff's forces and the State Investigators destroyed a five thousand gallon still, consisting of 5 one thousand gallon vats on Friday, November 25th at about 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Location of the still was about three miles inside Chilton County near the Bibb County line just south of the Randolph Road.

Mash in the vats was 'spent' and it is estimated that 530 gallons of the illegal moonshine had just been poured up and stored away or sold. No arrests were made, but one John Tiger, Negro, was arrested near the scene for Violating the Prohibition Law. Whiskey was found in his possession and he was brought in by the officers.

The State Toxicologist has warned the public about illegal alcohol containing harmfu lead deposits that han poison and kill and the Sheriff's office in Chilton County is working around the clock to destroy the illegal 'factories' and still the public buys, and drinks this poison!

With operations as big as the one reported here in existence in and around Chilton County, it is evident that the Moonshine business is big business and it must be halted because it is not only illegal, but deadly! Destroying the stills keeps the Sheriff and his men busy alright, but the only way to stop the illegal traffic completely is for the public to cease buying it.

There is no difference in drinking Moonshine and drinking lye or iodine when the possibility exists that either could maim for life or kill the drinker!

THE "great debates" are over, the dust has settled, and the American people have chosen the man to lead them for the next four years. Preceding and during this campaign, many expressed the thought that as a nation we no longer had a sense of great purpose—that our American dream had suddenly vanished.

Walter Lippmann expressed this idea in a column some time ago: "The critical weakness of our society is that for the time-being our people do not have great purposes which they are united in wanting to achieve. The public mood of the country is defensive—to hold on and to conserve, not to push forward and create. We talk about ourselves these days as if we were a completed society, one which has achieved its purpose and has no further business to transact."

In a similar vein, William Faulkner said recently: "What has happened to the American dream? We dozed and it abandoned us. And in that vacuum now there no longer sounds the strong, loud voices speaking in mutual unification of one hope and will."

Such suggestions are very disturbing because this nation has always been associated with a great purpose. Furthermore, there has always been a close relationship between the rise of nations and great purposes. There has also been a close relationship between the loss of purpose and the decline of great nations. Look at the rise and fall of the Romans, the Greeks, and other great empires.

What was our original national purpose—what was this American dream we have cherished so greatly?

First and foremost, in my opinion, it was liberty—freedom of the mind, freedom of religion, and freedom of opportunity. It was the desire for and belief in such freedom which led to the establishment of our original colonies and later to the Revolutionary War which gained for us independence from the tyranny of a king.

As a nation, we have been dedicated to those principles of freedom. The maintenance of freedom is not an easy task. Throughout history, free societies have had to prove that they are capable of and worthy of survival. Freedom is not something which, once earned, is forever guaranteed. It is a privilege that must be earned, re-earned, and guarded with eternal vigilance.

Look at what is happening in the Congo where the acquisition of freedom has not been associated with an assumption of responsibility. Chaos has been the inevitable result.

Free societies must cultivate the will to be free and continuously prove their ability to achieve excellence.

During the past 180 years we have demonstrated that we could assume the responsibility of a free nation and that as a result of such freedom we could prove worthy of a great leadership role allowing us to emerge as the greatest nation on earth. Today, however, serious questions are being raised concerning our ability and desire to continue to justify this role of leadership.

Many suggest that we are getting dangerously far away from the principles around which our great democratic form of government was founded—upon freedom and rights of the individual, upon individual initiative, upon freedom of opportunity for the individual through his own efforts and abilities to improve himself. All around us we see expressions of the same pattern—more governmental control, more regimentation by government, and greater dependence upon government.

In other words we see more of the characteristics of a socialistic welfare state when there is a tendency to try and lower everyone to the same level. At times we apparently fail to recognize the fact that people have different abilities, different capacities, different interests, and different desires.

Carleton Putnam, author of "Theodore Roosevelt, the Formative Years," points to the ideal of equality as the chief enemy of individual excellence. He says: "We were born a nation dedicated to liberty, but we have become a nation dedicated to equality. Where men are free, they will not be equal and where men are equal, they are not free."

In my opinion, our nation is being challenged today as never before to rediscover our national purpose and to keep alive our great American dream.

Above all we must rededicate ourselves to the principles and philosophies which led to the establishment of our nation. We must return to the fundamental principles of a constitution which was developed with one primary goal in mind—to make certain that the rights and freedoms of the individual were not subverted and destroyed by an all-powerful national government.

This, to me, is the heartbeat of our great American dream.

YOU'LL catch the Christmas spirit when you start making fruitcakes. In fact, these spicy conglomerations are just as much a part of the holiday season as Santa, carols, and poinsettias.

Grandma and Old Aunt Sally used to start peeling fruit and mixing batter months before Christmas. But thanks to our modern methods of processing, the traditional fruitcake is not so time consuming or laborious anymore. And now there are so many varied and exciting things that you can do with the batter to make baking even more fun!

PHILLIPS

On the gift side, what could be more perfect for the neighbor down the street, the postman, the children's teacher, and the pastor than a festive fruitcake. And for more special friends—why not buy a good set of cake pans for a gift and fill them with fruitcake before Christmas?

Usually, we think of fruitcake as either the white or dark type. And here's a good recipe for the dark cake.

Dark Christmas Fruitcake

1 cup currants
3 cups light or dark raisins
½ cup diced candied orange peel
½ cup diced candied lemon peel
1½ cups diced candied citron
1 cup halved candied cherries
1 cup diced candied pineapple
1 cup pecan halves
1 cup blanched almonds, cut lengthwise
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1½ teaspoons ground cloves
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 cup soft shortening
1 cup brown sugar, packed
6 eggs, separated
½ square unsweetened chocolate, melted
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ cup orange juice

Thoroughly grease 4 inch deep 10 inch tube pan. Cut heavy waxed paper to fit bottom and sides of pan. Line pan, and lightly grease paper, or use aluminum foil without greasing. In large bowl, thoroughly mix currants, raisins, peels, citron, cherries, pineapple, and nuts with one cup flour until all are coated with flour. Start heating oven to 300 degrees. Sift remaining 1 cup flour with spices and soda.

In large electric-mixer bowl, blend shortening with sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Then add melted chocolate. Blend in alternately, just until smooth, flour and fruit juices. When mixture is thoroughly blended, stir by hand into fruit mixture. Beat egg whites until stiff; fold into cake mixture. Turn into tube pan. Bake 2 hours 20 minutes, or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool completely in pan; remove paper.

Now, perhaps you are ready to try something a little more dramatic which will make your fruitcake even more holidayish. For example, fruitcake balls will be the greatest novelty that you have had in your house for years. And they are guaranteed to be a conversation piece among all guests the whole holiday season. Perfect for token gifts, too! Here's the way you do it.

Fruitcake Balls

Prepare fruitcake batter from your favorite recipe or mix. Fill well-greased custard cups ¾ full. Bake in slow oven (300 degrees) for 1½ hours or 'til toothpick inserted in cake comes out clean. Cool thoroughly.

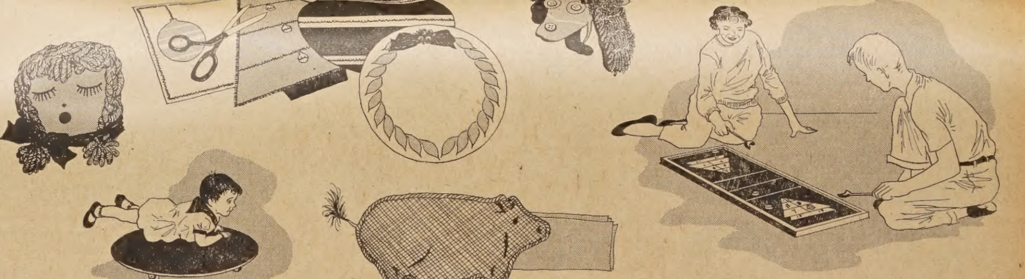
To make ball: Turn a cake out of its custard cup and invert over a cake still in cup. Then wrap each ball tightly with cellophane wrapping. Tie with gay Christmas ribbon (vary the colors on each ball, if desired) and attach tiny tree ornaments that harmonize with the ribbon bow.

Fruitcake-ettes are sure to be a hit with the teen-age set. They are not only delicious and colorful, but they also blend beautifully with Christmas decorations on a party table.

Fruitcake-ettes

Prepare batter from a 1 pound 1½ ounce package fruitcake mix, and add nuts according to package directions. Place plain paper nut cups, about 1¾ inches in diameter and 1¼ inches deep, on cookie sheet. Spoon batter into cups, filling almost full.

Bake in slow oven (300 degrees) 40 minutes or 'til done. Cool. For a Christmas glow, use pastry tube to pipe on green confectioner's icing in cluster of holly leaves atop each cupcake; insert tiny red birthday candles in center. Makes 16. (These can be eaten right away, but will taste better a few days after baking.)



For Christmas Smiles

Make Your Gifts

By Anne Patterson

WITH a needle and thread and a little imagination, you can turn odds and ends from the scrap bag into Christmas gifts for the whole family. Dad, too, can put his two cents worth in. In his workshop he can create gifts for all ages with leftover boards, a few nails, and some paint. So why don't you and Dad occupy your evenings from now until Christmas making gifts that will bring smiles on Christmas morning?

PATTERSON

If you dig into the scrap bag deep enough, you'll probably find some cloth from which you can make a little girl bean bag. Cut two circles for the head; stitch to the top. Then fill it with beans. Braid yellow yarn for the hair and stitch it to the bag. Add felt face features and ribbons.

A pooch puppet is a refugee from your darning box. Slit a sock toe, and sew in a felt mouth and tongue. Make the ears of felt, cover them with yarn loops, and attach them to the sock. Add button eyes and nose.

A snip of the shears and a dab of glue will rate you as a smart giftmaker with the older folks. Everyone will enjoy holiday place mats snipped out of colorful felt and decorated in your own way. Since felt is ravel resistant, your mats won't need hemming. So use pinking or scalloping shears and cut mats in 14 x 20-inch rectangles, in the shape of Christmas trees, holiday wreaths, or tree balls. Design trimmings that can be glued to the mats, making them as elaborate or as simple as you want with scraps of felt, gold braid, rickrack, sequins, and ribbon. Arrange them in the corners and sides so that they won't interfere with the place setting.

If you've got some old straw mats in your scrap bag, now's the time to dig them out. They make perfect napkin holders when they are cut in the shape of a pig and the edges bound with horizontal strips of bias tape. Stitch the sides and backs of two pigs together, leaving the head and front feet open to hold the napkin. Outline the ears, eyes, snout, and legs with straw strips of embroidery floss.

Felt glove bags—with a pair of gloves added for a special surprise—are good Christmas gifts for everyone from teenagers on up. The bags require 14½ x 12½ inches of felt. Fold up 5 inches and stitch the sides together. Pink the edges, rounding the flap corners. Glue glove cutouts to the flap of the bag and trim the cuff and top of 1 glove with multi-colored sequins.

Now for Dad's part. Suggest that he make an intriguing floor or shuffleboard set. Frame a 1 x 4-foot piece of plywood with a ¾ x 1-inch piece of stock. Use mitered joints. Paint the field—the triangle is 9 inches high—and varnish and wax the surface. Cut disks ⅜-inch thick from a broom handle, or use the right-sized checkers. Make the pushers with ¼-inch diameter wood rods 9 inches long for handles and glue to a plywood head.

Also easy for Dad to make is a rolling-twister—easy and fun to ride. The kids can shove off or get Dad to give them a push to go rolling and twisting across the room on nylon wheels in casters. It can be made by cutting a circle of ¾-inch plywood at least 24 inches in diameter. Four 1½-inch platform casters, available at any hardware store, let the rolling-twister go in any direction. Ordinary clothesline is used for handles, as shown, and adhesive-backed, plastic foam weather stripping is placed around the edges to protect the furniture.

Something New

Try A Popcorn Christmas Tree

By Joyce Prescott

EVER heard of a popcorn Christmas tree? They're different, easy to make, and fun for the entire family. The kids will love helping you string the popcorn, and they will be proud as punch of the results.

You'll need a ¾-inch thick plywood disc of the desired size, nails, cord, a broom handle, screws, satin ribbon bows, and popcorn strings.

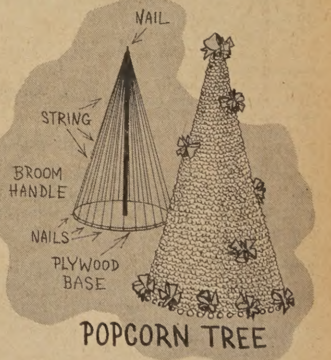
PRESCOTT

Cut a circle from the ¾-inch thick plywood in the size you want the base of your tree to be, placing the broom handle in the center. Screw from the bottom of the plywood into the broom handle to hold it erect. Put one large nail at the top, ¼-inch into the broom handle.

Then place nails at equal intervals around the edge of the plywood base.

Wind one continuous length of strong cord from the nail at the top of each nail at the bottom, continuing from top to bottom around the plywood base until you have formed a heavy cord tree.

Pop your corn and string it, using a needle and thread. To make the tree, begin at the top. Attach the first popcorn string to the nail at treetop; wind the string around the frame, pushing tightly together. When a new string is started, tie the first string to one of the up-and-down framework strings, attach second popcorn string to cord framework, and continue. Push each string up, making a firm structure. Add round buttons over the nails at the base.



POPCORN TREE

To brighten up your tree, make the bows from brightly colored satin ribbon and attach them to the tree with a hairpin. Place a row of bows around the base of your popcorn tree, and you'll have an unusual and colorful centerpiece for floor, table, or desk.

Library Rumblings--

RUMBLINGS about a library for Chilton County have climaxed with a shift of intent on the part of those behind the project to establishing a library for the City of Clanton. No agreement could be met with the Board of Revenue and Control, according to a spokesman for the Library Committee so supporters of the movement are concentracting on the possibility of a "second choice" operation. The Mayor has tentatively O·K'd the use of City property for the housing of books, subject, of course, to the approval of the City Fathers. Morris Moatts and James Duke Heflin, two of the most outspoken supporters of this effort are not easily discouraged, judging from past experience and we predict that either Clanton or Chilton County will have library facilities of some nature in the very near future.

Young Men In The Ministry--

IT does our heart good to see so many fine young men going into the Ministry as a life's work· Recently Perry Dalton, preached his first sermon at the First Methodist Church. Ordination services were held at Pates Chapel Baptist Church on Friday the 25th for Rev. Curtis Patterson with the "laying on of hands" by several of our leading Baptist ministers in the County. Ervin Dailey, Jr. preached his first sermon at the First Methodist Church this past Sunday and did a fine job of it, too! These are just a few of the most recent entries into the Ministry hereabouts and we can speak for our County as a whole when we say "more power to you, gentlemen" and we pray for more just like you!

Unsung Heroes--

THE Chamber of Commerce pays for the Christmas Lighting each year and we all enjoy the seasonal touch that it gives the community, but did you ever stop and think about just how much work and how many man hours go into the 'stringing up' of these Christmas decorations?

Oh, they get paid for it alright, but if you didn't know it, shinnying up hundreds of telephone poles in the cold and the dampness is no 'white collar' job and it takes quite a bit of brawn. . . not to mention a goodly amount of brains to do the job right.

You can thank George Fulmer, Earnest Bates, Leonard Sandlin and Charles Bates for the job each Christmas Season and they do a magnificent job of getting our town ready for welcoming strangers at Christmastime. Each year they say they aren't going to do it again, but then that old Christmas Spirit steals over them and they just can't help themselves· Fellows; if it helps any at all, we do appreciate the backbreaking efforts on your part and the children's delight upon seeing the Christmas lights should be some compensation, too! Thanks for the lighting!

But, We Said That--

OUR attention has been called to several items of interest over the past two or three weeks which we have discussed, at length, on our editorial pages. The most common comment is "why don't you fellows.. etc., etc." We appreciate the concern very much, it shows we're on the right track· We appreciate also those who read and keep up with what we DO say, before they jump on us about what we DON'T say! Chances are, we're right in there with you and have already aired the subject, or at least, brought it up! We'll make a deal fellers: you keep up with what we say and we will do our level best to keep up with you.. and that ain't no easy task believe us!

Christmas. . . Not Chritma--

AMIDST all the commercialism of the Holiday Season there is still lots of room in many hearts for the warmth of the true meaning of Christmas. Our attention has been called to the fact that we are celebrating the anniversary of the birth date of the Prince of Peace, which is only indirectly connected with Santa Claus and is in no way at all connected with the 'buying and selling' attitude which so many people seem to possess at this time of the year. Right now, at the beginning of the Holy Season, take stock of your attitude and really give Christmas to Christ. You may be surprised at the results when you find that you experience the best Christmas you have ever had. Giving is the essence of Christmas tis true; but it is the giving of ones self and not the giving of material pleasures. This year give yourself to Christmas and receive the blessings of the Prince of Peace, who's birthday we celebrate·

Testing To Be Sure

The simple tuberculin test will show if these children have been infected with TB. Even if they are infected, they need never come down with active disease if good health is maintained. Christmas Seal contributions help provide the funds needed for health education and tuberculin testing in the fight to wipe out TB.

THINGS We see and hear

by BOB

Do we support local business? Yes sir, and in more ways than one! We not only trade at home, but here's an excerpt from a front page article of the News, December 3, 1959: "At this time of the year it is even more interesting and important that you keep up with local business houses in your newspaper so that you will be well-informed of the bargains and the quality merchandise you can expect to find with Chilton County Merchants." Check the News for the best quality buys and then "Trade At Home."

EXPANDED industry in Chilton County during the past year have been the John Higgins Lumber Company at Thorsby and the Farmers Marketing and Exchange Association in Clanton. That is according to the State Planning and Industrial Development Board. Chilton's newest industry is the E-Z Pak Company at Maplesville, manufacturers of Paper Cartons. Chilton is growing in more ways than one. We finally are hitting our stride on industry-agricultura balance and a great deal of the thanks should go to the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce and its associated members.

THOSE who keep saying so much about the big cities electing Kennedy and crooked political machines ruling the masses are forgetting one major concept when they say that the voting was rigged and a "free and fair election" it was no. And that is the fact, that even though there may very well be big party political machines, they do not, we repeat, DO NOT, lead the public around with a ring in its nose! The American people still maintain the ability to thing, choose and act for themselves and those writers and 'great thinkers' who keep hammering away at the gullibility of the nation are just practicing the old "sour grape" routine with a new 'brain-washing' technique to confuse and disrupt.

FROM Clanton to the other side of Calera now takes about 15 minutes, as the crow flies on the new interstate highway east of Clanton. Well, actually it was just open for one day--Saturday for the Auburn-Alabama tussle--but it gave us a chance to try it out and most everybody on the road was passing us like we were standing still. A word of warning to you motorists who have never driven on a "fast" highway. Don't just think your car is in top shape, be darn sure it is. There ain't no fillin' stations for miles and miles on this new stretch of superhighway and if the old bucket of bolts starts to shimmying just past the legal speed limit you'll get left way, way behind. That's the only drawback on the new roads.. everybody thinks they're free as birds, and their speeds clearly show that they have thrown caution to the winds and the speed laws to the side and here we go.. well, it's a fine highway, but we'd sure hate to get caught walking across it.

ORGANIZED FORCES AGAINST TB

Your Local organized force is the most important one in the fight against tuberculosis in Alabama.

The fight against tuberculosis in the United States is conducted by many groups such as the United States public Health Service; state and local health departments; national, state and local tuberculosis associations; and medical and nursing professions; hospitals; social service agencies; and vocational rehabilitation agencies.

The National Tuberculosis Association, organized in 19[illegible], was the first voluntary organization formed by doctors and laymen to work together against a specific disease. Today it has constituent associations in every single state and territory. Affiliated with these are associations organized on a county or city basis. Altogether there are 2,700 voluntary tuberculosis associations joined in a common cause covering every state, the District of Columbia, Canal Zone, Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. Their registered trademark is the Red Double-Barred Cross.

The annual Christmas Seal Campaign supports the work of the tuberculosis associations. Of the money raised each year in local communities ninety four percent remains within the state and six per cent is allocated to the National organization. Christmas Seal funds are spent primarily for preventative programs of health education, case finding, rehabilitation and research.

Do everything you possibly can to make your county TB association a leading organized force in Alabama's attack against the mighty foe, Tuberculosis.

"Hello, Dear—still mad at me?"

YOUR HEALTH

Rheumatic Fever

Rheumatio fveer kills or cripples more children and younger people than any other disease. It is the first cause of death in the 10 to 15 age group. Rheumatic fever is responsible for 95 per cent of all deaths from heart disease in persons under 30 years of age.

Rheumatic fever occurs most frequently among children and young adults who live in cool, damp areas. Unsanitary and crowded quarters, cold, draft, extreme humidity, poor clothing, undernourishment, and fatigue seem to encourage rheumatic fever infection. Also, there is a family incidence; for about half of the patients with rheumatic fever infection or rheumatic heart disease have a relatife with history of similiar ailment. The cause of this phenomenon is probably not only inherited susceptibilty to the condition but also contact with the members of the family who have an acute or chronic streptococcal throat. Therefore, any sore throat in school age children should be given serious attention.

A first infection by rheumatic fever may be mild, not necessarily resulting in serious damage to the heart, but there is always the danger or recurrent attacks. A recurrent attack may be brought on by a new infectio nwith Streptococci or other bacteria or by some circumstance such as crippling and the patient has good merical guidance, he may enjoy a long active life.

Good nursing care is of prime importance, and complete bed rest is basic treatment for rheumatic fever. The most effective method of preventing rheumatic fever s prompt treatment for sore throats and respiratory illness.

Don't look for a renewal of the tax equalization fight during the next session of the legislature!

At least this is the thinking of Barbour County Rep. Sim Thomas. Thomas, you know, has led the tax equalization fight against Revenue Commissioner Harry Haden in the past. Thomas told this writer last week: "State schools won't receive any funds from ad valorem taxes for the next two years."

He added that what the schools needed now was "emergency relief and quick money for current expenses." Thomas based his "no fight" statement on his "having been assured of this from higher ups."

Mrs. Ruth Owens, State National Committeewoman, informed this scribe in Birmingham recently that a bill for two-party registration, and Demo and GOP primaries was presently being prepared for legislative consideration.

She was sure the Demo leaders across the state would endorse the plan. However, thus far, she has received no word on the matter from Republican leaders.

Noticed where Covington County Sen. Bob Kendall has been telling a few civic groups recently he believes Gov. John Patterson "will bring a strong interrelation" between reapportionment and Congressional redisticting.

Kendal, who admits this should be a hot fight next May, voiced confidence that if the legslature refuses to pass a reapportionment bill that JP's administration will "jam" Congressional redistricting, forcing all Congressmen to run for office from the state-at-large.

Sime politicos think JP feels that Black Belt legislators will "fear" such a move, and enable ppulous Nortr Alalbama to refuse to elect Black Belt legislators running for Congress. However, other politicians seem positive this redistricting issue will be an historic legislative battle," and that Black Belt lawmakers do not fear their Congressman running state at-large. That he could still win!

What districts will be affected in the realignment?, There is strong belief hat the frst, second and third congressonal districts will not suffer any extreme changes, along with Jefferson County's ninth district.

The present trend of thought on the matter is that the major realignment will be made in the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth districts, because of their peculiar "snake like" shapes.

But with those politicos who should know, the real crux of this issue is "will Black Belt Legislators risk their Congressman running state-at-large elections? Or will they release their apparent legislative control in Montgomery by going for reapportionment?"

A goodly number of these interested persons think the Black Belters will "risk their Co man", which they would consider the "lesser of the paent evils." And for being this writer agrees politcal conjecture.

"Most Great Americans, Atheists", Says On

THE statement made by Mr· Wes Gletty in a recent letter to us indicating that "Most of our greatest Americans have been Atheists" is a mis-statement of fact which no "well-read" American like Mr. Gletty should make.

Our greatest Americans in the past and in the present are God-fearing men and women who do put the Almighty first in their living and our great men and women of the future will need God as much or more than we do today or ever have. The fact that Mr. Gletty "does not know anyone who puts God first" is further proof of his ignorance of our times and is also indicative that he is not as well-read as he would like us to believe.

It is pathetic when a man, as well-read as Mr. Gletty claims to be in his writings (and that includes the Scriptures), cannot see beyond his nose and believes with all his being that he is self-sustaining and dependent on no one!

Mr. Gletty mentions in his letter to us that Jefferson, Edison, Burbank and Einstein were Atheists, a fact which we will not argue because we do not know. The important thing is, that these men, were endowed with a God-given talent and used it to help other people in their society. Is this, in itself, an Atheistic characteristic?

Mr. Gletty also mentions that we Christians "grovel on our knees praying to a make-believe God.." that is also a falsehood. . . our God is not make believe. The fact that Mr. Gletty is here, is proof that there is a Being much more powerful and understanding than he or I.

He says that the "so-called Christians have kept civilization back for centuries, by killing, burning, etc." "So-called" Christians is exactly what they were and are; that is not a Christian act merely because is has been practiced under the protection of the Christian name.

"The Communists," states Mr· Gletty "are turning out 10 scientists to our one.." We suppose that explains why the Communist world is so far behind our own in every respect except possibly the realm of world destruction. We eat better, sleep better and live better and also deal with our fellowman better than any Communist on this or any other earth.

Anyone who has the audacity to believe that he is entirely self-contained and able to maintain himself in his society or in his life is ignorant! Life, which man cannot give and death, which man cannot deter, are proof enough that man is decidely unable to con this universe.

GLETTY'S LETTER

Clanton, Alabama
November 19, 1960

Dear Bob,

In your column "Things We See And Hear", for November 17, you made the following statement, and I quote: "But, it is our opinion that it is time all Amercans stand up to Communism for what it is and give no ground, nor courtesy and no apologies to anyone who does not put the Almighty first in their living".

It would seem by this statement, that you include all of the millions of good American citizens, who do not grovel on knees and plead with some imaginary and invisible god to do their work and thinking for them, instead of standing up like human beings on their own feet like men were supposed to do, and doing things for themselves.

This I resent. In fact, I know of no one who really puts any "Almighty" first, unless you are alluding to the "Almighty" dollar. Most of our greatest Americans in the past have been Atheists. Where would we be today if we had not had Thomas Jefferson, a Thomas Paine, a Thomas Edison, a Luther Burbank or even an Einstein? They did not produce what they did by groveling on their knees, and pleading with some imaginary power, they used their own brains. It has been the Atheists who have made this a better world in which to live. It has been the so-called Christians, who kept civilization back for centuries, by killing, by burning, etc. every heretic that dared to show any scientific trend.

You state, and I quote: "Also these Godless men have threatened to 'bury' us and take over the world", and that is just what they are going to do ,if we don't get off our knees and jar our tightly bound brain loose and get to work. While we have been fighting our sham battle with Atheism and groveling on our knees, pleading with our mythical god to guide us and take care of us, the Communists have been accomplishing things with their scientifically trained men, and they are training about ten to our one. Even our own scientists tell us this.

I am enclosing a booklet, "Humanism For The Millions" by Gordon Kent. Please read this booklet carefully, and tell us in your column what you really think about it. Also you would do your readers a great service if you would publish it in it's entirety in your paper. While it is a copyrighted booklet, I am sure you can get the Author's consent, or I will get it for you. Also I can get this booklet for anyone who so wishes for the price of 25c as shown on the cover. It is the most intelligent and comprehensive booklet on the subject, that I have ever read.

Respectfully,
WES GLETTY
Route Two — Clanton

If Nature controls the universe, then may we as Mr· Gletty, who controls Nature? Did everything i this world just happen through years of change and Evolution- Decidedly not! Mr. Gletty did not just happen, we did not just happen! The Giver of li is also the controller of life and the sustainer of all th living. Anyone believeing otherwise has never "grov eled on his knees" and asked the forgiveness of th Almighty or the strenghtening hand of God in a ti of great trouble. We shudder at the thought of ing to go through life completely dependent on selves alone, or the accomplishments of science, though extensive in their abilities to heal and soothe the body are decidedly lacking in their ability to satis fy a confused soul or to bring about an understanding between two human minds or to create a life.

We, Mr. Gletty, put the Almighty first in our li and we are not a great American, not by your stand ards anyway· There is no need to refer you to Scri ture because you do not recognize them as an autho ity on anything. There is no argument to present you because there ARE things in our beliefs which do not understand and you, believing that man is se sufficient, have everything in your life neatly figu out.·. scientifically!

We do not know about Atheists Mr. Gletty, Christians did not originate in the "muck and mi of early life on this planet, and we do not desce from the monkey, in any form, as the Atheist wo have us believe!

We are God's creatures and He made us! He co trols our lives, whether or not we know or like it a that includes the lives of Mr. Burbank, Mr. Einst and you Mr. Gletty.

CHAMBER TO ELECT NEW OFFICERS

THE Chamber's Fiscal year ends December 31st. President Higgins this week announced that the Annual Meeting of the entire Chamber will be held December 30 at 7:30 p.m. at the Liberty National Insurance office in Clanton. At that time, elections will be held to select new officers for the coming year. In addition, by operation of the Chamber's by-laws, two vacancies will be filled on the Board of Directors. The official board, composed of six members, has two seats to fill each year. The two seats coming up for election this year are held presently by Mr. Gordon Robertson and John M. Foshee. The present official board of directors is composed of J. P. Lawrence, Jr., Bobby Lane, E. S. Monroe, Gordon Robertson, Johnny Vines, P. F. Singley and John M. Foshee. In addition, the president of each civic organization in Chilton County is an ex-officio member.

The Nominating Committee appointed by President Higgins for the election are: Gordon Robertson, chairman; P. F. Singley, H. Gains Burnett, Hugh Champion and E. S. Monroe. They will make two nominations for each place to be filled by the Chamber at this year's election and these nominations, in addition to those made by any member of the organization and filed with the Secretary, will be mailed to the membership for their consideration ten days prior to the election. Nominations may also be made from the floor at the meeting.

A complete list of the voting membership will appear in the December issue of The Newsletter. If you have not paid your dues, please mail them in immediately and you will be included this year as a qualified elector for the Chamber's annual meeting.

SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION PLANNED

HIGHLY commendable are the plans of James D. Heflin to organize a Savings and Loan Association in Clanton.

This type of lending institution is greatly needed in the Chilton County area to provide a good yield on Savings Accounts and to provide quick service for new home mortgages and home improvement loans.

All persons who are interested in participating in the organization of this new lending agency, may contact James D. Heflin for information.

1960 FAIR PROFITS TO BE USED FOR CIVIC PURPOSE

THE General Treasury of the Chamber this week received $376.20 as its share of the 1960 Chilton County Fair proceeds.

The Chilton County Fair Committee reported this year's take at $3,704.26 before expenses. After setting aside a reserve of $500.00 for next year's fair committee, the Clanton Jaycees and the Chamber of Commerce split th net profits. The two organizations jointly sponsor the County Fair each year and pledge themselves to share any loss that may result in operations. In the event of hard rains during the week of the fair, attendance would be low and the Fair Committee would bankrupt. Fortunately, this has never happened. As a result, each year the County gets a bigger and better Fair and the proceeds go for the betterment of the community as a whole.

Particularly successful this year were the cattle, hog and corn exhibits. Impartial judges, brought in from other parts of Alabama had high praise for the progress being made in Chilton County agriculture. The annual Fair is one way to cite and award credit to those progressive farmers who are leading the way in agriculture. Agriculture still accounts for about 70 percent of Chilton County's annual income.

The Home Demonstration Clubs from over the County had outstanding exhibits this year. Next year, additional emphasis will be put upon exhibits of "What Chilton County Makes, Makes Chilton County".

Mrs. Lowery served an old fashioned Thanksgiving feast to the 25 guests at noon. The menu consisted of ham, fried chicken, turkey, dressing, candied yams, vegetables, salads, pickles, relishes, pies and cakes.

Guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Perry and sons Mack Jr. and Andy. Mr. and Mrs. Emmet Wright, Joe Wight, Jim Wright and Miss Carol Black, all of Atlanta, Ga. Mr. and Mrs. Milton Lowery, Nina and Valerie Lowery, of Fairfield, Ala. Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Wooten, Miss Marie Wooten, of Alabaster. Miss Patricia Kennedy of Mobile. Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hints For Christmas Mailing

Hundreds of thousands of Christmas cards and packages will be lost this year because of illegibly written addresses. Servicemen overseas, relatives, friends, business associates—all will be part of a disappointed army whose mail goes astray, because, as a national magazine recently stated, we have become a "nation of scrawlers."

Yet a few simple rules and just a little attention to it will improve anybody's handwriting immediately, says the Handwriting Foundation in a special appeal aimed at cutting down losses.

All addresses, says the Foundation, should be written in at least three well-spaced lines, with zone numbers included. This goes for the return address as well. Take special care with the "tricky" letters and numbers shown on the chart.

WATCH OUT FOR TRICKY LETTERS

Never close these loops: e l f

Never loop non-looped strokes: t i d

Always close letters like: a g d

WATCH OUT FOR "LOOK-ALIKE" NUMBERS

1-7 3-5-8

NP

Your signature, on greeting and gift cards, should be legible. Include the last name when identification might otherwise be in doubt. If it's a family card, make the children part of the greeting, and let them sign the card, too.

For far away friends and relatives, add a short note—a few words of greeting and maybe a promise of a longer letter soon. A New Year's card is appropriate for friends you've forgotten at Christmas. And never give money gifts to the postman, milkman and others without at least the personal touch of your signature.

You don't have to be an artist to decorate a card or gift package. A pen and colored inks (try red and green for Christmas) is all you need. A tree in outline, some stars, a few heavy dots . . . and you've drawn your own Christmas spirit. Another personal touch is a note in an envelope attached to the outside of a gift package.

As for next year's greeting card and gift list, compile it now. Write each name on a separate index card, and alphabetize them in a file box to simplify additions and changes. Or keep a booklet, with blank pages between names for newcomers. Such a list prevents embarrassing duplication or omission at card-sending time.

And always remember, concludes the Handwriting Foundation, that the written message is part of the Christmas spirit. Be sure to make the message legible.

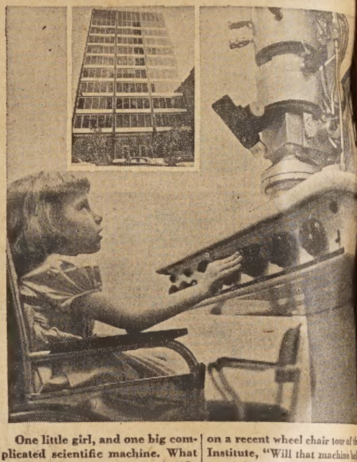
Research Holds Hope For MD Victims



One little girl, and one big complicated scientific machine. What do they have in common? The little girl has muscular dystrophy, a disease that defies analysis; the big machine is an electron microscope, capable of magnifying muscle tissue 160,000 times.

The microscope is installed at the Institute for Muscle Disease, New York City, the modern research center built at a cost of more than $5,000,000 by Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America, Inc., with funds raised in the annual March for Muscular Dystrophy.

Robin Balnis, MDAA's 1960 National Poster Child, asked, while on a recent wheel chair tour of th Institute, "Will that machine he me walk?"

'THE WHITE PLAGUE'

80 KNOWN CASES OF TB IN CHILTON

That veteran tuberculosis fighter the Christmas Seal has made its annual visit to Chilton County residents this year. According to Mrs. R. M. Tucker, Chilton county's 1060 Christmas Seal Chairman, the Christmas Seal Campaign opened November 14 when Seals were mailed to most homes in the county, along with an appeal letter. "We sncerely hope," said the chairman, "that every family in the county will respond to the message in that letter. On their response to its message depends the chance of continuing the battle against that constant menace to every individual and every home in the county.

"When the first Christmas Seal was introduced 54 years ago, TB was called the White Plague. Unfortunates who came down with tuberculosis were shunned and went to their deaths for lack of treatment. Such was the case back then because there were so few methods of treatment and practically no scientitic knowledge of the disease. And the public's lack of interest to the serious situation made matters worse. But Christmas Seals began to arouse action and as a result of the first campaign, people began to sit up and recognize TB as the killer it was. And Christmas Seal contributions over the last half century have done a tremendous amount to change that dismal picture from despair to hope!

"This year Christmas Seal dollars will continue to work to change the TB picture! Although much progess has been made against TB, it is far from being licked! With 10,859 known cases of TB in Alabama today and 80 known cases right here in Chilton county, you can see that we have much more to do. We urge you to use Christmas Seals on all your cards, packages and letters. And we hope that you'll answer your Christmas Seal letter with a generous contribution."

Thank you!
Mrs. Tucker ,Chr.

The work of th TB association is supported entirely by Christmas Seal contributions. It's your association. Your Christmas Seal dollars will help it continue the fght against tuberculosis.

MAIL EARLY FOR CHRISTMAS

AND HERE'S HOW TO HELP POST OFFICE

Postmaster R. R. Sutley said today, "Early mailing of all Christmas cards and gifts is the biggest single factor in getting all of the mail delivered before Christmas. Post Office facilities have been expanded, extra help will be available, and everything is geared up to handle a record Christmas mail in Clanton this year."

The entire Christmas mailing period is a big battle against time. Even though Christmas is a month away by the calendar. it's Christmas every day at the Post Office from now on.

The Postmaster, advises, "Don't take chances on mailing poorly wrapped packages. Use sturdy corrugated mailing cartons, plenty of heavy wrapping paper and strong cord. Cartons containing several gift packages should be well stuffed with tissue or old newspaper to cushion the contents."

He said further, "If you have articles of unusual size or bulk, better check with the Post Office before attempting to mail them. The limits or size and weight of packages vary, depending on where you mail your packages from.'

Always send your Christmas cards by First Class mail and be sure to include your return name and address on each Christmas card envelope.

Send all Christmas mail going long distances before December 10th. Follow up promptly with cards and gifts for local delivery. Mail "Early and Often" for a merrier Christmas.

Why Do Drivers Fail Alabama License Exam

Foyd H. Mann, Director of the Department of Public Safety said today that out of the 268,000 driver license applicants who took the examination last year 82,892 failed; that when the applicants passed the written examination and brought their vehicles to the Drivers License Examiners more than 25,000 others failed the examination because their vehicle did not meet the requirements for motor vehicle inspection.

Mr. Mann said that too many applicants are failing the Alabama Drivers License Examination. These failures are not due to the fact that the examination is too hard, but are chiefly due to two faults of applicants. First, the applicant take the examination for granted; therefore, they are over-confident and not prepared because they have not read the Alabama Drivers Handbook which can be obtained from any Probate Judge, Drivers License Examination Station, or any Highway Patrol Office. Second, that the applicants are not careful enough about the condition of the equipment they plan to drive in the examination.

Lieutenant T. L. Payne, Chief Drivers License Eraminer of the Department of Public Safty, is asking all applicants to obtain the drivers handbook and read it carefully before attempting to take the examination. He also stated that the vehicle you plan to take the road test in should be safety-checked before you apply for the examination. This will save a great deal of your time and that of the examiner.

Lieutenant Payne says be sure that your vehicle will pass a close inspection on the following points before you pull in place for a road test.

1. License plates
2. Head-lights, tail-lights, and brake or stop light.
3. White light on tag.
4. Rear View Mirror
5. Muffler
6. Brakes
7. Windshield wipers
8. Steering mechanism
9. Horn
10. Turn light signals are not required. However, if your vehicle is equipped with them they must be in good working order.

Many applicants disqualify themselves by driving their vehicles to obtain a drivers license without having a licensed driver with them. Each unlicensed driver must be accompanied by a liensed driver when the applicant applies for the road test.

Read the Alabama Drivers Handbook carefully and bring a vehicle that will pass the uniform vehicle inspection, and your chances are good that you can pass the Drivers License Examination.

Baptists Succeed In 'M' Night Record; 963

GOAL WAS 901; PRESENT WERE 963 PLUS

PEOPLE were turned away from the First Baptist Church on Monday night of this week because there was not enough room to seat the nearly 1000 people who were present. It was the long-awaited "M" NIGHT for the Chilton-Unity Association of Baptists and the goal set at 901 was surpassed beyond expectations.

Taking home honors with the Eficiency Banner as the reward, was the Macedonia Baptist Church. They had 94 percent of their totel Training Union enrolment present.

The Thorsby Baptist Church equally honored, had 87 enrolled members present; the highest of any church participating.

Of the 53 churches and the Mission represented by this association there were 38 churches represented on this occasion and 34 pastors were present. Special music was enjoyed by all who came.

The 'Paper Train', engineered by Roy Kendricks, bearing the 1961 Program of Work, was directed by Rev. Laney W. Matthews and discused by four pastors.

Rev. Jerry Helms, of Bessemer, brought a challenging message on 'Called to Serve'.

R. C. Veazey, Associational Training Union director, presided at this meeting. C. T. Stephens presented a 42 frame filmstrip entitled 'Be Thou Faithful'.

The goels for 1961 are 200 more people enrollel in Training Unions and two new Training Unions orgenized.

ISABELLA ROLLS OVER MAPLESVILLE

On Friday night, December 2, Isabella and Maplesville tangled in a close, exciting game. Isabella led through most of the game and pulled away in the 4th quarter for an even more decisive win.

Jimmy Headley led the Mustangs scoring with 26 points. All the rest of the Isabella squad as follows: Floyd Collins 13, Billy Joe Mims5, John Veazey 2, Wayne Mims 4, Billy Burroughs, Frank Daniels and Roy Bray each scored 1 point.

Harrison led Maplesville's scoring wth 20 points. McAffe and Bearden both had 8 points for the Red Devils.

In a nip and tuck B Game that was perhaps more exciting than the A game. Maplesville finally won 44 to 42.

The win was Isabella's second of the season, against no defeats.

It seems as though the Isabella Mustangs are off to a good start for this coming basketball season.

Friday night the Mustangs meet Thorsby at Isabella. B game will begin at 6:30.

For a thrilling basketball game, come to these two games that are sure to be filled with excitement.

Prove Heroes In Emergency

Volunteer Crew Works Around Clock Repairing Gas Line

HEROES were plentiful around these parts last Friday night and this past Monday night when breaks in the main gas line feeding into the city caused the City Employees, both local gas company employees, the Volunteer Firemen and the Civil Defense Resue Squad to work around the clock in order to restore gas service to the community.

Hampering the situation on Friday night was the fact that temperatures dipped to below freezing and the public was without heat for a period of about four hours.

Friday night temperatures were not so cold, but operations were made equally difficult by fewer workers (because of personal working hours) and the fact that all residents had to be notified.

The first break on Friday about 3 p.m. was the result of a drag line in the bottom of the creek at the southern intersection of the new Interstate highway and highway 31. The second break was caused by a bulldozer, which was digging up a gas tank and ran into the main line. Both breaks occurred on the right-of-way of the new Interstate Highway project.

Lewis Culver, possibly the greatest hero of them all, a City employee welded both breaks, one in freezing temperatures and at the bottom of a creek bed.

The second break, on Monday of this week, occurred about 10 o'clock in the morning and service was resumed in some parts of the city as early as 1:30 p.m. The volunteers finished notifying residents at about 10 p.m. Monday evening

The City was broken-down into districts or sections of about 10 or 12 in number and residents were notified in the various districts as the gas was turned on. casualities,

According to the Mayor's office, about 40 or 50 homes had live gas in them at the time the volunteers alled on them and had the men not been thorough in their calling there could have been a lo of casualites.

These men are all due a vote of thanks from the public n this area. They have prived beyond a doubt that when an emergency arises, regardless of personal safety and comfort, they are on the job and prepared to cope with it.

The gas line that was broken is a six inch pipe, laid to a minium of 30 inches below the surface and carrying 100 pounds of pressure. The welded breaks were secured with a piece of sheet steel and the city is finishing up the job niw.

"The breaks are fixed", said Mayor Hollis Jackson, "and we certainly want to thank all those men who gave so unselfishly of their time and also to the people who were inconvenienced by the accident for being so patient and kurteous to those who were doing the job."

Thousands Throng to Christmas Parade

HERE you see the winning float "Living Christmas Tree" in this year's Christmas Parade. The float sponsored by the Hemerocallis Garden Club, won $25 for its sponsors and a beautiful trophy as well.

News photos by SCOTT

CHILTON County turned out in the thousands last Friday afternoon as the Junior Chamber of Commerce, in cooperation with other civic and public organizations, joined together in what is considered ot be the finest presentation of its kind ever witnessed in Chilton County or Clanton.

The 'nearly a mile' long parade featured original ideas in all the floats and bands, clowns and old St. Nick.

Estimates of the crowds in Clanton at that time have been as low as 4,000 and as high as 15,000. Officials estimate the throngs of people at about 5,500. At any rate, it was the largest crowd ever assembled here in Clanton for any single event.

Winning floats were sponsored by the Hemerocallis Garden Club, first place winner; Beta Sigma Phi and Clanton Music Club, both honorable mentions. The winning float "The Living Christmas Tree" had an engel on the top, little Miss Cheryl Wade and others were: Cheryl Tapscott, Bill Hays, Jan Wade, Janice Muncher, Belinda Lawrence, Rhonda Patterson, Drew Culp, Suzanne Salter and Cynthia Tapscott.

Co-chairmen in charge of decorating this float for the garden club Charles Wade. were Mrs. Herb Salter and Mrs.

The trophy for the winning float was presented in the center of town by Probate Judge J. C. White. Eddie Edwards was Master of Ceremonies. It is a rotating trophy, given for the first time this year, in memory of the late Dr. W. C. Golden, beloved doctor of thousands of Chilton Countians.

The trophy will be housed in the new Chilton County Courthouse when it is erected. The winner also received -25 in cash.

Judges of the floats were Warren Crow, III of Birmingham; Mr. Breen of Maplesville and Clanton and Don Townsend, newcomer to Clanton.

Next year's Parade Chairman has already been named by the Jaycees. He is Dave Norman of Big Four Hardware Co. in Clanton. In charge of Home and Business decorations next year will be Bill Reid of Fiesta Bowling Lanes.

The Jaycees, noted for their action, are wasting no time in getting things ready to make the next traditional parade the biggest in history!

225 'FORGOTTEN MEN'

R. S. Watson, Chaplain at Kilby Prison, reminds us in a letter this week that there are approximately 225 'Forgotten Men' at Kilby who receive little or no mail and will not get a Christmas box from home.

Mr. Waston says that if your church group, or you, individually, care to assist at this time that you may send your contributions or contact him at the Door of Hope Chapel, Kilby Prison, Montgomery, Alabama.

Such items as cakes, cookies and homemade candy, or shelled nuts are o.k. to send.

Mr. Watson reminds us too, that if it would be more convenient for you, you may send 32 in cash, money order or check to the Chaplain's Department where they will prepare a box for these 'Forgotten Men'.

We are happy that we went past our goal at M night Monday at the First Baptist church in Clanton. Our goal was 50, we had 67 present. Altho we did not win the banner we are happy our neighboring church Macedonia won it.

CARD OF THANKS

The Shaw family wishes to take this opportunity to express their appreciation for the kindness and sympathy shows in the death of our father and grandfather, Mr. W. A. Shaw. Especially Rev. James C. Mujick, Opelika, Ala., Rev. A. V. Bice, Rev. E. C. Hand, Spiegner Funeral Home, friends and loved ones.

ONE of the outstanding floats inthe parade was that featured by the Clanton Garden Club. There were 17 floats, two bands, adrum corps, the Legion Train, CD Rescue Squad and a Color Guard from the local National Guard Unit. There were also clowns galore and last, but by no means least, came Santa Claus.

THIS photo will give you a good idea of the immense crowds which turned out for the annual Jaycee Christmas Parade on Friday, December 2. Similar crowds lined every street along the parades mile-long route. Astride the steed is Clanton Chief of Police Wallace Foshee as the parade enters the heart of town.

NEWS OF—SHILOH

Rev. A. V. Bice, Pastor

The WMU is observing the week of prayer here this week. The program will be climaxed Saturday night, Dec 3 with book on missions being taught by the pastor. The time is 6:30 p.m. and every one is urged to attend.

The GA study course will be on Wednesday night, Dec. 7. This group will be taught by Miss Hazel Mullins. Please make your plans to attend this class

We had some wonderful services at church last Sunday. Those who missed the sermons brought by the pastor missed a great blessing. Among our visitors were, Mr. Hermon Mullins, Calera, Misses Mary Lou Traywick and friend of Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. Alf Headley of Mobile, Mr. and Mrs. Red Burdette Clanton, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mims and children and Mr. Erby Dobbs of Prattville.

Our church will observe H day next Sunday, Dec. 4. We are expecting a visiting minister from Howard College to bring the message at the eleven o'clock hour. Let's all be present and give him our support and enjoy the services.

We extend our congratulations to Miss Thelma Dobbs. She was chosen Good Citizenship Girl of Verbena High School recently. Thelma is a senior at Verbena High School and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reedie Dobbs of Shiloh community.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bice and children of Omaha, Nebraska spent Thanksgiving holidays with Carl's sister, Mrs. Nadine Dobbs and family.

A large number of our friends and relatives visited in our community during Thanksgiving holidays. We are very thankful for this and the many many blessings we enjoyed.

Cracklin' Bread

Bake it "round" or bake it "square" — in a skillet or a pan your family will proclaim the old-fashioned goodness of Cracklin' Bread.

What could be more "homey" than piping hot wedges of Cracklin' Bread and steaming bowls of hearty soup or savory stew?

Sounds like a good meal to come home to — and it is. For two centuries or more, women have been stirring cracklings into their corn bread batter to give it country flavor. The flavor combination has appealed to generations of families through the years.

Crisp cracklings — tiny pieces of pork left after lard has been rendered — are not everyday fare like they once were. If your store doesn't have cracklings, substitute bits of fried salt pork or slab bacon for almost authentic flavor.

Southern women well know the appeal and nutritional value of hot breads. Corn breads, biscuits and muffins give the most elegant meal an extra flair and increase the "homey" goodness of everyday meals.

A meal needs bread to be nutritionally complete. Muffins and corn bread made with enriched self-rising corn meal contribute B-vitamins, food iron and calcium.

Enriched self-rising corn meal is also the key to easy, worry-free baking. Just the right amounts of baking powder and salt are blended with the corn meal to save you time and effort. Whether you're baking corn bread, cracklin' bread, corn sticks or muffins, count on self-rising corn meal for an attractive bread that tastes as good as it looks.

CRACKLIN' BREAD

- 2½ cups enriched self-rising corn meal
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 2 eggs, beaten
- ¼ cup bacon drippings or melted shortening
- 1½ cups milk
- 1 cup chopped cracklings

Heat oven to hot (400° F.). Grease and heat 10-inch skillet or 9-inch square baking pan. Combine corn meal and sugar in mixing bowl. Add eggs, bacon drippings or shortening and milk. Mix until smooth. Fold in cracklings. Turn batter into hot greased skillet or pan. Bake about 35 minutes, or until lightly browned. Cut into squares or wedges.

Makes 9 to 10 servings.

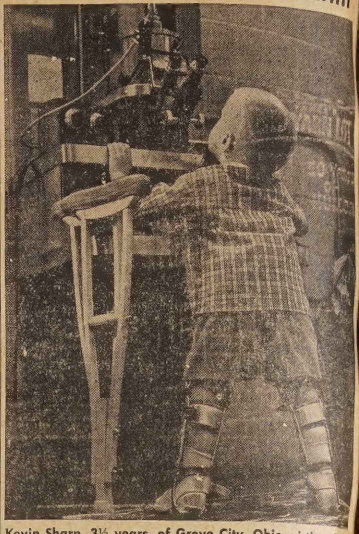
'Giant Eye' Symbolizing Research Hope Is Visited by Small Birth Defects Victim



Kevin Sharp, 3½ years, of Grove City, Ohio, victim of birth defect of an open spine, stands before huge nine-foot electron microscope at Ohio State University Hospital, Columbus. Instrument is used in March of Dimes-supported research into congenital malformations.

The lights dim, and in the darkened high-ceilinged room a somber-faced little boy stares at the pilot light of a towering microscope.

This is the electron microscope at Ohio State University Hospital, Columbus, Ohio, a giant inquiring eye nine feet tall, capable of magnifying the human cell 100,000 times.

The small boy with the rather sad little face is Kevin Sharp, 3½ years, of Grove City, Ohio, who wanted to see a jumbo-sized version of the toy microscope given him on his last birthday by his doctor. Kevin has to see his doctor regularly because he is a victim of spina bifida, or open spine. He is paralyzed from the waist down and cannot play ball—or indeed play much at anything.

Such mobility as he has is made possible by his crutches and leg braces.

Kevin's is one of the significant birth defects the cause of which is being pursued today by The National Foundation with New March of Dimes contributions. Congenital malformations afflict 250,000 infants annually in the United States and are responsible for the deaths of 34,000 babies each year who are stillborn or die within four weeks of birth. The health organization's expanded program also includes arthritis and continued work in polio.

In his excitement while reaching for the eyepiece of the vast instrument, Kevin probably didn't know that in the ultra-powerful lens of such electron microscopes, scientists hope some day to pinpoint the cause of the savage embryonic mishap that crippled him before he was born. By comparing normal and abnormal cells under tremendous magnification, researchers hope to discover, for example, why Kevin's spine never fused during his mother's pregnancy, or why some other little boy or girl is born with excess fluid on the brain—another baffling birth defect which The National Foundation is studying.

"At his birth, doctors gave Kevin only a few hours to live," says Mrs. Gerald Sharp, his mother. "In addition to his open spine, he had two clubfeet which are now much improved due to surgery and physical therapy. He is a brave and happy little fellow even if he smiles so rarely. My husband and I thank God that today wider research is being done into birth defects."

She adds somewhat wistfully:

"My husband Gerald and I met in an orphanage in Xenia, Ohio. We became childhood sweethearts. Like other young people, we longed to raise a family, and a healthy one.

"Why should this unaccountable accident have happened to us? But we count our blessings. Perhaps fewer Kevins will be born to the next generation. We certainly pray so."

The lights return and, supported by his crutches and braces, solemn little Kevin struggles back from the microscope. But at that moment, looking up at his mother, there's the suggestion of a smile around the corners of his mouth.

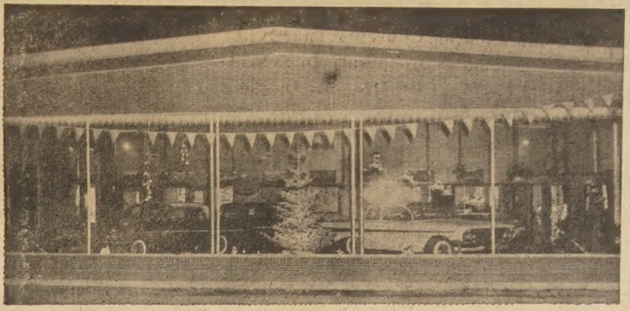
BELL TELEPHONE GUIDANCE SYSTEM STEERS TIROS II INTO CIRCULAR ORBIT

NEW AID IN WEATHER FORECASTING—The day of Operational weather satellites is a step closer now that Tiros II is orbiting the earth. The satellite, launched just a few days ago by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, will televise pictures back to earth of cloud cover for experimental use in forecasting weather.

To provide accurate data, the instument-packed capsule must be at a uniform distance from the earth at all times. The Bell Telephone Command Guidance System helped make possible the almost perfect circular orbit of Tiros II.

The Command Guidance System, designed by Bell Laboratories and built by Western Electric is one of a number of ways the Bell System is participating in the nation's space effort. The same skills and knowledge that went into the development of space equipment have also made possible the finest telephone service in the world.

Winners In Business Decorations



SHOWN here in a night shot is Stokes Chevrolet Co., winner of this year's Jaycee Business Decorations Contest. Judges for this annual event were Mrs. F. E. Wray, Mrs. Claude Craig and Mrs. Guy McKee. The windows were judged on Friday night, following the parade and other festivities of the day.

SHELTON Motors, one of the traditionally beautiful windows at Christmas Time, was a runner-up in this year's Contest. Here they have packaged up a new automobile for someone's Christmas. Co-Chairmen of the Contest for the Jaycees were Bo Littleton and Lamar Hale.

A COMPARATIVE newcomer to the window decoration competition is another of this year's runner-ups and the above photo gives you a good idea of why they were chosen. It's the Modern Beauty Shop on 2nd Avenue. If you haven't yet seen these and other beautiful windows in and around Clanton you must do so before Christmas.

WE believe there is a great and wonderful God and we prove it through the things around us. . . the marvelous thing which man cannot make or control or even comprehend. If you believe there is no God -- how do you prove it -- to yourself, let alone others?

IF you are one of those who think that Trading At Home is a duty, you haven't done enough of it. With all the advantages trading with local merchants offers it seems to be more of a privilege than a duty!

Rescue Squad Always Ready--

CLANTON had a bit of a crisis last Friday night when a break in the main gas line south of town resulted in the complete absence of gas from the area and with temperatures running down below freezing. The City employees and the Chilton County Civil Defense Rescue Squad worked way into the night in order to get gas service restored and to notify every resident that the gas was on and working again.

Some of these men worked several hours, without any kind of pay, in the freezing weather to help those who couldn't help themselves.

We don't realize how much we depend on something simple like natural gas, until freezing temperatures come and we don't have any gas. By the same token, we don't really know how to appreciate our City employees (including the mayor and council) and organization called the Chilton County CD Rescue Squad until we find ourselves depending strongly on their efforts and abilities.

We don't know about you; but we didn't mind a bit that fellow gtting us up in the middle of the night to tell us the gas was on and all was well. As a matter of fact, he very probably was one of those several who were getting nothing for the effort except cold toes and his sole compensation was the self-satisfaction derived from helping others. Thanks fellers!

Don't Assume Anything--

Public Is Going To Buy Where They Know What Is Available And When

WE believe that the Christmas Spirit should not be comercialized to the degree that some do, but any man in business is not conforming against his principles when he sets out to attract all the business he possibly can when the season comes around and people are inevitably doing an unusual amount of buying.

The merchants in Clanton have the wrong idea about the annual Christmas Parade that was staged so successfully here last Friday afternoon. The sponsoring organization did a magnificent job on the entire affair and the local news facilities did a pretty good job of publicizing the anual event. Together these factors drew quite a crowd of people into Clanton at that time and they were all potential buyers of Christmas gifts.

The lament of many a local merchant is "why should we ask them to trade at home; they're going to go out of town anyway." You can believe it or not, but we have had some of them say just that.

Several weeks ago, the merchants of Clanton should have begun a drive, in preparation for the thousands of people who would be in town on the above-mentioned date, to see if they couldn't attract some of that trade that leaks out during the big buying season. Half, if not more than half, of Clanton's businesses closed up at their regular time on Friday evening just as if nothing were going on and there wasn't a soul in town!

Some form of advertising is a must for such an event as we just witnessed and the merchants should have made a cooperative effort to see that everyone in th County knew about the Big Day in Clanton on December 2. Advertising material, bearing special prices, the fact that local stores were cooperating by staying open until 7 or 8 p.m. on that evening should have been well distributed.

The people were here in thrings, but we local merchants did not plan enough ahead, as the Jaycees most surely did, and get ready for the big event!

Until we take advantage of our opportunities and tell the people about what's going on, we cannot expect them to know.

The people did their part by turning out for the parade; the Jaycees and other organizations and the news facilities did their job by telling the people as much as they knew of what was going on.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce, with a splendid reputation in community service, has built this Annual Christmas Parade into a challenge to the community and its merchants. We have the facilities and the ability to draw large crowds. If the merchant wants to sell his products to these crowds he must work and act accordingly.

Next year, we know we will have a fine opening Christmas Event. We sincerely hope that the merchants will begin now to be ready and make the event one which will not only please the viewing public, as did this year's performance, but will satisfy the local merchant as well in regards to our people "Trading At Home" where they will -- if they know what's going on!

HI VANCE'S USED YARN LOT

50 Years of HUMOR

Kendall Tolle, of Lakeland, Fla., former publicist for the citrus industry of that state, breezed inti my office recently not looking a day older that he did thirty years ago and being equally as dapper. He told me that he is now in public relations for Florida Phosphates. Naturally, I always feel a bit proud of him because he was in my journalism class which I taught at Flrida's Southern College many years ago, and it so happens that I started him out in this writing game, getting him his first job on a newspaper.

Lots of syrup has gone over the hot cakes and waffles since those early days, but there was one joke in circulation at the time he was serving as a reporter which he, my family and I got quite a laugh out of during its and our juvenile-hood. So, when we het again not too long ago, we re-laughed over that particular bit of humor of a bygone day.

A customer had gone into a drug store, had sat down at the soda fountain and had told the rather dumb soda jerk: "I want a Coke without lime, buddy."

The rather sleepy-eyed youthful dispenser hitched up his peg-top breeches, and gave the customer a bored-looking stare. He then replied in all seriousness: "You'll have to take it without something else this time, Mister -- we haven't got and limes today."

Someone has said that it is at night that the Astronomers discover new worlds. This is because the stars and heavenly elements shine more vividly against the blackness of the night. Just so it is often in the night of failure that men and women discover the light of a new hope. What kind if people do you suppose we would become if we never had a problem, a fear or if we never faced the prospect of failure? We would soon deterioate mentally and physically. Man is created to face challenge and none of us get through life without a certain amount of trouble, defeat and failure. If, however, we face these dark nights of despair with faith in God and ourselves we can be like the astronomer-discover whole new avenews of strength and power and find new strength and better ideas that will boost us on ti success and happiness. Strength in the night of dark despair can be ours if we refuse to become discouraged. Dale Carnegie has said when these times come it is good to face the worst thing that can happen and then do all we can to keep it from happening.

If you are facing your dark night now it is well to realize that there are no more minutes in it than there are in the brightest day. Look up and remember- There are RAYS of hope for YOU- just as long as YOU keep hoping.

This week this column honors Mrs. Lemmie Deason Powell. Mrs. Powell's father was a Baptist minister and she was born in Chilton county and has lived here practically all of her life. She is the mother of five children and her favorite Scripture is Isaiah 40:31- "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint." Certainly there is assurance for all Christians in this verse.

Dr. C. J. Rehling, head toxicologist for the State of Alabama, joined toxicologists and health agencies from all over the United States in a campaign to reduce the deaths from lead salts in moonshine whiskey. Dr. Rehling stated that the death rate all over the United States has reached such proportions that an organized effort is necessary to combat the danger.

Legal whiskey distilled under government supervision does not contain lead salts which are found only in moonshine whiskey. Lead salts which are the main danger, are absorbed into the equipment used to distill the moonshine whiskey. Thelead is obtained from plating and soldered joints used and from lead piper also frequently used in the stills. Agents also have found that many moonshiners are using automobile radiators for condensers.

"If a person is lucky enough to escape death from this killer" Dr. Rehling said. "he or she is still exposed to the danger of paralysis, blindness, severe abdominal ailments and mental disorders. The price you pay," he said is too great.

Posters are being placed all over Alabama warning the people of the dangers of moonshine whiskey and Dr. Dehling hopes this will advert the tragedies that follow the drinking of this poisonous whiskey.

The poison poster campaign by Dr. Rehling is being conducted to point out the dangers of lead poisoning.

THIS WEEK ON CAPITOL HILL

BY CARL GOGGINS

At last a bright star for the Alabama Mental Health program is presently beginning to show signs of really shining this coming year!

How? This writer was shown a bill in Birmingham recently which will, if passed, raise in excess of $5 millions annually for the program. The bill proposes a two percent annum tax on the average ledger balance on all loan companies operating in the state.

The measure will be sponsored and supported by a group of Alabama small loan operators who deal primarily with loans under $100. It was explained that these loan operators should not be confused with the Consumer Finance Assn., whose membership is made up of that what was termed as out-of-state multi-million dollar corporations who came into the state under the Gilchrist small loan law.

A spokesman for the group advocating the bill said he hopes the out-of-state loan companies here will join us for the passage of the bill. Yet, and in almost the same breath, he expressed doubt this would happen.

One legislator, after hearing of this, vowed the issue should prove to be quite a political hassle between out-of-state firms here and the local operators. Of course, only time will tell.

Understand that a prominent member of the State Senate remarked this week to a group that Gov. John Patterson "wants very badly to call a Special Session for reapportionment and congressional redistricting, but is afraid to do so because he has not been able to be completely assured his choice for Speaker of the House Rep, Visgis Ashworth, Centreville, will be elected.

However, and on this same score, another lawmaker put it, unless things have changed the Governor hasn't failed yet to whip the legislators to their knees anytime he has really put on the pressure of his office. Meanwhile Rep. Albert Brewer, Decatur, is certainly being talked strongly by northern legislators for the job.

Consequently, there are good possibilities this could shape up inti an interesting legislative battle.

THINGS We see and hear

by BOB

THE only complaint we have heard thus far about the big parade last Friday afternoon is that they didn't give old Santa his due by putting him in the caboose and making him do more than throw candy to the kiddies. Some seem to think htat Santa should have oeen the "center" of the proceedings and ancased in the finest of surroundings, befitting his position in our society. In other words, Santa is top man! Well, we agree with the above opinion all the way, but there's one thing for sure, and it is probably what promoted the setup as we saw it, just about the best way for Santa to make his gala entrance into Chilton County was by giving away goodies and we hope he didn't feel too slighted by bringing up the rear. He's a good old "Buddy" anyhow.

AND speaking of Santa Claus, he's coming to Clanton a bit early this year. You kiddies will be able to greet Santa and tell him just what you think you aughta get for Christmas starting Saturday, December 17 and continuing every day through Christmas Eve. He will be in Clanton every day so look for him on the streets.

ALL in one night recently, we got our head cut off, got burned up in an airplane crash and taken to the cleaners and got up the next morning feeling fit as a fiddle-de-dee! How come? Well, it seems every one in the family on that particular night had a monstrous dream (except us that is) and daughter Terri says her dream had all of us in an accident, and Mark and Ben were sick, she was hurt, mommy was hurt and daddy had his neck cut off! Ben said an airplane crashed across the street from the house and the pilot got burned up. (No need to guess who the pilot was). And Mommy dreamed that we bought ourselves a big umteen-room mansion (that's how we got took to the cleaners)'. What we don't understand is why? They all love us tremendously in real life . . . we thoubht!

CONGRATULATIONS to Stokes Chevrolet Co., Shelton Motors and the Modern Beauty Shop on winning in this year's Jaycee window decorating contest. Stokes won first place and the other two were runners up. You'll find pictures of their windows elsewhere in this issue. Watch out now for the announcement of the winners in the home decorations contest which will take place between now and Christmas.

LET us set the record straight if you will. You don't get more news, pictures or support from any other publication about Chilton County than you do through your Chilton County News. What some folks classify as news is not news! We, here at the News try to bring you the most complete coverage possible on subjects which we feel are the most important to the most people. We don't print a lot of things that happen, but we sure give the old college try to printing every thing of value to you that we can get our hands on. And we most certainly try to support and give you the full picture on any controversial issue of merit in the community. Those folks who don't read enough to pay for a paper, or who don't care for a paper or who just plain are not interested are the same folks who aren't too much interested in their community and its welfare. We appreciate very much those folks who suppore and read the News. They are adding greatly to the strength of the community simply by supporting the community newspaper, which is, in effect, the voice of the community and the "watchdog" of our liberties and freedoms!

SEE where the Alabama Farm Bureau Convention in Mobile resolved that some action be taken to resume the fire-ant control program which was being carried out several months ago. Seems some farmers have definite proof that the same materials used in the eradicaion of the fire ant were also instrumental in reducing the boll weevil population considerably. A blessing indeed for the fanmers of Chilton County would be the complete anniahilation of the pesky old boll weevil. He cuts deep into thecotton profits of this and many other areas. And while they're about it; the fire ant still runs rampant in the hills of Chilton County. We have observed these little 'devils' up close and those critturs could eat a man alive if they'd a mind to. Sure glad they're not mad at us . . . yet.

Annual World-Wide Bible Reading

The annual world-wide Bible reading from Thanksgiving to Christmas day is now under way, sponsored by the American Bible Society.

The annual reading is an effort started during World War II by a lonely Marine on an island in the South Pacific. The Marine wrote his parents urging them to join him in reading certain passage from the Bible at specific times from T. G. to Christmas.

From this, the American Bible Society launched this same reading Millions of copies of Bible readings in book mark form have been printed and distributed.

Universal Bible Sunday, Dec. 11 was sponsored by this same society.

Some one has given the following analysis of the Bible: It is a Book of leaves, wisdom, Truth, Life, Biography, Divinity, Travels, Voyages, the best covenant ever made, the best will ever expected.

It promises eternal reward to the faithful believers. The croconing povet is the author, "with whom there is no voriableness, neither shadow of turning."

SOME OF THE PROGRESS AGAINST TB

Mrs. R. M. Tucker, Chilton County's 1960 Christmas Seal Chairman urges an all-out offensive campaign against TB in the county.

"Much has been done in the long, hard-fought battle to lick tuberculosis said the Chairman, but there is still much more to do.

"The greatest successes so far have been in the saving of many lives. Earlier diagnosis and modern treatment with wonder drugs have cut TB deaths tremendously.

In spite of this accomplishment, TB is still striking one American every six minutes. So it is plain that not enough is being done to prevent the disease, although much can be done after it has struck.

"Now is the time to mount an all-out offensive against TB. For this new phase of the battle we need much more knowledge about the disease and the germ that causes it. Intensive scientific research is desperately needed to learn the secrets of TB. Health education of the people . . . legislative programs--case finding . . . play major roles in the fight against TB, too. We cannot and must not stop half way in the battle.

In Chilton County, the Health Dept. and Miss Louise Foshee, of the Board of Education, are all working harder than ever this year to help your local Tuberculosis Association Committee find the local cases of TB and then exray treat and follow up each case so that he or she will nit be a carrier of the infectious disease to other members of their family or those in the community.

This is quite a bigjob and your dollars are used in your County to help these people, and as the Chairman of Chilton County TB Assol., I would like to tell you that I have this report from Dr. Cotin, the County Health Dohtor.

This is annual TB work that the local Health Dept., does, cases on record 75, new cases 7, contacts lade 300, Tuberculosis tests 184, Sputum Exam. 419, cases, contacts and exray 390, Home visits 148, people seen and checked at local Health Dept. and given information concerning TB case176.

They also visit sdhools in the county and answer questions in any class and distribute the leaflets sent out by the Tuberculosis Assoc, Your dollars help to make this possible.

Timber Loan Cheaper Than Cutting For Money

Like all other businessmen, timber growers occasionally need money for expansion or improvement. Tree planting, weed tree control, and a score of other forest improvements reqire a certain amount of capital.

It's not a good practice to obtain money for these purposes by cutting young trees since money can be obtained cheaper through a timber loan, says Ike Martin, Auburn Extension forester.

A tree with 200 broad-feet of lumber will ncrease as much as 20 broad-feet in volume each year. And its value will go up from eight to ten percent annually. Loans on growing timber are available at much cheaper interest rates for periods ranging from five to 40 years.

When mature trees are marketed the grower can then pocket additional cash representing the difference between his loan rate and the higher growth rate of his trees.

WHAT YOU DON'T KNOW ABOUT BICYCLES

Floyd H. Mann, Director, Department of Public Safety said today, "I feel that due to the accidents involving bicycle riders and the fact that I have just received a letter from a retired school teacher asking the question 'Which side of the roadway must a bicycle be ridden' that the public is in need of more information concerning the proper handling of bicycles in traffic."

The quotes in this article are taken from the Alabama Code, Title 36, Paragraph 58, state:

Traffic laws apply to persons riding bicycles. Every person riding a bicycle upon a roadway shall be subject to all the duties applicable to hte drivers of other vehicles; except in cases which by their nature can have no application.

It shall be a violation of the law for any bicycle rider to do an act forbidden, or fail to perfirm any act required by this law.

The parent of guardian of any person shall not authorize or knowingly permit child or ward to violate these laws regulating bicycles being ridden in traffic.

Laws Regarding The Riding Of Bicycles:

1. A person riding a bicycle shall not ride other than upon or astride a permanent and regular seat attached thereto.

2. No bicycle shall be used to carry more persons at one time than the number for which it is designed and equipped. (Therefore, most bicycles being ridden by more than one person at the same time is a clear violation of the law.)

3. No person riding upon and bicycle, coaster, roller skates, sled, or toy vehicle shall attach the same or himself to any vehicle upon a roadway.

4, Every person operating a bicycle upon a roadway shall ride as near to the right side of the roadway as respectiable, excercising due care when passing a standing vehicle or one proceeding in the same direction.

5. Persons riding bicycles upon a roadway shall not ride more than two abreast except on paths or parts of roadways set aside for the exclusive use of bicycles.

6. Whenever a usable path for bicycles has been provided adjacent to a roadway, bicycle riders shall use such path and shall not use the roadway.

7. No person operating a bicycle shall carry any package, bundle, or article which will prevent the bicycle rider from keeping at least one hand on the handle bars.

8. Every bicycle, when in use at nighttime, shall be equipped with a headlight on the front which shall emit a white light that is visible from a distant of at least 500 feet to the front, and with a red reflector on the rear which shall be visible from all distances from 50 to 300 feet to the rear when directly in front of lawful upper beams of a motor vehicle.

A lamp emiting a red light visible from a distance of 500 feet to the rear may be used in addition to the red reflector.

9. Every bicycle must be equipped with adequate brakes.

10. Every bicycle rider must obey the traffic laws, rules and regulations, such as hand signals, traffic lights, etc.

Mr. Mann called upon all and guardians of bicycle acquaint themselves with these pertaining to the use of the highways and to the child's safety.

Egg Producers Are Aware Of Demands From Consumer

Consumers not only demand quality when they buy, but they also like products that are attractive. Alabama egg producers are becoming more aware of the demands of the consumer and are giving more consideration to the merchandising of their products.

Many producers in the state are selling their eggs under their own names and are making an effort to see that their product is properly stored, displayed, and priced at the retail outlet, says Allen Brown, Auburn Extension poultry marketing specialist. Brown adds that this concern for quality and merchandising is the best safeguard against competition from other areas for Alabama eggs.

ABUNDANT LIFE

FAITH IN GOD'S GOODNESS

When I use the words "faith in God," I mean that I believe God is, always was, and always will be GOOD.

I have faith in a good God and in God's goodness.

What does "good" mean?

Certainly, it does not mean disease. It does not mean poverty. It does not mean fear. It does not mean hate. If it does not mean any of these things, it must mean their opposites. It must mean everything in the world that makes us feel glad we are alive.

As a son or daughter of God, are you supposed to be weak, ill, afflicted, confused, idle, poor, ineffectual, despised, inferior, helpless, friendless, loveless, unhappy, unsuccessful, faithless, childless and so on? Are these things good? If God our Father is good, does He have these things in mind for His children?

I do not believe it.

I believe in God's goodness, and I see no goodness in any of these things. I did not have faith when I lay in my bed, dying with tuberculosis in both lungs. I did not believe in God's goodness then. But my father believed, and he was prepared to stay up all night, if necessary, praying for me. He did not ask God to make me well. He asked God to restore my faith in God's goodness. That's where I got my understanding of first things first. First faith—then recovery.

The goodness of God becomes apparent through faith. Of course, there seems to be a logical pattern in everything. If we had all the facts, we could reason it all out as we do a mathematical problem.

For instance, we can with the statement that God not a man. Now, what does being a man mean? Is a man omniscient? No. Man is learning every day how little he knows. Is he omnipresent? No. Even in the fastest of jets, man can be only in one place at a time. Is man omnipotent? No. The laws of nature restrict him. Man cannot heal incurable organic diseases.

But God is omnisicent, omnipresent and omnipotent. All the things man cannot do, God can do. Going on with logic, it doesn't appear reasonable that a Being who is all-wise, everywhere present and all-powerful would misuse His greatness. If He did, He would not be God but a devil. Almost everyone believes in the badness of the devil, but the thing desirable and needful is belief in the goodness of God.

My tuberculosis was not of God; it was of the devil. My healing was not of man, but of God. Healing is an act of goodness. It is an act of good power.

My faith is in a good God and in God's goodness.

What is your faith in?

CD Day Stresses Preparedness

Vigilance Against Surprise Attack

Hoegh Explains Warning Network

The surprise which an enemy achieved in the Pearl Harbor disaster cannot be repeated today, says Director Leo A. Hoegh of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization.

His job includes responsibility for operating the National Warning System (NAWAS), with its coast-to-coast network of 376 warning points.

A comparison of measures in effect Dec. 7, then and now, reveals preparedness progress:

THEN . . .

The air attack warning system guarding Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, consisted of five mobile radar sets. Their limit of detection, about 130 miles. Liaison with civil defense—none. Personnel—newly-trained in radar operation. Alert status at moment of attack—in midst of training exercise, officially alerted only to possible sabotage. No air attack alert in effect. Contact with public information media—none. Warning time between moment of attack and first widespread public warning—50 minutes.

NOW . . .

OCDM, Air Force officers at work in NORAD headquarters

In Dec. 1960, the entire North American continent is guarded by thousands of miles of radar nets and continuous air patrols that extend our detection system around the earth. These detection outposts are linked directly to civil defense warning units which are tied to NAWAS warning points by safe communications. An approaching attack would trigger a (nationwide CONELRAD ALERT from North American Air Defense (NORAD) headquarters, activating the civil defense emergency broadcast system comprising nearly 2,000 radio stations.

Personnel — warning officers with years of experience. Alert status—24-hour vigilance against air or sea attack. Contact with mass public information media —instantaneous, through radio-TV national networks and press wire systems. Warning time—90 seconds or less to every State.

Shelter Seen Best Defense For Fallout

Nineteen years ago this Dec. 7, the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor caused all Americans to realize "it can happen here."

Dec. 7 this year will mark the third annual National Civil Defense Day, dedicated to the conviction that vigilance must be maintained night and day because of enemy threats. Against such threats our Nation's vast warning net is designed to be so reliable that the enemy could not achieve a surprise attack, civil defense officials assert.

Most Americans could be saved by taking simple but adequate civil defense measures now.

Director Leo A. Hoegh of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization points out that "fallout shelter protection is the best single non-military defense measure for the greatest number of our people."

He has called home fallout shelters "the lowest-cost family insurance obtainable." These cost from $150 for a "do-it-yourself" basement shelter to $1,500 for a custom-made shelter fixed up to serve as an extra room.

Key to the effective use of such shelters is the National Warning System geared to alert Americans from 376 warning points linked to the North American Air Defense Command.

Sorghum Varieties Make Good Silage

A transformation may be taking place in silage production in the near future.

Several new varieties of sweet sorghum which have distinct advantages oves many current silage-making crops are now on test, says O. N. Andrews, Auburn Extension agronomist. Some of the new varieties make two crops, one from seed and one from stubble, and others make higher yields of grain.

Dr. C. S. Hoveland, Auburn Experiment Station associate agronomist, is in charge of testing. And he reports that some of the new varieties which look promising are Beef Builder, Lindsey 115 F, Yieldmaker, NK 300, and Dekalb FS-1A.

Sweet sorghum can tolerate fairly long periods or dry weather and still make a good yield of silage. And Andrews says that this trait combined with the good features of the new varieties plus the use of labor-saving machinery in putting up and feeding silage will certainly make planting sorghum more appealing to cattlemen and dairymen who are interested in a more profitable source of roughage for livestock.

It would not be wise, however, for farmers to grw these new varieties extensively until more information is available, Andrews adds. He recommends that dairymen continue to plant corn if they can make ten or more tons of silage per acre from the crop.

Corn makes a higher quality silage even though sorghum produces a much higher yield. If the higher grain yield of the new varieties of sorghum adds significantly to the feeding value of silage made from the crop, consequently improving quality, the new varieties may prove to be a real find for livestock farmers.

Metals Mixed With Feed Cause Hardw're Disease In Animals

In feeding, all farm animals, particularly cattle, pick up metal and other hard objects which may lead to a condition veterinarians refer to as hardware disease.

Small objects that are rounded are not so dangerous, but sharp material such as nails and bailing wire can lead to real trouble, says Dr. Worth Lanier, Auburn Extension veterinarian. Sharp articles may penetrate beyond the stamacr wall and injure any of the surraunding organs. Keeping nails, wire, feed bag wires and similar material picked up, and thus avoiding their becoming mixed with feed is the best way to prevent the disease.

A veterinarian should be consulted immediately if hardware disease is suspected, Dr. Lanier says.

Few Calories In Potato Cooked Right

One of the first foods that weight withcers drop from the diet is potatoes because of the common belief that they are high in calories.

Although potatoes fried in fat or served with gravy are high on the chart, a medium-size potat otsi th chart, a medium-size potato that is boiled, pressure-cooked, or baked contains only about 100 calories, says Fariss Prickett, Auburn Extension nutritionist. Tihs is approximately the same number found in a large apple, orange, or granefruit half. And potatoes give a high return in food value for money spent. One medium-size potato contains vitamins B and C and worthwhile amounts of such minerals as iron, phosphorous, and patassium.

The vegetable continues in generous supply in the Southeast, the specialist says. The fall crop for the nation is estimatedat nearly 171 million hundredweight which is four percent above last year's crop and 10 percent above average.

If raincoat or golashes are leaking simply turn them inside out and apply adhesive tape to seal the hole.

New Training Camp Dedicated By Marines

Camp Burgwyn, Alabama. Under a bright fall sky, the 39th Rifle Company, U. S. Marine Corps Reserve, officially dedicated its new training camp Sunday morning at 1 :00. Judge Walter B. Jones made the dedication address at Camp Burgwyn and officially raised the "Colors" over the new Camp.

Attending the dedication were the Honorable James Rice, Probate Judge for Autauga County and the Honorable C. G. Gray, Mayor of Prattville, and the officers and men of the 38th Rifle Company.

Following the invocation by Chaplain R. G. Massengala, U. S. Naval Reserve, Judge Jones stepped forward and pulled the new 50 star United State flag to the top of the mast, to the strains of the "National Anthem." Just in front of Judge Jones a Marine Honor Guard in battle dress stood at rigid attention and 'present arms" during the flag raising.

In his remarks, Judge Jones told the audience something of the history of the Burgwyn family and of Colonel Henry Kng Burgwyn, CSA for whom the Marines new camp is named.

As one of the colonels of the 26th North Carolina Regiment, Colonel Burgwyn had served with distinction at Malvern Hill and four other engagement's before his death leading a charge against the "Iron Brigade" at McPherson's Woods in the first day of the Battle of Gettysburg.

The regimental colors had been shot down ten times when the "Boy Colonel" seized them and carried them forward at the head of his regiment. A few minutes later he was felled by a rifle ball and died two hours later. Although the 800 man regiment sustained 708 casualties in the battle, they won the hill even as their colonel lay dying. Colonel Burgwyn was buried on the battle field; but was later re-interred at the Soldier's Cemetery in Raleigh, N. C. A interesting coincidence is that the Burgwyn family motto and the motto of the United State Marine Corps is "Semper Fields," meaning "Always Faithful."

Camp Burgwyn, located in Autauga County, some six miles north of Prattville, was donated for the Marine Corps Reserve training by Judge Jones earlier this year. The Montgomery Marine Reserve unit has completed much of the work of turning the woody area into a model training camp; and has already held two training excercises in the new camp.

In commenting to the unit's commanding officer, Captain William Nicrosi, on Camp Burgwyn, Mayor Gray of Prattville said, "We're very happy you decided to come to Autauga County." Judge James Rice added, "I can't think of anyone it makes me feel safer to have in our midst than the Marines."

Get Land Ready For Coastal Bermuda

Coastal bermuda rate high on Alabama farms as one of the most versatile crops. And many farmers who want a good spring and summer grazing crop are preparing land now to plant coastal bermuda in February.

According to O. N. Andrews, Auburn Eptension agronomist, a properly managed field of coastal bermuda will furnish grazing for one or more cows per acre from May to November. Or the same field will yield from four to six tons of hay per acre.

"On most upland soils," Andrews adds, "bermuda overseeded with reseeding crimson is about the best combination possible for spring and summer grazing."

1961 Cotton Alloments Will Be Changed From Previous Years

In response to questions raised by some growers about 1961 upland cotton allotments, H. L. Johnston, Chilton Agricultural Stabliziation an Conservation Office, today explained the difference between the 1961 program and the one in effect for the past two cotton crops.

He pointed out that the 1961 national allotment of 18.5 million acres compares with the regular 1960 allotment of 16.3 million acres. This 1960 figure was increased to 17.5 million acres under Choice (B) elections. In 1961, there will be only one upland cotton allotment, whereas for tre past two crops growers sad a choice between the regular farm allotment and the 40-percent-larger (B) allotment. All eligible growers in 1961 may receive the full available price support on their cotton, whereas in 1960 the eligible (B) growers received support but a larger acreage allotment.

Because of the provisions of the law the effect of the increased national allotment on the size of the State, county, and farm allotments will vary widely. Some farms may receive no increase or possibly a reduction from the available allotment acreage for 1960 primarily because of the operation of the minium allotment provisions or participation in the Choice (B) program n 1960.

Growers on 1960 Choice (B) farms and on farms with allotment of 10 acres or less should keep these facts in mind when they receive their notices of 1961 upland allotments.

Mr. Johnston reminded formers that the allotments will remain in effect for 1961-crop cotton whether or not growers approve 1961 marketing quotas in the national referendum to be held December 13. Allotments are used as a means of determining eligibility for the available price support.

A two-third favorable vote in the referendum would mean quotas fo. the 1961 cotton crop, marketing quota penalties on any "excess" cotton, and price support at not less than 70 percent of parity. Opposition to the quotas by more than a third of the voters would m quotas or penalties for 196 support at 50 percent of pa growers who complied with acreage allotments.

Alabama Day To Be Celebrated At Chilton County High School Dec. 14

Alabama Day will be celebrated at the Chilton County High School in Clanton on December 14, 1960 at 9:30 a.m. The program is sponsored by The Jefferson Manly Falkner Chapter of UDC. It is under the direction of Mrs. Robert L. Bowers, Chapter Historian. who is one of the civics and history teachers at the high school.

Alabama became a state on December 14, 1819. Prior to this Alabama was part of the Territory of Mississippi, becoming a territorial government with its own officials in 1817 and functioning under this rule until its admission into the union. In 1919 Alabama celebrated its first Centennial as a state. For this celebration, Judge Walter B. Jones of Mongomery wrote the Alabamians Creed which will be used in the program at the county high school on December 14.

The public is cordially invited to attend this program in observance of one of the important historical dates for the state of Alabama.

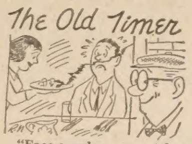
Despite Higher Rainfall State Needs Irrigation

The average annual rainfall in Alabama is 50 inches, one of the highest averages in the country. And 30 inches of rain usually falls from March through September, the main growing season, when it is most needed.

Even with this abundant moisture, there is still a need for supplemental irrigation, says Lawrence Ennis, Auburn Extension soil engineer, because too little moisture gets into the ground during the March-September period. Although the 30-inch rainfall during the growing season is two inches more than the amount required to produce the best crops and pastures, all but 15 inches of this water runs off the land leaving plants 13 inches short of the amount of moisture needed for best results.

"When we add the March-September shortage to the lack of rainfall during the fall months, our moisture situation becomes typical of that in semi-arid regions," says Ennis. "For this reason many Alabama farmers are becoming intensely interested in supplemental irrigation."



"Face powder may catch a man, but it takes baking powder to hold him."

NOTICE To Property Owners

IT is a duty of the Board of Equalization to assess any and all property that they might find that has not been assessed.

Our records were recently audited and the auditors repoted that we wee not in full compliance with the law by not adding a ten per cent penalty as required by Section 105, Title 51, Code of Alabama, on all property it became our duty to assess.

May we ask that you please check your assessment to be sure all improvements are properly assessed as we will be required to comply with the auditors recommendations of adding an additional ten percent to all property we have to assess as delinquent assessments.

Your cooperation will be appreciated as we don't like the thought of having to add penalties. The nonmal assessment period is from October 1st to December 31st.

MAIL EARLY AT CHRISTMAS

With the Christmas mail load hitting its peak within the next few days, Postmaster R. R. Sutley expressed his appreciation today for your cooperation on his annual Mail Early For Christmas, campaign.

While it's too late to talk about early mailng of Christmas gifts and cards, the Postmaster said, you can avoid disappointing your friends and loved ones on Christmas Day by using Air Mail. There's still time for local deliveries, but be sure to send all Christmas cards by First Class mail, and do include your address on all Christmas card envelopes and package labels.

Postal employees are digging in for the final drive to get everything delivered by Christmas Eve. The Post Office will remain open from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., including Saturday.

Now that the end of the big rush is in sight, the Postmaster said, I want to express my thanks for the fine cooperation from our patrons. The 1960 Mail Early For Christmas campaign will be a rousing success if you'll just keep up the good work. On Christmas Eve this year, I'd like to see every mail bag empty and every Post Office employee relaxing at home.

CHRIST IN CHRISTMAS

By REV. M. G. FIELDS

Other special events in December along with Christmas and New Year are the servies at the Churches each Lord's day--Sunday Shool, Training Union, Preahing services Mid-week prayer meeting, weekly church visitation, personal soul-winning, and being a living witness of the name of Christ, Christmas should put Christ into their Christmas preperation and observance of the entire season. Observe Christmas as a Holy Day instead of a holiday

A pastor who was inquisitive about the Sunday school attendance at other churches said The Sunday school attendance has decreased at at my church unusally. It is hard to conceive that the saved would allow a holiday season or anything else, except providence, hinder them being faithful to Christ through the local church program. In his sermon titled No Vacancy, Text Luke 2:9, Dr. Charles Wellborn said Christmas, Peace on Eearth, Good Will To Men. And a nation that has commercialized Christmas and made it a pagan holiday will dance on the graves of virtue and purity and pour an estimated 100,000 gallons of liquor down its collective throats as we celebrate the yuletide season. Church attendance every Lord's day and especially at Christmas should increase and our gifts to our Lord should mount up for the spread of the Gospel to every creature. When Jesus was born there was no big dinners, no drinking parties, no fireworks, no exchanging of gifts, no white Christmas. There was no room for them in the end. What will ye do for Jesus, our Lord? Will your pastor see you Sunday as he preaches the Gospel from the pulpit?

PARK BY POST? PUT PENNY IN 'PUMP', PLEASE

YOU don't have to 'pay the Piper' so to speak, but you do have to pay for the privilege of parking on the busy streets of Clanton during this crowded Holiday traffic.

Heres what Chief of Police V. W. Foshee has to say about it:

> "On Wednesday afternoons when stores are open for business, parking meters are to be 'paid' for parking. Please don't forge to pay same -- we don't want to give you a parking ticket."

So, get this now Santa: if you park that 'sleigh' outside the store and don't 'prime the pump' don't say we didn't warn you if you come up with a dollars worth of ticket!

The Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. Z. Atchison were Mr. and Mrs. Ira Atchison, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Thacker and Peggy, Rev. Davis and family, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Crane and Lyndall, and Mr. and Mrs. Pratt Crumpton.

Sunday during the morning service, we was led by the church librarian, Mrs. E. H. Crane in an official opening and dedication of our church library. She mentioned our sincere thanks to our Heavenly Father for this another blessing to our church. We were reminded of our former pastor's Rev. G. G. Williams most generous gift of the book cabinet and many of the books. The church is grateful for this lasting gift from Bro. Williams and to all the book donors. Those having part in the service were Mr. M. Z. Atchison, Mrs. Buna Ward, then the pastor Rev. Davis brought to the church library and all the congregation reading responsively the vows of Dedication. We viewed the library with a golden flower arrangement and a green ribbon around the book cabinet. We were told the golden flowers could remind us of the golden opportunities the church library could be to our church and the green ribbon could suggest to us Christians growth as we dedicate the church library, to the Glory of God. May it ever be a means that we grow in grace and knawledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. The librarian then cut the ribbon. Mr. Pratt Crumpton had the dedicatory prayer.

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Ray and Mrs. Georgia Crumpton visited Mrs. Rays parents Mr. and Mrs. Sam .F Brasher of Columbiana Sunday evening.

How's Your Social Security I.Q.?

The 1960 amendments to the Social Security Law make it possible for the wife or husband of an old-age or disability insurance beneficiary to qualify for social security payments if married to the worker for at least one year. The stepchild of a reatired or disabled worker can also get benefits of the marriage of his mother or father to the worker took place at least one year before his application benefits is filed.

In explaining the new law today, Cecil L. Simpson, Manager of the Birmingham District Social Security Office, pointed out that until now the wife, husband or stepchild of a worker had to wait three years after the marriage to become eligible for benefits. "Wives, husbands and stepchild who believe themselves qualified for payments under the new law should check their status with the social security office," Simpson says.

Everything From Cranberries To Peanuts

Shoppers will have an abundant supply of farm-produced products available for the holiday season.

Seven food items which will be especially plentiful all month are cranberries, broiler-fryers, pork, onions, dates, peanuts and peanut products, and vegetable fats and oils, says Dorothy Overbey, Auburn Extension specialist in consumer education.

Miss Overbey advises consumers to watch for special sales on these plentiful items. The food industry usually cooperates with producers in attempts to move the abundance in normal trade channels, she says.

You may avoid difficult stains if they are removed before they are set by washing.

WE do not propose that any people, race or creed, be dictated to or imposed upon. That includes the white race and this Bro. King who claims that "the forces of Segregation are crumbling" is whistling in the dark. As a Segregationist we do not place ourselves in the same category as the Ku Kluxers, but we believe that basically Segregation is morally right -- for all peoples. Because he has the powers of the Supreme Court behind him antagonist King feels he has a battle almost won. The truth is Mr. King, when you don't have the people behind you, you'd better not plan too far ahead. No battle has ever been permanently won unless the people involved wanted it badly enough. Mr. King: We in the south DO NOT want Integration!

AND while we're on the subject, Mr. King seems to be at home most anywhere, so may we suggest that he retire to a climate more suitable to his peculiar talents of inciting riots and creating unrest among his own people!

A lady downtown the other day asked Santa where he got his supply of candy sticks that he has been giving out so profusely and he replied: "At the North Pole, lady!" What'd you expect, ma'm?

A Costly Product -- We Hope A Worthy One--

SOME twenty-odd years ago the News established a policy of sending complimentary copies of the paper each week to members of the clergy in the County. It was done at the time because preachers were about as underpaid as anyone in the community.

Since that time, however, and we think you will agree, members of the clergy in Chilton County have come a long ways up the economic ladder and are now in an economic class with the rest of us -- be that good or bad.

Because of this change in the status of the preacher we have discontinued this complimentary policy. Also, production costs and the fact that we can send only a limited number of complimentary copies each week, most of which go to our advertisers, are factors influencing our decision.

There is no group of people that we think more highly of than those in the ministry and we do our best to show this regard each week by cooperating with them in every detail. There is never a week goes by that your Chilton County News does not publish items of interest and information concerning our churches, their organizations and their pastors.

We intend to continue this public service in cooperation with the ministers and since we have had several inquiries about the stoppage of some papers in the past few weeks, we would appreciate very much their understanding and support. It is definitely to our advantage, and we think to theirs as well, to have the ministers know what we are doing and saying and for us to convey some of their ideas on to you, our readers.

Our product, which is your product, is an expensive one to produce and the nominal charge we make per year is, we hope, within the reach of most, if not all, of our fine minister friends.

Thanks for your concern and support, past, present and most important, future!

We've Noticed It, Too--

DURING these school days, from 7:30 a.m. to 8:05 or so the traffic congestion on the Overhead Bridge on 4th Avenue is rough -- and that's putting it mildly.

Utilizing the facilities we already have, with practically no expense to the city, we propose three-lane traffic over the bridge thus eliminating the confusion and the law-breaking - if you please!

If parking on the south side of the block at the bridge from Seventh to Eighth Street were prohibited there would be ample room for two lanes of traffic coming into town. One lane going out would be sufficient. The right lane, could naturally be for those turning south on Highway 31 and the center or left lane would be for straight through traffic or turning north on the Highway.

Some folks, careless and well-meaning alike are now trying to "make" a three lane out of two and it creates quite a bit of confusion and the possibilities of collision are enhanced greatly.

We don't think this effort would put anybody out and would, in fact, greatly aid the safety of our streets. It would also speed up folks who are running late for school, including the school buses between the Clanton Elementary and Chilton County High Schools. There is no clear cut "right" lane at present and parking is allowed. The idea could save somebody some damages resulting from ther indecision or confusion!

How about it City Fathers?

Unchain The Sleeping Giant--

THERE is a wide swathe across the center of the State of Alabama where people were, but are no longer. We refer to the 1960 census as compared with that of 10 years ago. South Alabama has much the same problem, possibly caused by a different set of circumstances.

From the Mississippi Line to the Georgia Line there is a vacant spot with regards to gain in population. Including the countis of Sumter, Greene, Hale, Perry (or Bibb), Chilton, Coosa, Tallapoosa and Chambers you can walk a straight line clear across the State of Alabama in counties that lost population in those 10 years mentioned.

Why?

We can only speak for our own County of Chilton, and a big reason for our reduction in population over the past 10 years (some 1,229 individuals) has been due to the lack of industry in our fair County.

And it is industry we lack, which would employ bulk numbers of unskilled laborers. The industry we have acquired in that period, although we appreciate it very much, has been that of highly technical skills and requires months and months of training. Also, the industry we have attracted has not been large enough to warrant a good increase in the working population of the County.

It is not completely impossible for Chilton County to grow, population wise and industry wise and if we are ever to grow in population, it would seem we must have industry to employ these people we seek to welcome into our borders.

Bordering counties of Shelby to the north and Autauga and Dallas to the south have increased in population during the past 10 years. They are becoming more and more industrialized.

The Chilton County Chamber of Commerce has been making conservative surveys for new industry for some time. We have been in agreement with most of their conclusions. It is now time for us to abandon the shackles of rstrained efforts along these lines and go out -- whole hog -- to attract lucrative industry.

We are not going to get any industry that does not carry with it some degree of seasonal production. Nearly every industry is seasonal in one respect or another. We must now "take a chance", or more precisely, a "calculated risk" and seek big industry. Chilton County has within its boundaries literally every natural resource required by most industrial concerns. Plenty of land (if the landowners will part with the precious stuff), an ample water supply, sewage disposal and people -- working out of the County.

The only area which we are really weak in is housing and that will not get much better until the demand for same is seen somewhere out yonder in the future.

No one is going to sink a wealth of time and money into such a venture as real estate or housing development until they are reasonably certain of a demand for it.

Chilton County has grown enormously, business wise, over the past 10 years. Very few businesses in Chilton have not grown in some respect during this period. We can thank our farmers for this increase in prosperity. They are the consumer in this area, with the possible exception of the many who must seek jobs in the larger towns surrounding this County, but who choose to live here. The farmer is our lifeline, but we cannot depend forever on the farmer. Our area is reaching the saturation point in business, unless we attract 'buying' population from somewhere, somehow. We will not grow the next 10 years as we have in the past 10 unless we see to it that sizeable payrolls, supplied by large industries and manned by local forces are brought into our economic picture.

We have the necessary ingredients; all we need now is the proper leadership and the desire to grow. With the proper leadership, through the Chamber of Commerce, we will do this and by 1970 our census will be decidedly different from what it was this year of 1960; and so will our economic status.

50 Years of HUMOR

Ira Watson, 92 year old merchant, still in harness and with no thought of retiring as yet, he tells me. has many stores in the South. He had just heard a joke told by an after-dinner speaker and he stopped to recite it, also to tell me that the thing had actually happened to him in a store of his out in Dallas, Texas, some years ago.

"I had bought a tremendous stock of blankets at a low price and had them on special sale at five dollars apiece," he said. "Working for me as a clerk was a small-town part-time minister, and he had proved to be a mighty good salesman. However, there came into the store a woman who insisted on looking at every blanket in stock and after much haggling she told my clerk that she was afraid to pay only five dollars for a blanket for fear it wouldn't have the value in it. That was his cue to get busy, so he hopped to some boxes from which the blankets on sale had not been removed. 'Well, lady,' he told her, 'if you want a real blanket marked $7.50 - here it is!' She bought two, and later when I was checking up, I saw that he had sold ten dollars worth of blankets for fifteen dollars. Knowing him to be a preacher, I asked him how he could square such a charge with his conscience.

'I had the Bible to guide me,' he explained, and when I expressed astonishment at such an answer he immediately gave me these quotes from the Good Book: 'She was a stranger - and I took her in!'

WHEN they talk of 'gerrymandering' and doing away with our Sixth Congressional District is prompts us to remind those powers that be of the fine job that our Representatives Armistead Selden has done in Congress in the four terms he has served in that capacity. There may not be any younger Rep. from the State of Alabama, but neither is there a more 'alert to the needs of the people' fellow than is Mr. Selden. If worse comes to worse and our Representative's position is jeapordized we intend to make a loud noise in the support of this man who has done such a fine job of representing the people of the Sixth District. If they do any reshuffling we suggest that they put it to a vote in Congress and see who comes out on the short end of the stick. We feel certain it won't be our Mr. Selden. Look at the record gentlemen'.!

A SURE cure for the Chicken Pox was related to a member o the clan the other day. It seems that the best way to prevent Chicken Pox is to take the kid who is due the Pox and then take a chicken with a lot of feathers and every morning you rub the said chicken all over the said young'un for three consecutive mornings. You know what you get? A frightful young-'un and a naked chicken! Then you ring the chicken's neck, have it for dinner and treat the child as you would any other who had the Chicken Pox. Best thing to do is stay away from 'em!

SOMEBODY at the North Pole gave us a wrong stear the other day and in this column we reported that Santa Claus would arrive in Clanton on the 17th and be in town the following week until Christmas. Well, he still will, but he arrived early and was here this past Saturday, too. Guess with all this modern travel and speed, even old Santa doesn't mess around! How do you 'hop up' a reindeer, huh Santa?

MR. J. M. Chadwell says that the religious controversy of a week ago, he found diverting, but 'who', says he, 'can unscrew the inscrutible?' 'Are the Russians getting there because they waste no time in prayer?' 'Unquestionably they are making great progress in a material' sense; but what the world needs about now, is more harmony'.' We agree Mr. 'C', that's just what we need!

TODAY the 15th of December four Chilton County lads will receive much deserved degrees from Auburn University. They are William Clayton Culver of Mt. Creek and Robert Lynn Langston of Jemison who will both receive their degrees B. S. in Forestry. Hoyt Ellis Burgess of Clanton will receive the degree of Bachelor of Science in Agricultural Education and Charles Relious Cobb of Jemison, the degree of Bachelor of Civil Engineering. Congratulations and our best wishes go to these fine young men of Chilton County. We know their families are proud of them for their achievements.

WE owe James L. Bennett, Jr. an apology for 'messing up' his ad last week on Chain Saws. What really happened was that we didn't know a chain saw from a toothbrush and we thought it was right. When he asked us if it made sense to us, we had to tell him that it did not, but then 50 percent of the advertisements we run on such things doesn't make sense sometimes. We know a little something about a printing press (a debatable boast) but when it comes to sawing logs our knowledge is limited to the nighttime variety. Sorry James! We won't make the same mistake again.

(Mainly because he's not going to run the ad again. . . not tha' particular ad anyway!)

RAYS OF HOPE

Virginia H. Stover

If I could only see the road you came, With all the jagged rocks and crooked ways, I might more kindly think of your missteps, And only praise.

If I could know the heartaches you have felt, The longings for the things that never came; Iwould not misconstrue your erring then, Nor even blame.

The very fact that it is impossible for any of us to know the heart, the mind and the temptations of others is cause enough to keep us from judging. The Author of the poem above is unknown but how true are the words! So often we boast of what we would do if we were in another person's place but if we were forced to walk the same path he has trod, to bear the same heartache he has born we might not even do as well. This world is never made better by our criticism but it is possible to boost others to do better by a little bit of praise. We can help each other of we remember that good comes not in never failing but in determining to get up and try again every time we fall. Are you depressed today? If so remember-There are RAYS of HOPE for you-just as long as YOU keep HOPING.

This week we honor Mrs. Jimmie J. Jones, Bell Lane Rd. She was born Jan. 6, 1896. Mrs. Jones has lived in Clanton all her life. She has 8 children and 17 grandchildren living. She has chosen as her favorite Schipture verse Psa. 23 the first verse-The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want. She says this verse helps her in hours of trial and stress. She finds it to be a source of great comfort.

Mrs. Stover's book Angels in the Mountains has been reduced to $2 if ordered directly from her instead of through the book store. This book is an ideal Christmas gift and one that will bring lasting good to the reader. Her address is Clanton Route 2.

YOUR HEALTH

CHRONIC GLAUCOMA

One out of every 50 Americans over 40 years of age has glaucoma. This is three times as many as have diabetes, five times as many as have cancer and twenty times as many as those who have tuberculosis.

Chronic glaucoma is an eye condition in which increased pressure or tension within the eye gradually destroys sight. Normally the eye is filled with a nourishing fluid constantly being formed in the eye and drained off into the blood stream. This fluid has nothing to do with tears. When the drainage canals do not function properly, this fluid cannot get out; and as more fluid is formed, a pressure builds up inside the eyeball.

Unlike acute glaucoma which is painful and prompts a visit to the doctor, chronic glaucoma does not always present early symptoms; and people may go for several years without being aware of it. While there is no cure for glaucoma, it can be controlled and the sight preserved. Glaucoma may be suspected when there are early morning headaches. Other possible early symptoms include smoky or blurry vision, pain around the eyes, seeing rainbows around lights at night. Glaucoma is more than twice as common in people who have a family history of this condition.

People over forty should have a medical eye examination at least once every two years. Testing is done with a tonometer, an instrument for measuring pressure. If glaucoma is diagnosed early, eye drops may be the only treatment needed. Advance glaucoma can be relieved by surgery. Glaucoma neglected leads to blindness; glaucoma when treated early can be arrested and sight saved.

Thinking along the line of Congressional redistricting from some state legislators conversed with on this subject has indicated that the only way to handle the problem is to eliminate that district which has had the largest population decline during the last decade.

Thus it appears now that most all strong legislative eyes will be focused on the state's fifth and seventh congressional districts during the next session. And a second look will probably be taken at the sixth district, which would be following an apparent oid custom of possiby gerrymandering the youngest officeholder, Armistead Selden.

However, the strongest redistricting talk so far has been the "possibility of combining or butchering the sixth and|or seventh, Rep. Carl Elliott's district." Discussion has it this may be so because these two districts are the least populated in the state.

Meanwhile, one very strong politician, with the predominance of his strength in north Alabama, flatly declared recently 'all members of the legislature who are interested in anv individual candidate for Governor in 1962 must bear in mind if they gerymander Elliott out of Congress that I (and this man has been termed by many persons as the 'committee of many') will devote my entire time to the support of Elliott for governor. Because he is an outstanding Democrat, capable, experienced and one of the South's finest orators."

Although this talk seems to be a horse of another 'redistricting color,' there are many politicos across the state who will be quick to tell you Elliott could run an 'extremely fine race'.

And speaking of running, understand that Tallapoosa County Agent Fletcher Farrington and Houston County's J. L. Adams have about decided to toss their hat's into the ring for the Agriculture Commissioner's job.

A south Alabama representatives said this week it was his opinion the 'legislature will be in the mood to reapportion the state in May.' He indicated a goodly number of the legislators will 'go for Florence

FROM MY FRONT PORCH

'I Watch the World Go By'

by CARL HELM

I met this young lady in her middle teens: so eager then for life and for achievement in all the seven arts.

Inspiring music to be composed, masterworks to be painted and sculpted, great books to be written — she had such ambitious dreams and some talent, too. The world and fame beckoned.

I met her again the other day, five years later. She had married the boy she loved; they had a beautiful year-old daughter and a second baby was on the way. Remembering how she had unfolded her dreams to me, she seemed to think that I was disappointed to see her "tied down to cribs."

I wasn't, of course. Just a bit surprised at first, perhaps. But, then, understanding, as I reflected on the ways of young love, and of our Creator. He Who endows us all with our talents — some of us to perfect inspiring works of art — gives to a mother the superlative achievement of bringing into life His masterpiece, a baby . . . the supreme creation.

I wished I could tell the young mother this. But I believe she knows it!

Interesting Notes From Telephone Almanac

Message-toting homing pigeons released from incoming steamships rivals during the early part of the helped newspapers "scoop" their 19th century. This variation of an ancient method of communication, dreamed up by an enterprising Boston reporter, gave a paper several hours advantage over its competition in the days when newspaper rivalry was frantic and reporters gathered most of their European news by interviewing ship passengers as they stepped ashore.

This ingenious method of communication is one of several dsecribed in the new 1961 Telephone Almanac. The widely-distributed annual publication tells of other firsts in speeding words and speech over long distances--ancient Persian runners, the Overland Express, messages carried by gas-filled balloons, the underseas telegraph cable in 1866 and today's satellite communication programs and proposals.

Althrough the 1961 Almanac has undergone a face-lifting, its contents follow the conventional pattern. It gives the calendar, lists holidays, and shows historical happenings for each day along with the astronomical doings of the sun and moon. And, since it is a telephone almanac, it describes recent happenings in our business.

A four-color insert bound into the booklet promotes three new services: the Home Interphone, the Bell Chime and the popular new Princess phone.

The 1961 Telephone Almanac is the 39th published since the booklet made its first appearance in 1922. One year. 1945, was skipped because of wartime paper shortages.

Automated Homes For Laying Hens

Modern poultry buildings and equipment, fabricated from galvanized steel sheets, now make it possible for one poultryman to handle 10,000 laying hens or as many as 50,000 broilers.

The Committee on Galvanized Steel Sheet Research of American Iron and Steel Institute said years of intense research, sound agricultural engineering and newer automated poultry buildings provide construction ease, storm and fire resistance and low overall and maintenance cost.

The Committee pointed out that in the colder climates one of the most effective aids to efficient, present-day poultry culture is in warming the air for the poultry house by solar heat radiation with a strong, corrosion resistant galvanized steel roof.

The cold air is drawn into the building under the galvaned roof, where it is warmed, and is thus "more efficient in removing moisture from the house and reducing cold drafts."

It said that many houses of this design are operating satisfactorily with 1 to 1¼ square feet per layer, thereby reducing the cost per hen.

"The economy and versatility of galvanized steel sheets, in the construction of buildings and equipment," the Committee said, "play a major part in achieving these profit-making efficiencies."

Southern Sweet Potato Pudding

NP

The spicy aroma of sweet potato pies and puddings wafting from Southern kitchens always means good eating is in store. Sweet potato pudding has long been a Southern favorite and is an unforgettably delicious dish. The home economists of the Carnation Company recommend this popular pudding for autumn menus with a recipe which features the use of evaporated milk. The rich creaminess of evaporated milk creates a smoothness in texture so desirable in this kind of dessert, and adds valuable nutrients as well, since evaporated milk is a concentrated form of milk. Serve this Sweet Potato Pudding perfected in the home service department of the Carnation Company.

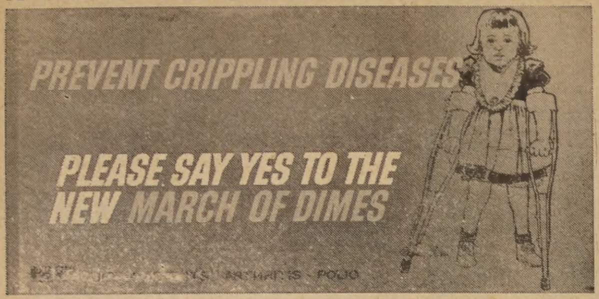
1961 Poster Child for March of Dimes Is Victim of Two Grave Birth Defects



PREVENT CRIPPLING DISEASES
PLEASE SAY YES TO THE NEW MARCH OF DIMES
ARTHRITIS - POLIO

This likeness of Linda Breese appears on millions of posters and coin collectors

Linda Gail Breese, a pictorial and high-spirited young lady of four, who lives in Columbus, Ohio, was named this week as the 1961 New March of Dimes National Poster Child.

Selection of the vivacious child, a victim of the grave birth defects of an open spine and excess fluid on the brain, was announced by Basil O'Connor, president of The National Foundation, parent body of the New March of Dimes. Study and patient aid in birth defects and arthritis, together with continued work in polio, embody the expanded program of the health organization.

In January, during which the New March of Dimes will be held throughout the nation, Linda will probably feel she is facing mirrors everywhere she travels. That's because millions of posters will bear her likeness which, in drawings and photographs, will also be published in thousands of newspapers and magazines. The blonde and blue-eyed child will also appear on network television.

Linda's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Dean E. Breese. Her father is an industrial engineer. Her mother, Dorothy Lohr Breese, in addition to Linda has another daughter, Susan, 14, and two sons, Ronnie, 12, and Terry, six. Tragically, since there is handicapped Linda among the Breese children, Ronnie is a victim of cerebral palsy but his general physical condition is described as good.

Mrs. Breese has been a Mothers' Marcher for the annual March of Dimes.

"My husband and I are deeply grateful that at last something constructive is being done about birth defects," she says. "We pray that The National Foundation which, through public contributions to the March of Dimes, financed the development of the Salk polio vaccine, will in time also solve the puzzle of birth defects, which are the largest unmet childhood medical problem in our country today."

Emphasizing the enormity of the problem, Mrs. Breese cited statistics showing that 250,000 infants in the United States are born annually with significant birth defects. Also, because of these congenital malformations, 34,000 babies a year in the nation are stillborn or die in the first four weeks of life.

Linda underwent surgery to close her spine when she was less than a day old. The operation was performed at Children's Hospital, Columbus, where The National Foundation with March of Dimes funds established the nation's first Birth Defects Study Center a few months ago. Nine months later, she again had surgery for excess fluid on the brain, and the little girl today wears a "shunt" tube to drain off this liquid. Linda also uses crutches but has been able to discard her leg braces.

Recently, while helping her mother wash dishes, she took three steps without her crutches—a memorable and hopeful event.

Lisa Can Ride Her 'Goldilocks' Again Because of Help From March of Dimes

A magnificent fairyland of a special kind, in which leg aches are still known but not felt so often as before, has just opened for four-year-old Lisa Sliker, of Leicester, N. Y.

"My doctors," the blue-eyed and auburn-haired Lisa tells everyone today, "have made my leg almost all well again. Now I can sit on my horsie, Goldilocks, and I can walk to the barn on my crutches and see my kittens and the pigs."

The new lease on life accorded little Lisa is due in great measure to the treatment she continues to receive each month at the arthritis clinical study center at University of Rochester-Strong Memorial Hospital, established with public contributions to the March of Dimes. Stricken three years ago with baffling rheumatoid arthritis in her right leg, the attractive child wore a cast for many months but now no longer wears it at night—although she goes to sleep hugging "my old leg" like a doll.

Lisa is one of 30,000 youngsters in the United States who are afflicted by rheumatoid arthritis which interferes with bone growth and may cause deformity. In addition to the study center visited by Lisa at Rochester, March of Dimes funds have made possible the opening of additional arthritis study centers in New York City, Dallas and San Francisco.

Mrs. Sliker recounts:

"My husband and I were scared witless when Lisa's stumbling was diagnosed as provoked by rheumatoid arthritis, which somehow sounded like something that might strike your great-grandfather. But not strike down the beautiful, merry and innocent little baby with whom God had blessed us.

Lisa Sliker, four, rheumatoid arthritis victim, is able to feed her Daddy's pigs on farm at Leicester, N. Y., although she still wears cast on her right leg.

"It was a terrifying experience for us to watch Lisa lying motionless in her crib, pain in her eyes and face but holding back the tears. Her right knee was swollen to unbelievable size. But now that she is much better and some day may walk again unassisted by crutches, we pray that, like Lisa, others may be helped by the March of Dimes."

Mrs. Sliker is a volunteer worker in her county during the March of Dimes, collecting funds for The National Foundation's expanded program which includes significant birth defects together with arthritis and continued work in polio.

"My farmer husband helps me call on neighbors during January," Mrs. Sliker adds. "The snows are mountainous at that time of year in our neck of the woods, but we both feel that helping the March of Dimes is the least we can do in return for the help given our Lisa."

Fire Fighter

.. Newest weapon in the constant and costly battle to surpress fires in the forests of British Columbia, from which comes much of the newsprint supply for West Coast newspapers, is this huge Martin Mars transport of World War II fame. Newsprint Information Committee whose member company in that area has joined six other forest products concerns in testing the 200-foot-wingspread plane, reports it is equipped to scoop up 6,000 gallons of water while taxiing across a lake and dumping the load minutes later in this saturation drizzle on the hottest part of a forest fire. From height of 200 feet, the load drenches an area 450 feet by 150 feet — larger than a football field.

CHRIST MAKES THE JOB EASY

One evening a businessman came home with his brief case crammed full of papers that had to be processed before morning. He hurriedly ate dinner, "laid down the law" to his family that he was not to be disturbed and diligently began to work on the papers.

After 15 minutes, his small son came in. "Daddy," he said, "play with me."

"Don't bother me, Jimmy," the father said. "I must get this work done."

The boy left the room but in another few minutes he was back again.

"Daddy," he said, "please take time to play with me."

The father turned away from his paper work. "Jimmy, I'll tell you what I'll do," he said as he tore a large map of the world out of a magazine. "I am going to tear this map in small pieces. If you can put the pieces back together, I will give you a quarter."

The father said to himself: "He's too little to put the map together. But it will occupy his time and I can get my work done. Then, when I'm through, I'll give him the quarter a way. It will be worth it to keep the little tyke out my hair so I can get this w done."

The father became sorbed in his work. But not long! In about 15 minu Jimmy was back—the m completed.

"I put the world back gether, Daddy," he said. "Gi me my quarter."

The father was amaze "How did you know where t countries belonged on the ma of the world, Jimmy? Yo don't know geography!"

"Oh, it was easy, Daddy, he said. "I just turned th pieces over on their backs, an I saw that they formed a pic ture of Jesus. I know wh Jesus looks like!

MONUMENT TO A LITTLE BOY'S FAITH

In a glass enclosure in our bundant Life Building in Tul-a, Oklahoma, is a monument to he faith of a little boy. Here re displayed his built-up shoe nd a pair of crutches—no onger needed because God ealed the little crippled lad.

This ten-year-old boy's faith rought healing from God. Let ne tell you about it.

Willie's hipbone was flat. One eg was 2-1/2 inches shorter han the other. For four years e walked in a built-up shoe and with the aid of crutches. He ould not run and play like other boys and girls. Many imes his little playmates took Willie's crutches away from him, leaving him standing at heir mercy.

For four years, during Willie's chool life in the state of Virginia, the only way the school children had ever seen him was on crutches and wearing that built-up shoe.

Willie's parents heard about our crusade in Roanoke. They told him that if he had faith when Oral Roberts prayed for him, God would completely heal him. Willie believed it. Before they came to the meeting Willie made his parents promise that if God healed him through prayer, they would go down the next day and buy him a new pair of shoes.

The prayer line was so long that night that Willie could not find a place to stand. After I had finished praying for the sick, I was on my way out of the building, tired, exhausted and wanting to get to my room for some rest. As I was passing by the room where little Willie was standing on his crutches and built-up shoe, I looked into it. Why? I don't know.

I saw the little fellow looking so lost and helpless. Something got hold of me and I went in. "Son," I said, "do you want to be healed?" Little Willie said, "Yes, sir." I was too tired to pray a formal prayer, so I just reached out and touched his forehead and asked God to heal Willie's leg, in the name of Jesus. I then left the building.

A year and a half passed. I had not heard that Willie had been healed instantly by God. I was amazed as anyone to see him standing on the platform at another Roanoke Crusade!

Willie said that when I touched him, he felt his faith go, and God healed him. Immediately his leg, 2-1/2 inches shorter than the other, was lengthened.

He couldn't walk in his built-up shoe because it made his leg too long! His parents had to buy those new shoes before he could go to school.

Today Willie is healthy and normal. His built-up shoe and pair of crutches, under glass in Tulsa, Oklahoma, bear mute testimony to the power of a little boy's faith in God.

Lack of Good Cottonseed Expected This Next Year

Alabama farmers may be faced with a severe shortage of genetically pure high germinating cottonseed when planting time for the 1961 crop comes around.

Certified cottonseed producers made a real effort this year to produce an adequate supply of high quality certified seed. The seed were produced on the largest acreage in the history of the Alabama Crop Improvement Association. However, Melvin Moorer, Extension seedman says that because of adverse weather conditions at harvest time, a large portion of the seed produced did not germinate up to the 80 percent margin the minimum for top quailty. So the Board of Directors of the ACIA lowered the requirements to 65 percent germination for this year only.

Moorer recommends that cotton producers secure or arrange for their cottonseed needs early because the better seed will move first.

Poinsettia Requires Much Attention

The poinsetta, native of Mexico is the traditional Christmas plant. Few holiday pot plants are more striking and few require more care. Troy Keeble, Auburn Extension horticulturist, says that a poinsettia will stay presentable for a longer period of time if it is kept in a room where the temperature is between 60 and 75 degrees, where it gets bright light but not direct sun and where the air is not too dry.

The once-a-year blooming plant should not be left in the window at night if there is any danger of chilling. And soil moisture should be kept at a moderate & uniform level Keeble says that this unusually sensitive plant can be damaged by drafts, sudden temperature changes, dry atmosphere, improper watering and dim light. These factors may cause loss of leaves and withering of bracts the part of the plant usually throught of as the flower.

Honey Date Bars

Honey Date Bars have the richness of honey, the chewiness of dates and the crunchiness of nuts all packed into one delicious cookie. Ice cream serves as a perfect companion to their tasty goodness.

When the food shout goes up from a hungry crowd, it's time to take your cue. Make your entrance with a tray loaded with chewy-rich Honey Date Bars. You and Honey Date Bars will occupy the center of the stage immediately.

Don't be dismayed, however, if you barely set the tray down and it's ready to be sent back for a refill. Enjoy your popularity and take out the enriched self-rising flour to bake another batch. If you're smart, you might cast one of the merry-makers for the role of chief cook in charge of production. With the quickness and ease of enriched self-rising flour, you'll be well armed with plenty of delicious Honey Date Bars by the time the next hunger boom hits.

Honey Date Bars are as easy as pie when self-rising flour is used. Those kitchen raiders can easily learn to fill as well as empty the cookie jar because self-rising flour eliminates that extra step of sifting together flour, salt and leavening.

While you're giving a lesson on easy baking, remember to emphasize that word "enriched." Enriched self-rising flour has health-giving iron, B-vitamins and calcium — nutrients important to youngsters and oldsters alike.

So plan a Honey Date Bar and ice cream party at your house soon.

HONEY DATE BARS

½ cup shortening
½ cup light brown sugar
¾ cup honey
1 egg
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
2½ cups sifted enriched self-rising flour
1 cup chopped dates
½ cup finely chopped nuts

Cream together shortening, brown sugar and honey until light and fluffy. Beat in egg and vanilla extract. Add flour gradually, mixing thoroughly after each addition. Stir in dates and nuts. Spread or pat dough into greased 10¼ x 15½-inch pan. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 20 to 25 minutes. When cooled, cut into 1¾ x 3-inch bars.

Makes 2½ dozen cookies.

Meat, For The Person Who Has Everything

Don't let the selection of a gift for that person who has everything present a big problem this year.

Ray Cavender, Auburn Extension meat marketing specialist, has a unique idea, give meat for Christmas. The selection is almost unlimited. You can choose from beef, lamb, pork or veal. And the meat can be fresh, frozen, picqled, cured, smoked cooked or uncooked in cans or jars, or already prepared for easy meals.

And a meat gift is available in any price range from a lb. of sausage to a side of beef. For parents or very special friends. Cavender suggests several T-bone steaks, a standing rib roast, or a leg or lamb. And for far-away friends, send a country cured ham or a delicious canned ham that does not require refrigeration.

Speaking or ham, why not bake one, glaze it with brown sugar, add fruit for taste and color, and put it under someone's Christmas tree. You'll get the biggest thank you yet Cavender assures.

The Double-Barred Cross, trademark of the National Tuberculosis Association, is an adaption of the Cross of Lorraine, carried in the Crusades.

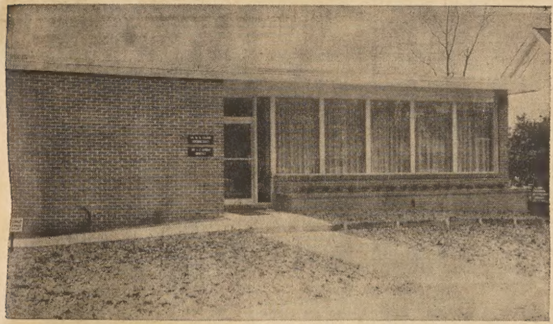
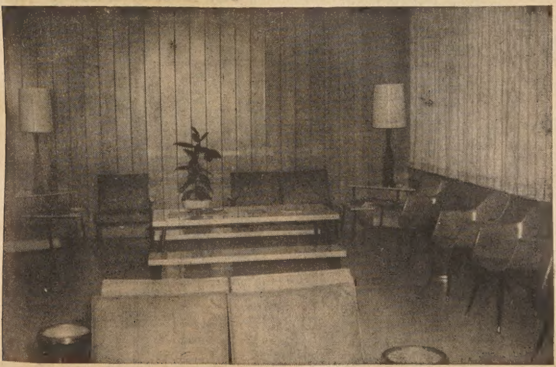
Another Outstanding Achievement By Chilton Countians

Outside view of the new W. B. Eiland Clinic



Warm interior greets guests and patients at new Clinic.



A magnificent example of the ability of those on the 'home front' to do a job well, is the new W. B. Eiland Clinic on Second Avenue in Clanton. Howard Wyatt, General Contractor, took great pride in constructing this new building as did Suburban Gas Company in installing the Lennox Heating and Fedders Air-Conditioning for the year 'round comfort and convenience of doctors and patients alike.

It's another big example of what local businesses can do when given the opportunity.

More Livestock Expected In 1961

Total red meat production will set a new high next year predicts Otis Russell, Auburn livestock marketing specialist.

Meat production will probably increase enough during 1961 to supply each consumer with about four pounds more meat than he had last year. Russell expects the largest increase in beef production. And he says that pork supplies will be less plentiful during the first half of the year but should push above the figures of a year earlier in the second half if the 1961 spring pig crop is as large as expected.

Red meat consumption per person will likely total about 165 pounds next year. second only to 166.7 pounds consumed in 1956, the marketing specialist says.

Look For Approval Seal On Appliances

Looking for a seal of approvel when you buy an appliance can save you both money and trouble later on.

Several independent organizations test appliances for performance and safety and mark equipment that passes the test says Elizabeth Bryan Auburn Extension home management specialist. Many of these seals are reliable guides to qualify merchandise.

Some examples are the Underwriters Laboratories, Inc seal found on electrical aquipment, the Blue Star seal of the American Gas Assocation Laboratories and the Certified Performance symbol on gas equipment. Your home agent can give you valuable information on seals that are reliable and methods of identifying them, Miss Bryan says.

Based on the experience of the past several years, thousands of visitors and tourists from all parts of the country will come to Sylacauga, Alabama to witness and appreiate the unusual scene which is an annual civic project of the Sylacauga chamber of commerce.

The manger hut where the life-sized figures of the infant Jesus, the Mother Mary, the Father Joseph together with the Wise Men, Shepherds, and other figures are around is in the center of two sheep folds and a corral for other animals. Stress and the Heart Emotional stress related to your occupation can play an important part in causing heart trouble, a heart specialist reports. Emotional stress can be far more significant than a high fat diet and heredity, although these may play an important part, he said.

Over Basketball Rivals—

ISABELLA CONTINUES STAMPEDE

The basketball season is well under way with the Isabella Mustangs. Winning five out of five is an excellent record for a very good team. The boys work together and cooperate with each other in everyway. If you have seen them play, you have seen just how a good team can work together.

On December 6 the Isabella Mustangs met the Verbena Devils at Isabella. The game wasn't what it was expected to be though. High point man for the A team was Floyd 'Lefty' Collins with 31 points. Jimmy Headley ran a close race with 28 points. The high point man for the B team was Gene Puckett with 10 points. Billy Atkinson and Sherrel White were running close with nine points. The final A team score was 83 to 34 in the Mustangs favor. The final B team score was 49 to 14 in favor of Isabella.

Then on December 9, the Mustangs ran over Thorsby with a score of 88 to 66. That was a very interesting game with all of Thorsby men fouling out except 3. Again Floyd Collins was high point man with 32 points. Headley was again running close race with 24 points. The high point man for the B team was Tommy House with 25 points. They also won with a score of 54 to 25.

The Mustangs met the Suttle Bobcats on December 14. We were very well pleased with that game too. The score was 81 to 67 in favor of Isabella. Headley took the lead for this game with 41 points and leaving Collins with 18 points. The B team lost with a score of 30 to 23. The high point man was Aubrey Brown with 6 points. Tommy House was next with 5 points.

The Mustangs are averaging 72 points per game to the opponents 47. So far we have scored 362 points and our opponents have scored 233.

The Isabella Mustangs are really riding high with their victories but how long this will last. nobody like they have in the past five games knows. But, if they really play ball they will be hard to beat.

New March of Dimes Funds Help Eric, Birth Defects Victim, Reach Age of 2

Eric Brantner is a frail and appealing little boy who achieved the age of two years the other day in his crossroads home at Palouse, Wash.

Held in his mother's arms on that great day, blue-eyed Eric could recognize his birthday well-wishers, among them his dancing hound-dog, Jupiter. But not so long ago, Eric wasn't given much time by most doctors to enjoy Jupiter or other members of the household. He was born three months prematurely and also developed an enlarged head (hydrocephalus) due to excess fluid on the brain. His despairing parents, Gail and Vonda Brantner, did not believe that a second birthday was in the cards for Eric.

Then, as the head grew alarmingly larger on the insubstantial body, members of the Whitman County Chapter of The National Foundation came forward with an offer of March of Dimes funds if they were needed for patient aid.

They were urgently needed.

Eric was rushed to Sacred Heart Hospital in Spokane, 65 miles away. There, at the age of 10 months, he underwent surgery for nearly four hours. The surplus fluid was drained away, relieving the pressure on the brain caused by blockage, and a plastic tube was inserted to keep the accumulating fluid flowing from the head to the blood stream near the heart.

Although Eric's appearance today belies his two years—the little boy looks scarcely more than six months old—the doctors' view is that he now has a good chance of survival. He cannot sit up by himself and he is only just learning to toddle uncertainly in a baby walker. But he engages in lively play with his mother and father, who is a section hand for the Great Northern Railway, with his doting brother Mark, three years, and of course with his frisky but gentle four-footed companion, Jupiter.

On second birthday, which his parents never expected Eric to celebrate, his mother Vonda Brantner holds him aloft.

Eric enjoys the dubious distinction of being one of the first victims of a significant birth defect to be given patient aid in continental United States under The National Foundation's expanded program, which includes arthritis in addition to continued work in polio. (The first instance of patient aid under this new program occurred last year in Honolulu where the local chapter expended March of Dimes contributions to care for a Hawaiian infant born with the birth defect of an open spine; the baby today is well along the road to a normal life.)

Otherwise, Eric's plight is not singular. Each year in this country, 250,000 infants are born with significant defects and 34,000 of them are stillborn or die within four weeks. The National Foundation, which helped develop both the Salk and the Sabin polio preventives with March of Dimes funds, moved into the area of birth defects because these congenital malformations comprise the largest unmet childhood medical problem in the nation today.

With generous support of the New March of Dimes in January, hopefully the number of Erics will in time be many thousands fewer.

Most Exciting Fight

What's the most exciting fight you ever saw? Tunney-D psey? Louis-Schmeling? Famed TV Fight of the Week spo caster Don Duhphy votes for the 1946 middleweight champ ship bout between Tony Zale and Rocky Graziano (see ab with Graziano, right, against ropes) which Don broadcast the Cavalcade of Sports in 1946.

Dunphy, who's behind the mike for the weekly Saturday ni fights on television, calls it "the most dramatic, thrill-pac fight I ever witnessed," and describes it thus: "Graziano, favorite, found himself on the canvas in the first round, bounced back, floored Zale and proceeded to punish him mercifully. Zale appeared virtually out of the fight in rou six when, out of nowhere, he uncorked his famous solar ple punch. That single left hook to the midsection paralyzed Roc He wasn't out, but he couldn't get up. The fight was over."

West End Baptist Has Christmas Program

"Four Paths to Bethlehem," a Christmas Song and Story Program by Edna Muller Sheppard, music by Stewart Langdon, was presented at the West End Baptist Church last Sunday night, 7:00 p.m. The program characters were: Narrator-Calvin Wilkins; Mary and Joseph-Martha Lockhart and Bill Thrash; Innkeeper-Johnny Mac Smith; Shepherds-Roger Traywick, Bernard Lockhart, Mickey Parrish; Wise Men-Dan Brock, Tommy Tolar Tony Hand.

Music - Church Choir; Choir Director - Denny Wood; Program Director-Ruby Thrash; Sound effects-Billy Wyatt; Organist-Mrs. J. T. Tolar; Pianist-Mrs. C. Delle Cobb.

Many years ago, Mary and Joseph made their journey on the first path to Bethlehem which ended so gloriously. The shepherds made their journey on the second path and their lives were filled with joy once they found the Babe. The wise men made the third journey with the outcome of their search surpassing their highest expectations. Who then travels the fourth path to Bethlehem? It is you and I, hoping to find the Christ Child and present our gifts. Let us give of our talents to bring pleasure and happiness to others. Each time we renew another's faith through showing our own faith, we share the supreme gift of the Christ Child.

Personality and Cancer

Whether you smoke or not, and how you smoke may depend on the type of person you are, Britich scientists report. Their study suggests smokers may be of the type more prone to lung cancer than non-smokers. Smokers are more extroverted than non-smokers, "generally living it up more." Extroverts may therefore have lower resistance to disease, or expose themselves more to conditions that could cause cancer.

TO ALL OUR FRIENDS AND CUSTOMERS

As another year rolls around we express our thanks for your past patronage and wish you all . . .
MERRY CHRISTMAS!

"Joy to the world, the Lord is come."

As we hurry these last few days before Christmas to complete preparation for Santa Claus and exchange of gifts let us take time to be more cognizant of the abundance of blessings which are ours each day of the year and which we receive so often without even the effort of asking.

The Christmas program and tree will be held at the church on Friday night, December 23rd at 7:00 p.m. We hope you will plan to attend this program; the teachers and children have spent quite a bit to time preparing it and we believe you will receive a blessing.

We realize there are those who will be unable to attend church services in Thorsby Sunday but hope they will worship with their families wherever they visit.

It is not too soon to consider resolutions for the new year. Someone has said there is nopoint in making resolutions because we only break them but if we realize our need to resolve to live betted lives surely that is a step forward!

CHRISTMAS is truly for children. . . and we're all children!

WE'VE never seen Santa so jolly and happy as he is on the streets of Clanton this year. That's one fellow who will enjoy a full and happy Christmas this year -- he's making all, young and old alike, smile and join in the spirit of the occasion. Bless the old gentleman!

AND the stranger said: "And what is Christmas to strangers?" And the man answered: "Christmas, my friend, is anywhere and anytime, there are no strangers -- only friends!"

THE glow of Christmas is most prominent in the eyes and on the faces of the very young. It is not so much their innocence, we think, but their wonderful ability to appreciate the good things. If you are blue and think you don't want Christmas, just watch a child or listen to a child, or love a child and experience the deep and lasting satisfaction of truly 'knowing Christmas". And may yours be MERRY!

Integration Leads To. . .--

WE note with some questionable degree of interest the recent marriage of Congressman William Clayton Powell and also of Sammy Davis, Jr., prominent entertainer. Those who are rabid supporters of Integration are proving our point that 'to Integrate' is to eventually 'Mongrelize' the white race. We protest this because we are white. If we were Negro and had any self-respect and basic pride in our heritage, we would also resent Integration.

Integration of our schools is not Mongrelization, but it is a most definite step in that direction and those who are pressing so hard, this issue, should be around some hundred years from now (if they succeed in their insane endeavors) and see what have they have played by using the color difference of people as their political stepping stones.

Intergration may not be distasteful to some, but Mongrelization of the races should certainly be most nauseating to any race of people.

Civil and equal rights are on a different level and plane entirely and are not even vaguely related to the issues now being pressed. We fervently hope that those in authority on both sides of the problem will come to realize these differences, before they proceed in their blundering.

It is one thing to believe you are right -- another entirely to know, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that you are right!

Highway Director Makes Urgent Appeal--

FLOYD H. Mann, Director, Department of Public Safety, made an urgent appeal today that all motorists and pedestrians exercise good judgement and extreme caution when walking or driving during the Christmas Holiday Period.

He pointed out the fact that we are approaching the days of the year when traffic deaths sky-rocket.

During the last five Christmas Seasons there were fifteen official holidays. During these holidays more than 3,400 deaths resulted from traffic accidents.

Director Mann says that special studies conducted by the National Safety Council regarding Christmas Holiday Accidents reflect that a big majority of the fatal accident mishaps were caused by driving under the influence of alcohol, excessive speed and driving on the wrong side of the road.

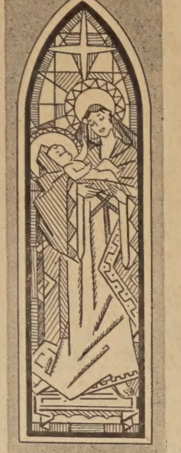
However, let's keep in mind that approximately one-half of all Christmas Season traffic accidents show that a drinking driver was involved.

Mr. Mann, along with this newspaper; is urging everyone to cooperate with the Highway Patrol Officers and other Officers who will be on duty during the Holiday Season (such as the Sheriff and the City Police) for your protection.

He said today, "The Law Enforcement Officers can do just so much; the rest will be up to you."

Whether you, or a member of your family falls into the hands of the "Grim Reaper" during these holidays will depend on your attitude and driving habits.

ONE SOLITARY LIFE . . .



HERE IS A MAN who was born in an obscure village, the child of a peasant woman. He grew up in another village. He worked in a carpenter shop until He was thirty, an dthen for three years He was an Itenerant preacher He never wrote a book. He never held an office.

HE never owned a home. He never set foot inside a big city. He never traveled two hundred miles from the place where he was born. He had no credentials but Himself.

HE had nothing to do with this world except the naked power of His divine manhood. While still a young man, the tide of popular opinion turned against Him. His friends ran away. One of them denied Him.

He was turned over to His enemies. He went through the mockery of a trial. He was nailed upon a cross between two thieves.

HIS executioners gambled for the only piece of property He had on earth while He was dying — and that was His coat. When He was dead He was taken down and laid in a borrowed grave through the pity of a friend.

NINETEEN wide centuries have come and gone and today He is the centerpiece of the human race and the leader of progress. I am far within the mark when I say that all armies that ever marched and all the navies that ever were built, and all the parliaments that ever sat, and all the kings that ever reigned. put together have not affected the life of any upon this earth as powerfully as that One Solitary Life.

RAYS OF HOPE

Virginia H. Stover

Albert Einstein said, "' Strange is our situaiton here on earth Each of comes for a short visit, not knowing why, yet sometimes seeming to divine a purpose." This great man tried hard to find purpose for his life. There is a purpose in your being here also. Maybe it isn't an outstanding one according to your estimation, maybe its to make a home, to help build a nation to promote good-will among men what ever it is, it is important that we do our best with what we have to do with. Most of us know more and are able to do more than we do. Thought and learning are of very little value unless we put them into action. Very few of us, if any actually do all that we can to the best of our knowledge. Too often we only do what we can get by with and that half-heartedly.

We have heard all of our life the saying, "If a thing is worth doing, its worth doing well." We might make another saying, "If a things worth doing at all its worth doing enthusiasticall." Have you ever noticed the difference in people who seem to be enthusiastic over everything and the person who never shows the least enthusiasm, or animation over anything? The difference is remarkable! Its as real as if you tried eating pancakes with no syrup. The enthusiasm is to the listener what hot maple syrup is to the pancakes! No mater if you are giving a lecture or just scrubbing pots you can do it with enthusiasm. The half-hearted attitude in a person robs them of their vitality even if they find their purpose in life. So when you say hello put a little zip in it. Whatever you do act as if you enjoy doing it and you will. Remember there are rays of HOPE to be found in the book of Psalms. Read it.

This week we honor Mr. R. C Veazey as the one to give his favorite Scripture verse. He has lived in Clanton all of his 46 years and is a Deacon of the Mulberr Baptist church. He says Romans' 9:28 is one of his favorite verses. "For we know that all things work together for good to them that love God."

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS from The Bible

And herein do I exercise myself, to have always a conscience void of offense toward God, and toward man.
—(Acts 24:16)

What a wonderfully different world this would be if all of us followed St. Paul's example. There would be little need for police forces, prisons, armies and wars if each human being possessed a sensitive, God-inspired conscience and bent his efforts toward keeping it "clean."

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNERS

IT is a duty of the Board of Equalization to assess any and all property that they might find that has not been assessed.

Our records were recently audited and the auditors reported that we were not in full compliance with the law by not adding a ten per cent penalty as required by Section 105, Title 51, Code of Alabama, on all property it became our duty to assess.

May we ask that you please check your assessment to be sure all improvements are properly assessed as we will be required to comply with the auditors recommendations of adding an additional ten percent to all property we have to assess as delinquent assessments.

Your cooperation will be appreciated as we don't like the thought of having to add penalties. The normal assessment period is from October 1st to December 31st.

Sincerely,
J. N. CALLOWAY,

THIS WEEK ON CAPITOL HILL

BY CARL GOGGINS

Hopes of a special Session after January 1, have all but completely vanished!

According to sources to the Governor's office, there are a number of political facts, like the Speaker of the House election, etc., involved as to the Why there probably won't be a special gathering.

But onto some of the major talk heard around the Hill and across the state. Presently understand that unless things change a good deal then don't look for Lt. Gov. Albert Boutwell of Birmingham to run for Governor in 1962.

And along the same line of thinking, this writer talked briefly with former gubernatorial candidate George Wallace in Montgomer the other day about his future political plans.

One of the main questions put to the Little Judge whether or not he planned to be a candidate in the Governor's race or was he thinking of stepping down to run for a lesser officer?

Like most politicans, Wallace was rather evasive and talked strictly off the record. However, there was some indication on his part that he somewhat enjoyed having the people wonder about his plans, for it shows definite interest.

One of the most incidents by large numbers of the state's rank and file voters these day has been Governor Pohn Paterson's apparent refusal to answer former Big League Baseball player Jackie Robinson's charge that he thought JP was stupid.

Some folks talked too seem to be fuming because JP won't answer. Yet, with the politicans who closely follow the game of politics, the reports have ben that Governor John has been wise for not answering such an insignificant charge.

Then, too, one old-timer in politics told this scribe that if he had to answer such a charge he would just look at the inquiring newspaper man and reply: "Jackie? Jackie who? I don't believe I know the Nigger."

Do politicans ever ask Santa Claus for gifts? After talking to several of them this writer has found there is at least, some humorus likelihood they do.

So watch next week's column for some of the things a few of the state's top politics may be asking of Santa for Christmas.

THE CHRISTMAS PHASE. . .

Are you preparing every Cristmas phase? Every phase of Christmas observance has carefu preparation except one—The Christmas Phase. Big business concerns began preparation a year ago. Many folk do their Christmas shopping months ahead. Thousands have baked cakes and many more people have planned a vacation with loved ones or friend Christian parents must remember that "Ours Is A Christian Home." But aside from a little scripture reading and perhaps an occassional gospel story, very little Christmas preparation is made. In this modern age so many of us make more preparation of the tangible than of the Christmas phase. Christians should feel that there is a deeper meaning of Christmas than last minute shopping, illuminated trees exchanging of gifts, etc. Of course these have meaning. But they do not speak the central message of Christmas—Christ the Saviour, God incarnate, born in humility, obedient to His redemptive suffering on the cross, risen and exhalted to the Father which provides the basis for our salvation. The message of Christmas should make Christians feel less proud, to become more humble and less selfish and more selfless, and strive to make Christ the example of living. What does Christmas mean to you? Will your pastor see you at Church Christmas.

THINGS We see and hear

by BOB

THERE is nothing in this world that we enjoy any more thoroughly than having the privilege of participating in the White Christmas Pageant at the First Methodist Church each Christmas. It's old, but always new and there is no way for us to convey the sheer joy of being a part of it . . . you must eperience it for yourself. The people are wonderful to work with and it's a common good that is realized through their endeavors. There are those who say "I'm certainly not going to do this (particular thing) next year. But they are always the most faithful. It's a lot of sweat, work, time and energy, but when it's all over you are aware of a feeling that was not there before and everything about the Christmas Season means a great deal more than it did a few days earlier. It's a wonderful experience and we thank the Lord that we are privileged to take part in it.

Thanks and congratulations should go to the many who created this year's "Pageant". Charles Griffin, Helen Parrish, Clois Robertson Ervin Dailey, Sr., Charles Price, Mrs. R. C. Williams, and of coures the cast, the choirs and many more too numerous for us to attempt to list them all. We think the people who witnessed the Pageant were thrilled a bit and they too were blessed with a new Spirit of the Season. All in add it was a wonderful thing, as were many others in many churches in Chilton County.

GADZOOKS, we found one who shares our firm belief in Santa Claus. Jeff Pilgreen has already hung up his stocking "in hopes that Saint Nicholas soon will be here . .." Saw our friend Jeff riding around town Tuesday about noon with a little 4-inch Christmas Stocking dangling from the tail-gate (of the Ala., Power truck that is). That's alright Jeff; like we said, we believe in him too! We just hadn't through to hang one on the car yet! He's taking no chances on Santa being too big for the chimney!

C. N. Graham and H. O. Headley, members of the Methodist Protestant Church in Chilton County have been appointed to the Board of Directors of Whitworth College in Brookhaven, Miss. They are both residents of the Pleasant Grove Comunity in Chilton County and Mr. Graham is, and has been pastor at Kingston Methodist Protestant Church for the past 12 years. The church is located on the farm to market road between White City in South Chilton and Prattville. Congratulations gentlemen, we know you will serve well!

ACCORDING to some who heard the Band and Choruses were in rare from last Thursday evening at Chilton County High School. They burst forth with some most spirited numbers and it seems all who listened enjoyed the occasion. Mr. DeLoach and Mrs. Rae are to be commended for their fine work with our youngsters along these lines. We found a long time ago, that such a group as CCHS usually has in it's halls can do most anything, musically speaking with the proper leadership. We are certainly glad that this leadership is evidenced in our school at present. Youngsters get a lot out of this kind of group, and self, expression!

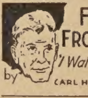
FROM MY FRONT PORCH



'I Watch the World Go By'

by CARL HELM

The other day, along the street,
A little man I chanced to meet
Had such merry, laughing eyes,
So gentle, yet so very wise,
That, even tho' some time has passed,
The memory of them seems to last.

So small was he, so drab of dress,
You'd surely pass him by, unless
Your notice, rested on his face
As mine did, when I slacked my pace,
The joy within his eyes to share.
And in the moment I stood there,
He seemed to sense, perhaps to guess,
I wondered 'Why his happiness?'

His smiling lips said not a word,
But, tho' unspoken, this I heard:
'The world is good, and I am in it,
'Enjoying fully ev'ry minute!'

And then I went upon my way,
A better man, for on that day,
I'd met one who, while others plod
Through life, so surely walked with God!

Who hasn't dreamed of "getting away from it all" and relaxing under tropical suns and moons? Not all of us are able to, but we can dream, can't we?

But dreams need substance to build upon, and that seems to be the idea behind a new magazine called Beachcomber, intended not only for the lucky who can get away, but also for the rest of us who but dream. Fun and romance in the sunny Caribbean, Bermuda, Central and South America — to these and other alluring locales will the magazine's pages transport us!

Science Briefs

Smoking Mice

Four scientists have reported that mice exposed to cigarette smoke daily for periods of a month to almost two years did not develop lung cancer. Varied response of the mice indicates that viruses may play a part in causing the disease. This is now being studied by the scientists. The research team is headed by Dr. Cecilie Leuchtenberger, of Boston.

Woodenware that has and odor of food in it should be soaked in hot wated and household ammonia for several minutes.

The Truly Great Marvel of the Ages

The wonders of the space age sometimes overshadow what a truly great marvel of our times: the extraordinary progr of Biblical scholars towards a revelation of the true meaning the Scriptures.

Utilizing all the tools of science, projecting vast archaeologic explorations, tracking down the meanings of words through un marked bypaths of antiquity—dedicated scholars have enriched man's spiritual heritage by this never-ending search to reveal Divine truth. Their crowning work is the Revised Standard Version of the Bible.

The RSV Bible was projected when it became apparent that earlier versions were out of date in many respects. Through the years, hundreds of word meanings had so changed from former days as to distort fundamentally the true meaning of many Biblical chapters. Then too, discoveries of documents, records, and Biblical manuscripts older, and more accurate, than those available to early translators, provided modern scholars with more precise meanings of words which had formerly been merely guessed at, or roughly deduced.

It was in 1937 that 37 scholars, upon authorization of the International Council of Religious Education, began a major revision of the Bible that would utilize all the latest researches and discoveries. In the fall of 1952, the Revised Standard Version was finally published, the result of 15 years of intense labor.

Now, eight years and eight million copies later, more than 100 different styles and bindings are available to satisfy varying needs.

HOLY BIBLE
NP

The latest is the "Concordette," a hand-sized Bible that contains the complete text of the Revised Standard Version, a 192-page concise concordance and list of proper names, more than 75,000 center column references, 12 maps in color, presentation page and family record in three colors. Available in six editions for church and home reading, it is one more indication of that spiritual climate of the nation that is more accurately gauged by church attendance and Bible reading.

Alpha Delta Kappa Meets

The Alabama Kappa Chapter of the Alpha Delta Kappa met with Miss Elizabeth Barton on Monday evening, December 5, in their monthly meeting.

Gifts were exchanged from under a lighted Christmas tre. Christmas greenery and red berries with the decoration brought the Christmas spirit out in a beautiful way.

The dining table was centered with the arrangement of yellow mums and vases of blue violets with yellow candles at each end which carried out the Chapter colors.

Delightful refresments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Thomasine Lecroy, to twelve old members and two new ones.

GOLDEN CIRCLE ENJOYS PARTY

Another joyous occasion was the Christmas party in the new home of Mrs. Reedie Taylor on Monday night, December 19, at 7 o'clock on Selma Road.

Mrs. Reid Mullins read the Christmas tory, Lights of the World, in modern version.

Mrs. Taylor's home was beautifully decorated in Christmas arrangements in the motif of the season. A tree decorated most beautiful was sourrounded with gifts of which the members exchanged and also Secret Pal gifts.

If in doubt about the proper cleaning fluid to use on a tie, try it first on the back. If the cleaner does any harm, it won't show. Water spots on ties can be removed by first allowing them to dry, then rubbing lightly with another part of the tie or soft tissue.

Here's hoping that you have a very Merry Christmas!

Science Briefs

Sea Serpents?

Throughout the centuries sea serpents have been reported — and even today, serious scientists believe they may exist. Discovery of baby eels six feet long suggests adults 30 to 50 feet. Dr. Robert Menzies, USC marine biologist, has even fished for them. No luck yet, he reports.

TB Damage

Widespread tuberculosis in previous decades may be responsible for the rise in lung cancer, suggests Dr. Philip Schwartz, director of the Warren (Pa.) State Hospital. He says lung cancers often arise in bronchial scars left by tuberculosis. This view also is held by other scientists.

Say Mom! Try Some Of These Festive Christmas Treats On Your Family!

A Supper Suggestion for the Holida

With the holidays close on our heels, Christmas presents to tie and wrap, kids home from school and all the festivities that come along this time of year who, we wonder, has time for the preparation of elaborate meals? But you will want wholesome ones.

So this suggestion for quickly made Savory Veal Hash should prove helpful. Heartily recommended for flavor and economy, it's also good made with other kinds of cooked left-over meat.

With this meat and potato main dish, serve hot soup, a green salad and spiced old-fashioned applesauce. Then, add candlelight to soften shopping-weary faces and to give an extra-warm glow to the meal.

SAVORY VEAL HASH

2 cups Minute Sliced Potatoes
2 green peppers
1 cup chopped onions
½ cup butter
4 cups finely chopped cooked veal
½ cup broth or bouillon
1½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sage
¼ teaspoon pepper
6 eggs
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

Cook sliced potatoes as directed on package. Meanwhile, cut tops from peppers and scoop out seeds. Cut at widest part into 6 rings. Chop remaining pepper and set aside. Place pepper rings in a small amount of water. Cover and cook 5 minutes. Drain.

Saute chopped pepper and onions in 2 tablespoons butter in a large skillet until onions are tender but not browned. Remove from skillet and combine with potatoes, veal, broth, and seasonings.

Melt all except 1 tablespoon of the remaining butter in the skillet. Top with potato mixture. Brown over medium heat without stirring. Make 6 depressions in the top of the potato mixture and lightly press in the pepper rings. Break 1 egg into each ring, sprinkle with cheese, and dot with remaining butter. Cover, reduce heat, and poach until eggs are set — 5 to 10 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

To all our many friends: a Merry Christmas!

After-Holiday Treat

Hi Ho Baked Turkey Ring

Hi Ho Baked Turkey Ring

3 cups leftover roast turkey, finely diced
1 teaspoon instant onion
1 tablespoon dried parsley flakes
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
3 eggs
1 10½-oz. can chicken gravy or 1¼ cups turkey gravy (homemade)
2 cups crumbled Sunshine Hi Ho Cracker crumbs

Heat oven to 350°F. (moderate oven). Grease a 1-quart ring mold. Pour ¼ cup of the crumbs into the mold and shake it to coat the greased sides with crumbs. Combine 1½ cups of the crumbs, the turkey, onion, parsley, salt, pepper and poultry seasoning in a bowl. Beat eggs well; blend eggs and gravy into the crumb mixture and pour it into the prepared mold. Set it in a larger baking pan and pour hot water around it to within 1" of the top of the mold. Bake in preheated oven for 45 minutes. Cool for 5 minutes on a wire cake rack, loosen from pan with a knife and unmold onto serving platter. Sprinkle with the remaining ¼ cup of crumbs. Serve, if desired, with cranberry sauce. Makes 6 servings.

Sweets For An Evening

In towns and cities, as well as in the test kitchens of firms like the makers of Karo syrup, fall and winter is the time for homemade goodies—all time favorites being popcorn, divinity, and cider punch. Here we give you the three favorites from the Karo makers.

Popcorn Wreaths

Pop corn according to directions below. Shape popcorn on waxed paper into wreaths—5 to 6 inches in diameter for hanging and about 9 inches in diameter for center piece on table. Decorate with leaves cut from angelica, small red cinnamon candies or cake decorations. Makes 2 small or 1 large wreath.

Quick Candied Popcorn Mixture

¼ cup corn oil
½ cup popcorn
⅔ cup dark Karo syrup
⅔ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt

Heat corn oil in a 4-quart kettle over medium heat for 3 minutes. Add popcorn. Cover, leaving a small air space at edge of cover. Shake frequently over medium heat until popping stops. When cooled sufficiently, pick out unpopped grains. Meanwhile mix together corn syrup, sugar and salt in a heavy saucepan; cook over moderate heat for 2 minutes or until sugar is dissolved, stirring constantly. Add popped corn and stir over medium heat 3 to 5 minutes, or until corn is evenly and completely coated. Remove from heat.

Cider Punch

½ cup light Karo syrup
1 12-oz. can apricot nectar
12 whole cloves
2 2-inch sticks cinnamon
3 cups apple cider or juice
2½ tablespoons lemon juice

Combine Karo syrup, apricot nectar, cloves, cinnamon and cider in a saucepan. (Omit cinnamon if using cinnamon stick stirrers). Bring to a boiling point and simmer 10 to 15 minutes, or until cider is spicy enough to suit taste. Add lemon juice just before serving. Strain and serve piping hot in mugs. Makes about 1 quart.

Christmas Legends

THE POINSETTIA is America's favorite Christmas plant. Legend says that a poor Mexican girl plucked roadside weeds to present at the altar on Christmas Eve. As she offered them, they burst into brilliant bloom: the "Flor de Noche Buena." We call this plant the Poinsettia after Joel R. Poinsett, who introduced it to the U.S. 120 years ago.

Festive Bread—Cherry Coffee Ring

An attractively decorated, yet easy-to-prepare, accompaniment to a holiday breakfast or brunch is flavorsome Cherry Coffee Ring. Made from raisin bran, colorful maraschino cherries and chopped nutmeats, this delicious bread will add a festive touch to the holidays.

Cherry Coffee Ring

1½ cups Kellogg's Raisin Bran
⅔ cup milk
1 egg
¼ cup soft shortening
1 cup sifted flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup sugar
⅔ cup finely cut maraschino cherries
½ cup chopped nutmeats

Combine Raisin Bran, milk, egg and shortening; beat well. Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add to Raisin Bran mixture, stirring only until combined. Fold in well-drained cherries and nutmeats. Spread in greased 8¼-inch ring mold, filling about two-thirds full. Bake in moderately hot oven (400°F) about 30 minutes. Turn out of ring mold. Frost with thin confectioners' icing. Decorate with additional cherries and nutmeats, if desired. Yield: about 8 servings.

Mince Meat Ideal With Poultry

Mince meat, which once was the most laborious food to prepare and seemingly defied hasty cooks, today holds a distinctive place as a modern convenience food.

A time-honored food of English origin brought to our shores in early Colonial days, it took not hours, but days to prepare. Today it is one of the most popular instant preparation foods in the American home. Mince meat is instantly ready for use at the flip of the container lid—or, within one minute when purchased in condensed form. Either way, its ingredients are skillfully blended and it remains for the consumer to choose the preferred type.

Borden Company home economists used the ready-to-use mince meat to simplify preparation of Father's Favorite Mince Meat Filling . . . and simplicity is particularly appealing to male cooks. The man at your house, or his bachelor brother, will be pleased with the compliments they receive when guests taste this gourmet like treat. Watercress, orange halves (plain or broiled) topped with canned spicy red crabapples make an edible and colorful garnish.

Father's Favorite — Mince Meat Filling
(Makes filling for a 6 pound duck)

½ cup butter
½ cup chopped onions
¼ cup minced parsley
1 small clove garlic, finely minced
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3½ cups soft bread crumbs
1⅓ cups Ready-to-Use None Such Mince Meat
½ cup orange juice or cranberry juice cocktail

Melt butter in small skillet. Add onions; saute until tender. Add parsley, garlic, salt, pepper and onions to bread crumbs. Add mince meat and fruit juice; mix lightly to combine ingredients. Stuff duck with filling. Roast according to favorite method.

Quick Casserole

DRESS UP ground beef in this delightfully different, quick and easy way for a thrifty family meal that looks and tastes like a million dollars!

HAMBURGER PIE

2 tbsps. butter
1 medium onion, chopped
1 lb. ground beef
2 tbsps. A.1. Steak Sauce
1 tsp. salt
2 cups canned green beans, cooked
1 can condensed tomato soup
Pkgd. instant mashed potatoes, 4-6 servings

Sauté onion in butter until tender but not brown. Add beef, A.1. and salt. Brown lightly. Stir in soup and beans, pour mixture into 1½-qt. casserole. Top with mounds of mashed potatoes, bake in moderate (350°) oven 25 minutes.

Long-Winded L P's

Hi Fi fans may expect longer-playing tapes soon. A British firm has developed a tape that plays up to 40 hours.

Just picture your hearthside silver-bright for the Yuletide season . . . or decorate in your mind's eye the bookcase ledge in your parlor where the stockings are hung for Santa's treats. To achieve the gleam that spells Christmas, here's the time to use your silver coffee service and candelabra at their shining best. The rest of the "mantel" decoration is ever so easy, says Marian Marsh, well-known stylist for Oneida Silversmiths. The mantel-top shown is covered — quite simply — with bright red shelf paper, scallop-edged to match the border of the "Colonial Suite" coffee pot, sugar bowl, creamer and round tray . . . news in Heirloom silverplated hollowware, yet designed in the classic Early American tradition. Mantelpiece star is the silver tray which becomes a dramatic wreath with the quick addition of bits of greenery, taped in place and topped with a big red bow. Sentinels of this holiday scene are the Heirloom silverplate candelabra (adaptable modern behind their red ribbon trim) . . . each bearing aloft 3 bayberry candles to bring "joy to the heart" the whole year through.

At this time of the year, it is most fitting that we take time to express the appreciation of our entire staff for your good will — bigger and better 15 year old again spent the summer with He and Jill kept the joint jum- They almost taught us to picnics at the beach. If you ick 'em join 'em Mike and two r boys ran the bowling alley at Officers Club. They had verylit- ade for the alleys are ancient nadvertised, but it gave them a spending money and helped the time. Jill thinks it a good to have a brother. He attracts to the house, and her girl s interest him. They enjoyed each other and their spats were short lived. Mostly, they joined forces in resisting rules and regulations imposed by older members of the household.

The barnyard belongs to Jack more and more as Jills life takes on new twists. Actually it has always been his; Jill was the excuse. She colored chickens before they hatched for the science fair, a popular, but non-prize winning project. Jack had to control the chicken and pigeon population; they became too many for us to know personally We didn't mind too much other people eating those with whom we had only a nodding acquaintance. You will be glad to know dog, Chibi, though still a bachelor is no longer lonely. A blooded, but degenerate Beagle Pup samer Buckshot, by Jack (who else?), joined our family last January. He is an adorable dunce with a capital D. Runs into people and things when excited, and performs a dance of rapid and perfect circles when about to be fed. When he bays, which is always, Jack stands entranced and says, "Doesn't he have a beautiful voice?" All this, plus a well-tended flower garden, kept Jack busy on off hours this summer. But of course hunting took over in September. His crib is having an off year game-wise, but as much fun as ever.

Jill will be 14 in May and matures rapidly. Last year she discovered boys this year they discovered her and she had a few dates even before her braces were off. She is still 5' 9"1|2 inches tall and weight 105. Her music and riding continue to give her pleasure. The world was hers when she won first in the beginner jumping class at the Hillcrest show and placed fifth in horsemanship for the entire riding school She gave up camp for braces but did have two week ends in Hillcrest and extra riding lessons. She was one of five in her class at Cradock Junior High chosen to take the Cultural course last summer. She is now in the eight grade which is in the High School, and that is exciting. She is vice president of her class and so far has made honor roll. She lost out on cheer leader and councilor, but says she gained experience for the next race. Ye old school spirit takes her to every game. Her freedom (commensurate with her age we hope) is making her a little dunk and us a little anxiouss, but fascinated. There simply is'nt enough Jills time to do every thing she would like. One high spot was the dance she and a friend gave in October for teenagers living in the Shipyard We think others will do likewise.

Rita's schedule duplicate last years same luncheons coffees, Navy Relief Work, Piano Lessons, Book and Bridge Clubs The social lift hasn't changed much though the yard had an almost complete turn over. Almost no time for golf, but then one can't have every thing.

Jack is a weather-veteran, but Rita realized a life-time ambition in September and met a hurricane face to face, viz., the lady named Donna. Jack was on duty 36 hours without sleep. Jill and Rita, afraid to miss something, didn't do much better| We did miss two big trees from our lawn. It was exciting, but wouldn't want to meet a tougher lad. Can't wait to start collectng 1960 Christmas Greetings!

Baby And His Furniture Should Grow Together

A baby grows up. Keeping that fact in mind, you can resign a nussery that will grow up with the child

For furniture, a crib with sides that lock in place and can be removed later, a chest of drawers, a screen, a chair, and a large table make an adequate start, says Alice Peavy, Auburn Extension home furnishings specialist. Many parents build or buy small units which can be stacked and multiplied as time passes so that tables and storage pieces literally grow as the child grows.

With this basic furniture a change to more suitable colors and accessories to suit the teen-age taste is easy to accomplish, Miss Peavy adds. Frilly curtains, a dressng tbl t,iaeatd Frilly curtains, a dressing table, and a room done in soft pastel adds to a young lady's room. And a change to simple, rough textured fabrics and deep tones are suitable for the young man.

Warming Drinking Water Aids In Egg Production

Profitable egg production is partly dependent upon continuous water intake by laying hens. Jim Hubbard, Auburn Extension poultryman, says that water is an aid to digestion, controls body temperature, lubricates joints and muscles, and is an important part of the hen's body and its product, the egg.

Cold weather slumps in production may be caused by decreased water consumption or inadequate feed consumption. Hens do not like to drink extremely cold water on cold days. And if drinking water is slightly warmed during the winter egg production will benefit.

Hubbard urges poultrymen to replenish their water supply frequently by keeping warmed water in the drinking troughs.

LONELY TIME

Evening's a lonely time
When you sit and wait,
Listening for footsteps
To turn in at the gate.

Up and down the little lane
Windows come a-light;
Families unite again,
Close against the night.

Birds have sung their vesper songs,
Now, within the nest,
Each is home where it belongs,
Settled down to rest . . .
Each beside its drowsy mate.

Evening's a lonely time,
When you sit, and wait.

4-Point Preparedness Program Emphasized

The Continuity of Government Program at National, State and local levels stresses government readiness in four ways to meet a nuclear attack on this country:

1. To designate legal successors for each key official in case he is killed or disabled.
2. To protect essential records.
3. To establish blast or fallout-protected control centers.
4. To provide for maximum use of government personnel, resources and equipment.

Rocket Railroad

MODEL RAILROADERS have caught the space age fever. This youngster is operating the Lionel rocket launcher, a model train accessory that simulates an earth satellite launching. The crane lifts the rocket and moves it into position on the launching pad. An illuminated control panel features a countdown apparatus and firing button. When the firing button is pressed, the rocket hurtles upward into space. In keeping with the interests of youngsters in the space age, Lionel has also introduced a self-propelled mobile missile launcher, an IRBM missile launching car, an "exploding" target box car and a helicopter launching car.

Deck A Merry Christmas Mantel!

Just picture your hearthside silver-bright for the Yuletide season . . . or decorate in your mind's eye the bookcase ledge in your parlor where the stockings are hung for Santa's treats. To achieve the gleam that spells Christmas, here's the time to use your silver coffee service and candelabra at their shining best. The rest of the "mantel" decoration is ever so easy, says Marian Marsh, well-known stylist for Oneida Silversmiths. The mantel-top shown is covered — quite simply — with bright red shelf paper, scallop-edged to echo the border of the "Colonial Suite" coffee pot, sugar bowl, creamer and round tray . . . news in Heirloom silverplated hollowware, yet designed in the classic Early American tradition. Mantelpiece star is the silver tray which becomes a dramatic wreath with the quick addition of bits of greenery, taped in place and topped with a big red bow. Sentinels of this holiday scene are the Heirloom silverplate candelabra (adaptable modern behind their red ribbon trim) . . . each bearing aloft 3 bayberry candles to bring "joy to the heart" the whole year through.

FROM MY FRONT PORCH
"I Watch the World Go By"
by CARL HELM

Being helpless to do anything about it anyway, I've gone along with most of women's weird style fads — the slab-sided "chemise", the drop-waisted "sack" dress. I thought they made milady look awful.

Even the extreme styles of their shoes in recent years haven't disturbed me too much. They looked somewhat dainty, and if the poor dears wanted to punish their tooties, it was their feet taking it!

Of late, they've taken to the sharply pointed toes, which look dreadful and must be torture to wear. But now, in the latest fashion in feminine footwear, they've really gone too far, with things called "winkle-pickers."

These are the longest and pointiest, sticking out as much as two inches beyond a gal's real toes! She has to go up a staircase one foot at a time — and sideways!

The fad began among teenagers in London, whence the name "winkle-pickers," from a long pin used to pry a shellfish called a periwinkle from its shell. Let London keep 'em!

Your pancakes will not stick, and there will be no smoke or odor if you make a little salt bag and rub your pan with it instead of using grease.

YOUR HEALTH

THE MUMPS

There is little difficulty in diagnosing a typical case of mumps. The disease is characterized by a swelling of one or both of the salivary glands in front of the ears, a low grade or moderate fever and some general bodily discomfort. Mumps is a common contagious disease occurring most frequently during childhood, with the fever and other spmptoms usually subsiding in two or three days.

A child sometimes has difficulty in opening the mouth widely and in chewing food, and the throat may or may not be sore. The incubation period is almost always 18 days, and the first symptoms are listlessness and fever with swelling of the salivary glands. The disease is both epidemic and sporadic, although not nearly as contagious as measles or chicken pox.

Transmission of the virus causing mumps is by direct contact or by droplet infection. Treatment includes bed rest during the period of swelling and fever, and application of hot or cold to give relief from the aching and pain. In adults mumps is often accompanied by severe complications, the chief one being orchitis or inflammation of the testes. Because mumps is to be avoided in adults, particularly males many medical authorities recommend the deliberate exposure of preadolescent children. This is advised in view of the fact that there is greater danger of complications in the adult as compared to the mild nature of mumps in the child.

If an adult without a previous history of mumps should become exposed through clos contact with a mumps case, an attempt should be made to determine the adult's susceptibility and to immunize if susceptible.

THE VERY FIRST CHRISTMAS TREE

TO August Imgard, a home-sick immigrant tailor, goes the credit for introducing the Christmas tree to America.

Imgard came to this country in 1847 to visit his brother in Wooster Ohio. With the prospects of a dismal Christmas for the first time away from his native land, August decided to bring to his newly adopted home all the Christmas Spirit and festivities he had loved so much is Wetzlar, Hessia.

To his young nephew and niece he would show how Christmas was celebrated in the old Country.

First, he needed a Christmas tree! This is the way he described how he found it:

"I walked up Apple Creek. . . where I found water so high I could not get across. So I walked along until I found a tree fallen from bank to bank and crossed on that. I cut a tree and carried it to the fallen log. But to get across this time I had to tie the tree to my neck and crawl on hands and feet. People looked at me with considerable curiosity when I walked thru town with my tree."

Adept with scissors, Imgard cut his own paper ornaments and a local tinsmith fashioned a shiny star for the top.

And thus—the first Christmas tree in America.

Something New... Fuzzless Peaches

The old expression fuzzy as a peach may be as outdatel as grandma's bustle soon.

Some of the peach growers and shippers in New Jersey are preparing their peaches for market with a new look. The skin of the peach is nice and smooth similiar to that of a nectarine, reports Dr. Melvin Smith, Auburn Extension fruit and vegetable marketing specialist.

Actually, the peach hasn't changed. It still come off the tree fuzzy. But the method of preparation for market is different. After grading the peaches are run through a scrubbing and brushing process which removes the fuzz. Drying and refrigeration follow.

Dr. Smith says that the fuzzless peach has good prospects at the market because housewives will likely accept the new skin eagerly.

Will You Give Yule Gifts . . . Or Goofs?

Believe it or not, paying the bills is not the chief Yuletime bugaboo among most men, according to a poll recently made by a New York advertising agency.

More annoying to these men, it turns out, is the problem of what to do with unwanted gifts — shirts of the wrong size, expensive shavers that don't shave closely, or mechanical gadgets that don't work. Whether it is returned to the store or gathers dust on the shelf an ill-chosen present hardly reflects favorably on the giver's good taste and judgement.

Then what should you give men for Christmas? Gifts that you know they can use, say the pollsters. Items named include a useful aid for his favorite hobby, a long-lasting supply of super-sharp razor blades, a gift certificate to a convenient store, or a subscription to a well-liked magazine. With such gifts, he'll have reason to think of you gratefully every time he uses them.

Will your Christmas shopping for men produce valued gifts — or goofs? One thing is sure: it depends less on how much you spend and more on how much thought you give to his needs and wants.

There were 8,000 tractors in Alabama in 1940. There are more than 75,000 at the present time.

NOT ADVISEABLE—

If You Want To Earn Less Later Quit School Now

"Don't allow Christmas Holiday jobs to lure you into quitting high school", Ralph R. Williams, Director of the Alabama Department of Industrial Relations, stressed to teen-agers today.

Williams said that the decision to quit high school can cost a young person thousands of dollars in future earnings. He based this statement on a recent study, just released, showing that young people who drop out of high school earn less than graduates, have to take less skilled jobs, and have higher rates of unemployment.

This study was made of the early work experience of high chool drop-outs and graduates who terminated their schooling between 1952 and 1957. Four thousand youths were interviewed in seven communities across the nation. The study revealed that differences in earnings tends to become greater as years out of school increase reflecting better basic education and promotion potential of graduates.

The study shows 15 percent of the male drop-outs were earning less than $40 a week, as compared with only 13 percent of the graduates. A weekly salary of $80 or more was being earned by 31 percent of the graduates, but only by 20 percent of the boys who had quit school before completing their high school studies.

"Girls are also similarly affected Williams said. Nearly 40 percent of all girl drop-outs earned less than $40 a week, compared with 14 percent of the graduates. Nearly half the girl graduates were in the $50 to $79 wage bracket, while only 16 percent of the drop-outs were in this category.

Williams also stresses that unemployment among the boys was three times greater for drop-outs than for graduates, and among the girls, it was four times greater. Boy graduates received the skilled and semi-skilled jobs whereas drop-outs were employed as service or unskilled workers. Girl graduates were employed mostly in offices, whereas drop-outs were more likely to be employed as waitresses or other unskilled work.

The survey showed that dissatisfaction with school, such as being bored with school subjects and dislike of teachers was the single major reason given by boys and girls for dropping out of school. Marriage was the second reason for the girls and "to go to work" was the second reason for the boys.

Williams cautions high school and college students that the coming decade promises a great challenge in industrial and technological advancement, but will require more education, skill, and training on the part of those entering the labor force.

4-H And FFA Boys Receive Seedlings

Chilton County 4-H Clubs and FFA Chapters received 32 thousand pine seddlings from the Coosa River Newsprint Company. These seedlings were grown this year in the Company's modern tree nussery near Childersburg.

The purpose of the planting program is to aid in the reforestation of idle and poorly stocked timberlands and to encourage the practice of good forestry by small landowners.

Mr. H. B. Starks, District Forester. is in charge of seeding distribution in Chilton County. He also directs landowner services and forest conservation activities in this area for the newsprint mill. Company foresters are available to instruct landowners in the proper care of seedlings and plantings methods.

Forest products constitute one of Chilton County's leading cash crops. This income can be greatly increased through tree planting, proper harvestisg methods and protection of woodlands from wild fire.

Future Farmers Plant Pine Seedlings

Future farmers throughout Alabama will be busy during the Christmas school viciation planting pine seedlings, T. L. Faulkner State FFA Advisor said today.

Last year the young foresters planted 3,472,000 trees which added nearly 3,500 acres of growing timber ot Alabama's forests. Plantings by individual chapters ranged up to over 100,000 trees.

The State Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the State Department of Conservation, Division of Forestry is supplying 1,500,000 seedlings to FFA'ers this year, an increase of 500,000 over previous years. With this number and those supplied by pulp & paper companies from their own nurserys, the future farmers are out to surpass last year's planting.

Faulkner says that seedlings are one of the most important productive projects in a boy's supervised farming program which is part of his vocational agriculture training.

County Sales in November for Chilton totaled $36,288 bringing the County's sales to date this year to $286,755. This year's goal was $269. 00.

CEDAR SPRINGS

Bro. Sam Connell, Pastor
Preaching 11 a.m.

Health of this community is good at present. Of which we are most thankful.

We had a wonderful service at the church Sunday and Sunday night. If you missed them you missed a wonderful blessing. Bro. Cinnell preached a wonderful message at both services. Sunday his text was, Keep The Pipe Line Unstopped.

We wish everyone could have heard it So many things can get in the pipe line that leads from earth to Glory. And God can't hear our prayer, the pipe is stopped up. We all know by our sink how easy it is for some small particle to get in the pipe that don't amount to much in the beginning, but other things pass that way and hang to the particle that was already there. Soon the pipe is completely stopped and everything that you try to get through will come right back up. The same will happen when the spiritual pipe line gets clogged, our prayers want go very high. They will hit us back in our face unanswered.

We appreciate a man like Bro. Connell. If you are hunting some one to sooth thinghs over and compromise with sin you had beter not hear him. But his messages are like parents whipping their children. it hurts, but it does good.

We were glad of our visitors at both services. We had Mr. and Mrs. Tom Blankenship from Bessemer and Mrs. Hollis Ellison and daughter with us and invite them and everyone to be with us at all times.

There is some that will read this that probably want be living next week. Remember to celebrate Christmas in the right way. Give your heart to God if you haven't aready done so. I hope and pray that everyone that reads this will be back on their jobs next week.

Quality Better Than Quantity In Dairy Herd Say Experts

Big profits in dairying are not always dependent upon the member of cows in the dairy herd.

Production per cow is a much better measure of production efficiency. John Parrish, Auburn Extension dairyman, says that recent research figures show that cows producing 7,194 pounds of milk annually return the owner about $47 a year profit after expenses while a 11,654-pound producer may return as much as $208 profit for the year.

Each farm has a fixed cost of production, and a certain number cows are needed to pay the operation cost, Parrish says. But the above figures prove that dairymen can expect more profit from high producing cows.

State's Unemployment Continues Decline

"Jobless totals in Alabama continued to soar during November as reflected by heavy increases in the number of unemployment compensation claims and payments," Ralph R. Williams, Director of the Alabama Department of Industrial Relations, stated today.

Williams said that during November, initial claims for unemployment insurance totalled 23,541. The current figure marked an increase of seven percent over October and a gain of 11 percent over November, 1959. The largest increase from last month occurred in Mobile, where the claims load was swelled by layoffs in shipyards, paper manufacturing and construction. Seasonal curtailment in food products, textiles and apparel manufacturing contributed to the upswing in other sections of the state. The only significant reduction occurred in Gadsden, where the October claims load was inflated by layoffs in the steel industry.

The number of weeks claimed showed an increase of 23 percent to 142,497 in November as against 115, 545 in October. Compared with November a year ago. weeks claimed were up 27 percent. More than one-third of the gain over October was reflected in reports from Ensley, Birmingham, and Bessemer, Williams pointed out.

The amount of payments issued in November ($2,534,276) was about half a million dollars above the October level and some $700 thousands above November, 1959. Approximately 35,400 persons drew unemployment insurance during the month. The size of average checks for a week of total unemployment was $24.12, marking an increase of 42 cents over October.

A 20 percent increase in the number of payments issued brought the November level to 107,323 as compared with 89,788 the previous month.

PINE CONE LEGEND

ONCE UPON a time-according to a Haarz Mountain legend — a poor miner's wife was gathering pine cones in the forest. It was just before Christmas, her husband was ill, and there was no money in the house for food. So, she gathered the cones and sold them to the villagers for kindling — obtaining enough for the days necessities.

One morning while she was looking for such cones, a little imp jumped out of a huge fir tree.

"Here, here are the biggest driest cones of all! Take these, he shrieked jumping up and down excitedly.

Suddenly, there was such a shower of cones that the poor woman was frightened. She tried to run away, but could not move until the little imp had filled her basket. And having started home, the basket grew heavier and heavier—she wished theimp hadn't disappeared he might have helped her.

When she finally reachel her hut she called the children to help carry the basket inside. Emptying the basket, they found that every cone was solid silver.'

Commemorating these legendary silver cones gilded pine cones are sold in modern stores, to decorate our home —to burn and crackle gaily in our Christmas fires.

ABUNDANT LIFE

HOW YOU CAN RELEASE GOD'S POWER

You have within you, this very moment, the means of releasing God's power into your own life.

If you will take three simple steps, I promise you that a new experience will be yours—not once but many, many times.

First, mentally accept the fact that it can be done and that you can do it! Don't be like those people who never release God's power into their lives because they don't believe they can. Not to try is an awful sin. Not to try is to rob God of His power to help you.

Remember, you will never be able to release God's power for your salvation, for your physical and mental healing, for the help you need most when you face life's storms—never—unless you want to. Instead of wishing, cooperate with your desires. Translate your wants into action.

Second, harmonize what you want God's power to do for you with what the Bible promises you can have in this life. Study the promises of God. Mark them in your Bible as you read them. Think of them in the light of what Jesus did for people while He was on earth and through His disciples.

Learn the will of God for your life by studying the acts of Jesus and the acts of the people in the Bible. When you want something, measure its worth according to the way you believe it will honor God and bless others.

Third, practice the Golden Rule, or the law of, unselfishness. Always judge your desires by this rule.

The Bible teaches clearly that God "healeth all our diseases and forgiveth all our iniquities." It is His good pleasure to give us the kingdom, for He said, "Beloved, I wish above all things that thou mayest prosper and be in health, even as thy soul prospereth" (3 John 2).

You have the power within you to release God's power. Know what you want. Translate your wants into action. Let God have a chance to meet your needs. You have the power to release God's power this very instant.

Common Winter Plants Cause Cattle Deaths In County

Wintertime is often a mysterious cattle-dying time.

More reports are received about cattle deaths from no apparent reason during the winter months than at any other time, says Bob Farquhar, Auburn Extension cattle and sheep marketing specialist.

Farquhar has the following explanation as one possible cause of these deaths which occur with no obvious accompanying symptoms.

When grazing begins to get sparse and cattle begin searching harder for forage, they become less choosey about the plants they eat. And often they come in contact with poisonous plants, especially if they have access to wooded areas.

A few of the more common plants known to be poisonous to cattle are bracken fern, wild cherry, buckeye, mountain laurel, wild hydrangea or sevenbark, mistletoe, water hemlock, white snakeroot, chinaberries, and ground ivy.

Cattle symptoms from eating poisonous plants can vary from trembles or staggers to immediate death, the cattle specialist says. Internal poisoning is usually accompanied by a craving for water, and often cattle will be fond dead near a watering area.

Since prevention is by far more effective than treatment, Farquhar recommends that farmers check any suspected areas before cattle have time to do much browsing. Wooded areas known to contain poisonous plants should be fenced off. Or if only a few of the poisonous plants exists, they can be dug out and destroyed.

Many affected animals can be saved, the Auburn cattlemen adds. A veterinarian can often administer effective medication if he is called in time.

The new plastic is winter protection for pansy plants. Streach the plastic over the pansies and fasten at the edges to prevent it from blowing of. Once or twice during the winter lift the edge of the plastic to let in fresh air, then refasten.

No Holiday For These Ladies!

That "Merry Christmas" you plan to telephone Aunt Elvira on Christmas may get through quicker if you call early, W. R. Waters, Office Manager of Southern Bell said today.

Each year, more and more calls are made at Christmas as more people own more phones and make use of them, he said. This nation-wide pattern will account for some of the heavy Christmas telephone traffic.

17 operators will be working here on December 25 to handle Christmas calls, Mr. Waters said. Even so, some calls made at peak rush hours could be delayed.

Mr. Waters suggested that you call early and escape the peak hours and have a better chance of completing your call.

Dial direct whenever possible. Calling by number also saves time by eliminating a call to Information. If you know the area code for the place you're calling, give it to the operator.

If the number doesn't answer, place the call again later. This is better than waiting for the operator to try the call, as you call again when you want to talk.

If you place the call with an operator, call station to station. If it's certain the person called will be at home, you'll save time and money, Mr. Waters said.

Be sure you dial correctly. Have the number written down.

Christmas Wish

I like to think that there will be On Christmas Day, around each tree,
A feeling of the presence of
The Child God sent us with His love;
That there, beside each girl
and boy,
He'll be, to witness all their joy.
I like to think that all the while
The gifts unfold, I'll see Him smile;
And that He'll hear our caroling
And know it's for the thanks we bring To God the Father, for His birth,
To be among us here on O' may we have our Christmas gay,
But not forget that it's His day:
Let's let the lord Jesus share in it —
Let's have a bit of prayer in it.

NEW SAFETY PATROL FOR TRUCKERS

The Alabama Council of Safety Supervisors has formed a Cooperative Safety Patrol, another project in its campaign to promote highway safety in Alabama and to provide a service to Alabama truck owners.

Council Chairman M. C. Harrison Birmingham, said E. L. Colburn, Safety Supervisor of Jack Cole Company, has been named Chief of the Patrol.

Objective of the Safety Patrol, Harrison said, is to provide a means of observing and reporting on the actions of drivers employed by motor carriers and will supplement the truck owner's supervision of his equipment while on city streets and highways of Alabama. It is a service which the operator often cannot provide on his own.

The truck owner will receive by mail the observation reports, with courteous and safe driving emphasized as well as violations of rules of the road.

Other activities of the Patrol include a Holiday Patrol, Driver of the Month and Driver of the Year programs, educational courses for fleet maintenance and safety personnel.

The Council is the safety arm of the Alabama Trucking Association of which Leroy Osborne, Sr., Birmingham, is president.

11,000 Cows In County

St. Clair Beef Industry Progresses

By BRUCE JETTON

THERE are 600 farmers and 221 4-H Club members producing beef cattle commercially in St. Clair County, according to Farm Agent H. L. Eubanks.

Eubanks says there are 11,000 brood cows in the county, most being in commercial herds. However, there are about a dozen purebred breeders and most cattlemen use a purebred bull, the agent explained.

The major objectives of the Extension Service and other agricultural agencies concerning beef cattle include improvement of breeding stock and better feeding management, says Eubanks. And the capable county agent and his assistants, Joe Yates and W. D. Jackson, are trying to interest more beef producers in carrying over calves to the heavier weights. "They can then sell them as stockers or fatten them out in the feed lot and get the advantage of the better prices paid for the quality beef," Eubanks stated. And he pointed out that more farmers are becoming interested in carrying cattle over, about two dozen feeding out some steers this winter.

"Fred Blaxton is one of our cattlemen conducting a demonstration on feeding out steers this winter," said Eubanks. "He plans to fatten out 12 head for his first try at this phase of the beef cattle business."

Blaxton, who operates a 550-acre farm on Ashville Rt. 2, has 120 brood cows and heifers in his commercial herd and 23 registered Polled Hereford cows and calves plus three registered bulls. He is in the process of building up his purebred herd and will maintain his commercial herd.

Eubanks explained that Blaxton is like many of the cattlemen in the county in that he has changed over to beef from cotton because of the reduced allotments and shortage of labor. With 240 acres of open land, his only row crop is 35 acres of corn. The corn, which is fed to the livestock on the place, made 40 bushels per acre despite dry weather during the season. "The nitrogen I put under the corn made it," declared Blaxton.

Blaxton also explained that the drouth cut his hay crop by about half this past summer. With about 180 acres in pastures and hay crops, Blaxton put up around 8,000 bales of hay last year as compared with 4,500 bales this year. He says he usually gets three cuttings in addition to grazing. With a good fertilization program, he will leave the cattle on for three weeks and then take them off for four weeks before cutting a hay crop.

When Blaxton was visited recently he was busy planting the last 10 acres of his 25-acre oat crop. The oats are grazed during the fall and winter and then cut in the dough stage for hay. And the cattleman reports that he put up almost 1,000 bales of oat hay last spring. All hay and grain produced on the place are fed to the livestock, and Blaxton says he is usually able to produce all the feed he needs. And with his expanding herd size he is getting ready to clear additional pasture land.

According to Eubanks, Blaxton does a good job of fertilizing his crops and pastures. A stockholder in a chemical company, he uses about 15 tons of fertilizer a year, all being applied according to recommendations.

Blaxton says he was born on a farm and has been on the present place for 20 years. He was employed in public works until about two years ago when he started farming full time.

The St. Clair County Cattlemen's Association, of which Blaxton is now president, has 43 members and is doing a good job of promoting the cattle industry, according to Eubanks. "They help sponsor the county fat stock show with the Extension Service and the Farm Bureau and have been active in promoting disease and insect control measures among cattlemen."

Fred Blaxton, St. Clair County beef cattleman, was busy planting the last of his 25-acre oat crop when this picture was made. The Ashville Rt. 2 farmer, right, is shown discussing the feed situation with County Agent H. L. Eubanks.

RESULTS from Auburn University Agricultural Experiment Station

WINTER FEEDING CALVES. Corn silage fed free choice plus a supplement of two pounds of ground ear corn and one and one-half pounds of cottonseed meal per head daily has been an excellent ration for wintering growing calves. Sorghum and oat silages were less satisfactory. When cost of grain is considered, sorghum silage was better than hay for the young animals. Although stocker calves make satisfactory gains on oat grazing, these gains may be more expensive than those made on other feeds.

COTTON FERTILIZATION. Fertilizing and liming each cotton field according to soil test results would benefit most Alabama cotton farmers. Of the 7,524 samples tested for cotton in 1960, liming should have increased yields on 48 percent of fields. Amount of phosphate and potash needed was the same as general recommendations on only 27 percent of samples. More was needed for 22 percent and less phosphate and potash was needed for 51 percent than that called for in general recommendations.

SWEETPOTATO VARIETIES. Some of the new sweetpotato varieties rate careful consideration. In Auburn tests, the new variety, Centennial, has shown promise. It produced good yields with a high percentage of No. 1 potatoes. In baking and processing qualities, Centennial rated higher than Porto Rico, Goldrush, Allgold, and other well-known varieties.

PEANUT SEED TREATMENTS. Tests during the past five years at the Wiregrass Substation have shown the effectiveness of several chemical protectants in controlling seed-borne and certain soil-borne diseases of peanuts. Effective protectants are listed with application rate per 100 pounds of seed: two percent Ceresan, two to three ounces; Panogen 15, two and one-fourth to three fluid ounces; Metasan E, one ounce; Orthocide 75, three to four ounces; and Arasan 75, two to three ounces.

APPLE DISEASE CONTROL. Pruning out and burning blighted twigs, fruit spurs, dead wood, and cankers is essential to control fireblight, black rot, and bitter rot. These prunings, along with mummied apples, are sources of primary infection in the spring. Fungicidal sprays frequently fail to control certain apple diseases because orchards are not pruned properly.

CLOSET ARRANGEMENT. Correct heights for rods and shelves in clothes closets give best use of space. The proper height for the rod is six inches higher than the length of longest garment, including its hanger. A space of two and one-half inches is needed between the rod and shelf above. Shelving can be continued to the ceiling, spacing no wider than is needed for items stored. With rod and shelving adjustable for children's closets, height can be changed as children grow taller.

HOME CONVENIENCES. Houses in rural areas are becoming more like those in cities. However, rural homes generally lag behind urban ones in modern facilities. In a survey of 655 rural residents in Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, and South Carolina, it was found that 96 percent had electricity; 39 percent, telephones; 87 percent, refrigerators; and 64 percent, washing machines. Only 43 percent had water heaters. Two out of five did not have piped running water.

Ways To Combat Cost-Price Squeeze

Tips To Farmers Given By Extension Specialists

ALABAMA farmers must do everything possible during 1961 to combat the cost-price squeeze that faces them. But what can they do?

Well, there are several things as you can see from the following comments by various Auburn University Extension Service specialists. These observations were made after carefully studying the farm outlook and comparing it with the farm production cycles. A farmer or producer in any of these areas will be wise to give consideration to this information from these experts.

Test Soil

Concerning the soil, which is the origin of all plant growth, Extension agronomist J. C. Lowery says that before planting any crop in 1961 soil tests should be made to determine the kind and amount of fertilizer and lime that is needed for each crop. A soil test takes the guesswork out of applying fertilizer and lime. "Follow the slogan, Don't Guess, Soil Test," says Lowery. "Test recommendations should be followed carefully," he adds.

Buy Good Seed

Another important factor in establishing any crop is to use high quality seed of known origin and performance, says Melvin Moorer, also an agronomist with the Extension Service. "This is one of the best ways of decreasing production costs and increasing net income. A good insurance for farmers is to buy Alabama Certified Seed. By doing this, the needed information is on the tag," says Moorer.

Moorer also advises farmers to buy their seed supply as soon as possible. This way the farmer can be sure of getting high quality seed. There is a possibility of a great shortage in cotton seed this year, he warns. So farmers should plan ahead and purchase their seed supply now.

Control Weeds

In producing pasture and forage crops for our livestock—a big need on most Alabama Cattle farms—Agronomist O. N. Andrews says that fertilizing and controlling weeds in clover-grass permanent pastures is important. Also it would help farmers to increase coastal burmuda and alfalfa acreage. More corn or other high quality silage along with more millet and other summer temporary grazing crops are needed for cows.

Keep Records

Charles Maddox, farm management specialist, says every farmer should strive to keep better records. "By doing this he will have a clearer picture of his business and will know better how to manage his farm. He will know which part of his operation is going in the red and his records will help him in correcting his mistakes," explained Maddox.

Forage For Cows

In the field of dairying, John Parrish advises every dairyman to produce high quality forage. "He should be sure to sell his maximum quota of milk during his base period," says the dairy specialist. "A proper milking schedule should be followed which will increase production. Extreme care should be given in proper handling of every animal and all equipment. Proper sanitation procedures should be followed to avoid any loss resulting from rejected milk by the plant. Last but definitely not least, every dairyman should follow every precaution to control mastitis," according to Parrish.

Beef Performance Testing

For the beef producer, Beef Cattle Specialist J. H. Sellers has these things to say. "Beef producers should take the guesswork out of raising beef cattle. Establishing a performance testing program will help them to do this. By having such a program, each cow's performance will be known. Farmers will know the average daily gain of each animal as well as the herd's average, explains Sellers. "This information is very helpful in purchasing a herd bull because they can secure one that will increase their herd's average daily gain. Also, test results can be used as guides to cull cows and in determining what heifers to keep for replacements."

Sellers went on to say that there are two important traits in performance testing—rate of gain and conformation. They are separate qualities, according to the specialist. And one animal may have one and not the other. The ideal thing is to select animals with both qualities.

Save More Pigs

To make a profit from hogs, G. B. Phillips, animal industry specialist, says every producer should set a goal of saving, raising, and selling at least 16 top hogs from each sow in 1961.

To do so, Phillips says that a producer should start off with a good breeding stock. "The farmer should practice feeding methods as determined by the lastest research findings." He also stresses the importance of using farrowing facilities to prevent baby pig losses. "And a producer should do a good job of managing at all times," declares Phillips.

Forestry Facts Available

In the field of forestry, Ivan Martin says each timber producer should take advantage of the free information on marketing. The Extension forester points out that valuable help can be received from county agents and forestry agencies. By doing this, the forestryman will know the market trends and can strive to get the highest dollar value for his product.

Poultry Management

Jim Hubbard tells the poultryman to do the best possible job of flock management. This includes such things as proper sanitation, better ventilation, and supplemental heat. "By doing a better job in these areas," Hubbard says, "the producers can help reduce contamination at processing plants which is due largely to respiratory diseases.

The Extension poultryman advises egg producers to develop better production efficiency such as a higher rate of laying along with higher quality eggs. Better feed conversion and a lower rate of hen mortality should be sought.

Outlook For 1961

By FOY HELMS

Extension Economist

AGRICULTURE as a whole in 1961 will again not fare as well as the rest of the economy. The cost-price squeeze will still be on, and many farmers will find it difficult to make money under these conditions. Despite this possibility, yields will produce again at a record rate if farmers have average weather or better.

Some feel that we may experience some difficulty in avoiding a rather serious recession in 1961. With the factors added up, however, it now appears that on the whole the economy will continue to operate at a record level.

It now seems clear that the contribution of federal, state and local governments to economic activity will be much greater than last year. Expenditures in this area will continue to rise as they have in the past. This involves a further increase of some three to four billion dollars over the past year. There is also some added strength expected in the highway program.

In the business investment sector, it seems likely that some improvement will occur in residential construction. New housing starts have declined sharply and have almost reached the decade low. Purchase terms have been made easier and mortgage funds have become more readily available. However, with vacancy rates and multiple housing units presently higher than a year ago, residential construction is likely to be quite moderate.

Much of the uncertainty as to the immediate future stems from the inventory sector. With inventory sales higher than a year ago, an easier supply situation, and a relatively stable price prospect, there may well be some further reductions in the level of inventories in the coming months. But they should not be prolonged. It seems that most of the impact from a changing inventory situation is already behind us.

In summary, consumer buying will likely be the strengthening force in the period ahead. It looks like 1961 will be a fairly good year for business as a whole.

The story is a bit different for the farmer. He is going to find it somewhat tougher in 1961 than he has in most recent years. There are two main reasons for this point of view. The volume of farm marketings ran about three percent above 1959 last year and may increase further in 1961 if growing conditions are again average or better. Furthermore, the prospective increase in marketings of cattle and hogs could lead to some further decline in cattle prices and possibly a greater than seasonal reduction in prices of hogs in the fall months.

The outlook for the Alabama farmer is a little brighter than the overall prospect seems to indicate. Cotton is a good example. According to the records, supplies of cotton now on hand cannot be considered at all burdensome. If, as indicated, the August 1 carryover is around seven million bales, prices farmers actually receive for good quality cotton may be higher than the support price. This will be an unusual experience.

The expected disappearance of cotton supports the view that we no longer have an oversupply. Domestic consumption is expected to approach nine million bales next year, and exports may be as high as six million. If this happens, the economy in this country may feel the need for an

For A Happy Holiday

For a merry Christmas and a happy New Year, drivers and pedestrians alike should remember the three c's: care, caution and courtesy. They're especially needed during the holiday season when crowds are large and many people are preoccupied with what to get Aunt Minnie.

So:

For motorists:

1. Stay alert when driving in congested holiday traffic.
2. Slow down at night.
3. Keep your headlights and taillights clean.
4. Be especially alert for careless pedestrians.
5. Always have your windshield clear. Keep packages off the back shelf so you have an unobstructed view.

For pedestrians:

1. Pretend the driver doesn't see you and take precautions accordingly.
2. Cross only at intersections and with traffic lights.
3. Look both ways before crossing streets—even one-way thoroughfares.
4. Don't carry packages so high that they obscure your vision.
5. Don't dash into the street to get a taxi. Another vehicle may get you.

Vital Papers Seen A Key to Survival

Suppose a great many vital records, including those safeguarding your property title, were suddenly lost.

It could happen in the destruction caused by a nuclear attack on the United States. The vital records of many States and localities could be wiped out. The loss of records would hamper recovery. Many persons would have trouble proving ownership of property.

To guard against such loss of vital records, governments must take steps to preserve two classes of records:

Those essential for emergency operations — succession lists, personal and material inventories.

Those essential to protect the rights and interests of individuals—vital statistics (birth records), property deeds, voting records, constitutions or charters.

Governments which prepare now to preserve their records could reorganize faster and serve their citizens after attack.

To all our many friends who've been so dear,
And to our many customers so loyal,
We wish you all the best of luck and cheer;
And happiness to make your Christmas royal!

4-H Clothing Projects Are Challenging

By Jeanne Priester
Clothing Specialist

BLUE ribbons, medals, and expense-paid trips to the state and national 4-H conferences—those dreams will come true for some of Alabama's 55,000 4-H girls who are carrying a clothing project this year.

And January is the month for mothers and daughters to put their heads together and start selecting patterns and materials and to begin thinking about accessories for those exciting revues coming up in the early spring.

Each year local apron, skirt, and dress revues are held on the same day. And blue ribbon winners are selected to enter the revues on the county level. Ten- to 14-year-olds participate in the county apron and skirt revues while the older girls compete in the county dress revue. And even though there is only one actual winner from each county, each girl who models her own dress, skirt, apron, or suit is a winner in her own way because she adds to her creative ability the additional skill of making a garment.

County 10- to 14-year-old winners are awarded prizes, but the older girls are award a trip to the state 4-H conference held in Auburn in July among other things. At Auburn, the district eliminations are held and from these eight district winners—two from each district—the state dress revue winner is chosen. Her reward is an all-expense-paid trip to the national 4-H congress held in Chicago every year.

Also, another state winner is chosen to go to Chicago in the clothing field—this one in clothing achievement. She is selected on the basis of outstanding projects listed in her record book.

The eight district winners also model their garments during the Alabama State Fair in Birmingham. This is a two-day, all-expense-paid trip which includes television and personal appearances.

The clothing phase of 4-H Club work is challenging as well as exciting. Girls have the satisfaction of modeling and wearing the garments they have made in addition to saving a tremendous amount of money.

The 1960 district dress revue winners are shown at the Alabama State Fair modeling dresses they made themselves. They are, left to right, Iva Kate Hall, Montgomery County; Freda Channell, Tuscaloosa; Betty Farrington, Tallapoosa; Carolyn Christopher, Limestone; Mary Cordes, Shelby, second place state winner; Beatrice Williams, Mobile; Alma Arant, Coosa, state winner; and Mary Ellen Wilkinson, Morgan County.

Last year's state dress revue winner was Alma Arant of Coosa County. After this talented 4-H'er won the state title, she created a floor length gown of white peau 'de soie and chantilly lace for only $19.93 to wear in the national revue in Chicago. If she had gone out to buy the same dress, it would have cost over $100. Alma is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Arant of Equality.

Tempt Your Family With Citrus Fruits

By Anne Patterson

THE citrus fruit season is here again. Oranges, grapefruit, tangerines, and tangelos—grocery stores are overflowing with these wonderful fruits.

The orange crop is predicted to be three percent above last year despite losses due to Hurricane Donna, according to Dorothy Overbey, Extension consumer education specialist. Grapefruit supplies will be about the same. And the tangerine crop should be 50 percent above last year. Also abundant this year are tangelos—a cross between a tangerine and a grapefruit—which are increasing in importance as a citrus crop.

Citrus fruits, so high in vitamin C, are a pleasant and effective medicine in fighting colds. And since everybody needs a certain amount of vitamin C every day, a tangerine or orange as a morning or afternoon snack will easily fill the bill.

PATTERSON

These colorful fruits are not only good eaten whole as snacks but are delicious in fruit cups, in salads, as juice, in breads, and as desserts.

When buying citrus fruit, look for fruit that is firm and heavy for its size for best flavor and maximum juice. Fruit should be free of soft or mold spots to avoid spoilage and to insure fresh flavor. And the fruit should have a tight fitting, fine textured skin, insuring plenty of juice, except for tangerines which should have a thin, loose skin with a slightly bumpy surface.

Good quality citrus fruit, except tangerines, will keep for several days at room temperature, but refrigerator storage is best for longer periods. Avoid freezing or very warm temperatures.

So this season, why not tempt your family with citrus fruits prepared in these unusual ways.

Broiled Grapefruit

1 grapefruit
2 tablespoons brown sugar or honey

Select a large, well-shaped grapefruit. Cut in half. Cut around each section and remove center. Spread brown sugar or honey over each half. Broil, watching closely until sugar or honey melts and edge of grapefruit turns a delicate brown. Serve at once.

Cattlemen Seek Profits

Feed Cattle To Larger Weights

By Bob Farquhar
Beef Cattle Specialist

ALABAMA cattlemen are becoming more interested in feeding out cattle every year. And two factors this fall—the normal seasonal low calf prices plus a good corn crop—helped influence a few more.

And more cattlemen showed more interest in this phase of beef production. Cool-season grazing crops during the fall and winter months followed by a dry-lot grain feeding period the next spring is a money-making combination that is raising Alabama's beef income each year. Many farmers are now finding out that beef income can be tremendously increased by following this system without enlarging cattle numbers and farm acreage.

FARQUHAR

This system of beef production has been successfully proved at five agricultural substations located all over Alabama. This study has shown that calves weighing approximately 400 to 450 pounds can be wintered on about three-quarters of an acre of cool season grazing. They will gain from 1.25 to 1.5 pounds per day during this time.

This grazing period may be replaced with a corn silage feeding period and obtain similar results. Usually the expense of getting into silage feeding will require 100 or more tons with a steer program. This amount should feed 50 to 60 steers. Cost of gain with either method is one of the attractive points of this program. Research information has shown that steers in the above weight bracket will put on a pound of beef at a cost of approximately 10 to 12 cents. The 200 to 250 pounds gain on grazing or silage will be raised in grade from Utility and Standard to Good and Choice. Feeding cost during the feed lot period will probably run about 20 to 22 cents per pound. No one can foretell what finished cattle will bring next summer, but a good guess will certainly be more than 22 cents a pound.

Profit has been made usually in three different ways with such a steer grazing and feeding program. Steers bought during the fall and sold as finish cattle the next summer usually are three to four cents higher; thus giving a profit on the original weight bought. Gains made on grazing or silage at 10 to 12 cents will sell at finished beef prices when these cattle are carried into the feed lot. Usually a profit margin can be made by doing a good job of feeding while in the feed lot. Research has shown that over a six- to eight-year period of time $45 to as high as $96 profit returns to labor has been made per steer.

This margin of profit, of course, has been made with good management. Good management with this phase of beef production includes such things as growing ample cool season grazing and having a "watchful eye" during the feeding period. All steers should be treated for external and internal parasites, dehorned, revaccinated, and checked for castration slips when the cattle are first started on this phase of production.

When more cattlemen in Alabama carry over these lightweight fall calves, our beef program will be much improved because we then will be selling more of the beef now demanded by the consuming public. Why ship these calves to the midwestern feeder and buy them back allowing him to make the profit when it can be put into the pockets of Alabama cattlemen?

FARM BUREAU OFFICERS RE-ELECTED—Walter L. Randolph (center) of Fayette and Montgomery, was elected to his 21st year as president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation at the 39th annual convention in Mobile, November 13-16. Re-elected for two-year terms as first and second vice president, respectively, were James D. Hays, Huntsville Rt. 4, Madison County (right), and H. H. Knowles, Headland Rt. 3, Houston County. Both have served since 1946.

Quail food: Dan W. Speake, assistant leader of the Alabama Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit, has made a study of quail food consumption at the Piedmont substation. He finds that corn, vetch, grass seed and insects, wild legumes and pine mast made up almost 80 percent of the food eaten during October-November in a three-year period. In December, these foods made up only 41 percent of the diet. In January-February, the percentage increased to 45 percent. However, in December bicolor lespedeza made up 38 percent of quail food, and in January-February, 26 percent. In January-February, partridge peas accounted for 19 percent. The point here is that bicolor lespedeza and partridge peas become important on the Alabama game bird dinner table in late winter when other foods have been eaten or have rotted!

About guns: There has always been a big battle between riflemen and the best type gun. Some prefer the bolt action, some the pump, some the lever, and the remainder the autoloading rifle. I don't think things have changed much in the past 30 years—the period I've hunted. The pump (or slide action), the lever (used by the TV westerner—the old thutty-thutty), and the autoloader are much faster than the bolt action gun in rapid firing. But what is seen most on the rifle range? The bolt action. It will take the most powerful loads; it is simple and will keep on firing even with grit in the action, and it is the most accurate! Firing rate of bolt action is slow, but if you can't make the first shot count, why worry about trying to hit the target with a half dozen rapid shots? If I can't drop my game with one shot, I might as well give him his well-deserved freedom. I've learned that by experience! I'll take the bolt gun and I'll also go along with the single shot .22 rifle with the "loading well." You simply drop your bullet in the well and shove the bolt home. I have a single shot rifle I can fire as rapidly as I can a couple of bolt action repeaters I own.

Bobcats: For a number of years outdoorsmen have been condemning bobcats as detrimental to game populations. Although recent research reveals that as much as 80 percent of the bobcat's diet consists of rabbits, there is little or no data to substantiate the belief that bobcats kill large numbers of deer or wild turkeys. During the past 15 years in my turkey hunting haunts, I have noticed plenty of bobcat signs, yet the turkey population appears to be plentiful every season.

Fishing and the moon: Old timers swear by the moon and declare that fishing is governed by the "dark or light" of the moon. There is no substantial evidence to prove the belief is true. I have caught fish in new farm ponds when the fishing calendar said "stay home."

Fishing and skill: Research data is paving the way for better catches, but we will never be able to discount good fishing techniques. In one Michigan survey, a creel census of all fishermen on a stream revealed that four percent of the fishermen caught 40 percent of the fish!

Fishing and the barometer: Many anglers use the barometer as a guide to good and poor fishing. To them a rising barometer points to good fishing, yet research has not proved that such a rise indicates fishing success. This much is true, however, if the barometer is rising, you don't have to worry about bad weather!

Alabama Should Be Brucellosis Free

By Dr. Worth Lanier
Extension Veterinarian

THESE maps are a warning signal to Alabama cattlemen. They show how Alabama is rapidly becoming enclosed by states and areas that are modified certified free of brucellosis. Alabama, on the other hand, has made little progress toward such a status.

If we remain as we are, surrounding states will surely write laws into their regulations which would prevent Alabama cattle from entering. Alabama producers, especially those that depend on out-of-state markets, could suddenly find themselves practically out of business.

Causes Untold Losses

Research has shown that a good livestock operation cannot exist if a costly disease like brucellosis is present. Brucellosis causes untold losses in livestock through a variety of ways—aborted calves, weak calves, mastitis, and sterile females, to name a few. Complicated with other conditions, brucellosis can cause death or condemned carcasses.

LANIER

Effect on Man

Further, brucellosis is an infectious disease and is transmissable from animal to man. It is commonly known as undulant fever in man. It can be transmitted through milk, meat, and other animal products.

When we realize that in 1947 there were 6,821 human cases of brucellosis in the United States and only 924 cases in 1958, only 11 years later, we can see how the eradication program has helped to lower the occurrence. These are only the diagnosed reported cases.

A nationwide program was begun in 1954 to eradicate brucellosis in the United States. Alabama has probably progressed slower in this campaign than any other areas east of the Mississippi.

It is for this reason that we of the Extension Service feel that our livestock industry may be moving into a dangerous situation. The problems of financing any disease eradication program is always controversial. It now appears that state funds will be the only solution to the problem. Beginning July 1, 1962, federal funds that have previously been available with no restrictions will be allocated only on a matching basis with state funds.

Calfhood Vaccination

Veterinarians are currently doing calfhood vaccination work in all counties in Alabama. While calfhood vaccination alone cannot eliminate all infection and bring about county certification, it is of much value in the control of brucellosis.

Calves between the ages of four and eight months can be vaccinated against brucellosis with a good effectiveness. Research has shown that a good calfhood vaccination program will lower the infection in a herd where the disease is known to be present.

Another important consideration that would point up the importance of calfhood vaccination is the fact that at the present time an officially vaccinated animal can move freely into other states.

Sixty to 70 thousand calves are being vaccinated annually in Alabama. This includes dairy and beef calves. It is estimated that a minimum of 175 thousand beef calves alone are kept for replacements each year. So we can see that we are far short of a complete vaccination program.

At present all Alabama county agents are working hard to increase calfhood vaccinations in each county. There is no charge to the cattleman for the vaccine or for the veterinarian's services. Further information on this program can be obtained from the county agent.

▨ APPROVED FOR WORK TO BEGIN

County Certification

Once an effective vaccination program is under way, it is easier to work toward certification for the county. There is a definite procedure to follow in getting this certification.

The state brucellosis committee directs all programs of brucellosis control in Alabama. The chairman of this committee is James L. Lawson of Auburn.

In order for a program to start in any county, all interested and influential county groups must pass resolutions requesting that their county be included in the program. It should be emphasized that 100 percent of the cows in a county must be tested. Therefore there can be no dissenting cattle owners. The state veterinarian reports that up to now no court cases have been involved.

When a county is approved for testing, a quarantine is placed on county cattle. This quarantine will not stop the marketing of cattle. Its main purpose is to insure that all herds receive blood tests and that no new cattle are brought in without being tested.

When all testing is completed and provided there is less than one percent infection, the county can then be certified. This ultimate goal can be reached only through the full cooperation of all cattle owners.

If you are a cattleman, and the above picture of brucellosis infection in Alabama causes concern, talk it over with your neighbors and other interested people. If your county is not included in the free areas shown on the map, it will behoove every cattle producer in the county to see that work can start as soon as possible toward county certification.

We know that Alabama has made great strides in the production of livestock. Our environment is ideal for growing any type livestock. We must exert every effort to see that we don't lose a market for our breeding stock. Yes, it is later than you think.

YOU ...and your Destiny

Circular 573, Auburn University Extension Service

By Joyce Prescott

HOW challenging and enduring are the values by which we live and try to guide the children and youth of today?

Suppose we listed our five top values. If we took the time to do it, what would our spur of the moment ideas include?

According to Extension Family Life Specialist Elta Majors, such a list might include almost entirely the values involved in a feeling of security—materialistic values. Whatever values we listed would reflect things of greatest importance to us. They would represent the value system that gives our life its meaning and direction.

PRESCOTT

The specialist goes on to say that our need today as adults is not so much "to hitch our wagon to a star." It is, rather, to find in the distant horizon the stars which will always remain on true course and then follow them to reach our destiny. Our challenge is to help the young people of today find the stars by which they can be guided.

In the last fifty years we have seen tremendous changes in discoveries, transportation, communication, industry, and agriculture. Changes in morals, though less drastic, have been radical.

Learning to live with these changes, and yet determining the ideals and values which should remain constant, is not easy.

During the past year we have heard much of the Golden Anniversary White House Conference on Children and Youth. When President Eisenhower called the conference, he said that above everything else he wanted it to consider the goals, ideals, and values by which men live. In doing so he presented a great challenge and a most difficult job.

Miss Majors has written a new publication called "You and Your Destiny" for our older 4-H Club boys and girls and all older youth in Alabama. It is also for parents and adult leaders who work with youth groups, in an attempt to meet this need.

In her publication, which is Extension Circular 573, Miss Majors quotes Dr. Albert which he must never exchange for anything else."

Our youth of today are concerned with such questions as who am I, what am I here for, what am I becoming, and how can I become what I want to be? "You and Your Destiny" discusses these questions in the light of family background, and then goes on from there.

The circular brings out the fact that on the inside of each of us are two terrific forces, a negative and a positive one. The negative direction is controlled by forces such as resentment, hatred, anger, and bitterness, which tie us in knots. We free ourselves from them when we learn to control or replace such feelings with stronger ones.

The positive forces—good will, a forgiving spirit, accepting and responding to love, self-respect, a sense of gratitude, faith, hope, courage, and confidence—free us to live happily, richly and fully. Regardless of the reason, we cannot afford to be resentful. The price we pay is too high.

How will you reach your destiny? Quoting from the publication, "Learning to live in harmony with a God who loves, forgives, calls to a mission in life, and goes all the way with you is the first step in reaching your destiny. Have enough faith to trust until fear no longer exists. Assume that others love you, merit your love, that you were loved before ever you were born; then, love until there is no hate.

"By growing into your ideals, life can never rob you of them."

For a copy of "You and Your Destiny" call or visit your home demonstration agent's office. Young adults will find in it an inspiration for themselves. And adults who work with young people's groups, 4-H Club leaders, high school teachers, and others will find some valuable discussion material in it.

Start Year Off Right

Plan Your 1961 Family Budget Wisely

By Elizabeth Bryan
Home Management Specialist

MONEY is one of the most complicated problems that faces families. And no matter how big the income, most of us could use more of it. However, it's not really the size of the income, but how you use the dollars you have that matters!

Good use of money, wise spending, or whatever you prefer to call it, begins with a good money management plan. The new year presents the very best opportunity to develop one of these plans and put it to work for you.

BRYAN

A financial plan is a guide or pattern for the use of future family income. And the entire family should work together on it since it affects the whole family and it cannot work without the cooperation of every member. Developing the plan may seem hard at first. But it is well worth the trouble if it is suited to your family situation, if you stay with it long enough, and if you are willing to change it as the family situation changes.

Actually there are two plans to consider—the long-time plan and the annual plan. The long-time plan includes goals for the farm, the home, and the family; that is, the way you want things to be in five, ten, or twenty years.

The annual plan concerns the use of family funds for one year. And each yearly plan should be a step toward reaching the long-time goals.

The first step in developing the plan is to make a thorough analysis of your financial situation. Do you know what you are worth? The value of what you own? The exact amount of your debts?

After these questions have been answered, make a study of the things which your family spent money for last year.

Now you are ready to begin your annual plan. Here's what a good yearly plan might include.

1. What will next year's income be?

(Base farm income on estimates of past records or from an estimate of each enterprise. Include home income from such things as garden, dairy, and poultry products, and wages from off-farm work.)

2. How much will total fixed expenses be?

(Include insurance, taxes, debts, emergency funds, and savings. An adequate amount should be set aside here for an emergency fund which will cover those unexpected expenses that occur during the year and savings even though they are not actually expenses.)

3. How much will be needed for farm expenses?

(Study past farm records. Include all necessary improvements.)

4. How much will be needed for family living expenses?

(Include food, clothing, household operation, furnishings, equipment, transportation, recreation, education, medical care, and gifts.)

5. How much for personal allowances for family?

(Every member of the family needs some money to take care of basic personal needs. This is a vital part of teaching children to manage money.)

Balance the total expenditures against the expected income. If total expense is more than income, you will have to restudy the whole plan and determine where expenses can be cut down or income can be increased.

You should already have a list of your long-term plans. The next step is to decide what can be accomplished this year toward these plans.

Now you have your complete plan. Put it into operation, keeping a careful account of your expenditures. And don't let anyone tell you that a spending and saving plan won't work. It will—if you're willing to work at it.

CLOTHING PROJECTS (from 6)

Julia Frost of Shelby County was last year's state clothing achievement winner. Since beginning her clothing project in 1952, Julia has made a total of 331 garments and 283 articles. Julia estimates that she has saved her family over $1,260 by sewing for herself and others in the family. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Frost of Calera.

So girls, why not do as Alma and Julia did? Get busy and fashion a garment to enter in your local 4-H Club's revue this year. And mothers, encourage your daughters to begin sewing now. Help them as much as you can. It will be as much fun for you as it will be for them.

Don't misunderstand us now; this is not a Bob Cat (note the tail), which is commonly called Wildcat, but a Wild Cat! Notice its furry body. The animal doesn't look much like a cat, according to the hunters and its paws spread out like a dog's when it walks or runs.

Mr. Cummings said it had a strange looking face and big ears.

This one is about half grown, they said, so they must get to be pretty good sized fellows.

You know, if I was a cat and I looked like they said this feller did, I'd be wild too!

Mr. Morgan and the Cummings boys are from the Isabella Community.

Anyone for Wild Cat huntin'?

Proper methods of pruning depend on the tree. For example peaches are borne on year-old wood. Trees are pruned rather heavily with an open center and are kept at a relatively low height. Apples bear on two-year-old wood; therefore, trees are not pruned so severely and a central trunk is left with eight to ten side branches.

Alabama 4-H'ers Return From Eventful Week At National Congress

Mary Pulliam

Zana Bailey

Patsy Watkins

Wanda Scott

Four charming Cotton state teenagers enjoyed a week of exciting and inspirational events in Chicago recently during the National 4-H Club Congress ending Dec. 1.

They were among Alabama's delegates who won award trips to the annual meeting where some 1,350 members from across the nation were honored.

Mary Pulliam, 16, of Berry, is a girl who knows how to make the most of her leisure time. She won the 4-H recreation program award.

Fayette county's "Girl of the Year," she has given more than 25 different types of parties. These include a watch party on New Year's Eve, a circus, a pirate party, Valentine dinner, splash party and many others.

It all began when Mary was a newcomer in 4-H and broke her arm just before the 4-H Rally. Unable to take part in a square dance as planned, her club arranged for her to call the dance. So there she was, a little 10-year-old with her arm in a sling, standing before a large audience.

This talented young 4-H'er is compiling a recreational booklet for Fayette county 4-H Clubs entitled "My Handbook of Parties and Games."

President of the Berry High 4-H Club, Miss Pulliam is an active member of the county 4-H Advisory Council.

The 4-H recreation program has a new sponsor this year—John Deere of Moline, Illinois.

State 4-H dairy champion is 16-year-old Zana Bailey of Falkville. A 4-H'er for the last seven years, she began her project with one registered Jersey cow, which subsequently won first prize and championship at the Morgan county Dairy Show. Later her cow won the registered champion female award in two other shows.

The added responsibility of teaching younger 4-H'ers to show animals and halter-break their calves created a few complications in preparing for the county show this year, she says. Despite this, she won the registered Jersey championship with a three-year-old cow.

Her trip to Chicago was donated by the Oliver Corp., dairy program sponsor.

Patsy Watkins, 17, of Florence, a freshman at Florence State College, was winner of the General Motors trip award for her achievements in the 4-H safety program.

A 4-H'er during the last 10 years, she has been enrolled in this award-winning project for six years.

Burns suffered when she lifted covers from steaming pans was the decisive factor in her enrollment in the 4-H safety program. During the first few years she studied basic safety measures and gradually began writing safety stories. She was named Lauderdale county safety essay winner in 1957.

This safety enthusiast has given talks to younger 4-H'ers relating to safety around the home and farm, and has been responsible for innumerable safety measures installed about her own home and community.

Patsy has been president of the Waterloo 4-H Club and served as president of the Lauderdale county 4-H Council.

Outstanding achievements in the garden program resulted in top state recognition for Wanda Scott, 17, of Sulligent.

For five straight years this young farmerette has had a bumper crop of vegetables.

Wanda has complete charge of the family kitchen garden. She estimates a savings of more than $300 by raising food for the table and for canning.

This program is supported by Allis Chalmers Mfg. Co.

A senior in the Lauderdale County High School, Wanda has served in almost every office of the Vernon Senior 4-H Club, and was secretary of the Lauderdale county 4-H Council in 1958.

Chilton Reported 21 Rural Auto Accidents During November

THREE people were killed and 59 injured in Alabama's rural accidents on the highways during the month of November.

Chilton County recorded a total of 21 accidents, highest, percentage wise, in the Montgomery Post Area. The only other one higher in number was Montgomery County with 34 accidents.

Chilton County reported 14 personal injuries, but no fatalities.

Violations causing most of the November accidents were:

1. Excessive speed.
2. Driving under the influence of alcohol.
3. Driving on the wrong side of the road.
4. Following too close.
5. Failing to yield the right-of-way.

Floyd H. Mann, Public Safety Director says. "These are the type accidents that clearly indicate human faults and willful violations of the traffic laws." He said, "Any time 113 accidents occur on the rural highways of this state and 42 of them are one-vehicle accidents something is drastically wrong with the road, vehicle or driver!"

The accident investigations conducted by the Highway Patrol Officers reveal that most of the trouble lies with the driver.

In other words:

Most of the 21 accidents in Chilton County in the month of November could have been avoided had the drivers reacted properly to safety laws, common sense and courtesy on the highways!

GUIDE MAKES FILING RETURNS EASIER

It's that time of year again-time for farmers to be gathering information for completing income tax forms.

Although farmers can file an estimate by January 15 an pay the estimated amount of tax that time they must complete a regular return and pay additional tax by April 15. According to Extension Economist Foy Helms, most farmers prefer to do the whole job at once consequently, they will be making their returns before February 15.

Copies of the Farmer's Tax Guide prepared by the Internal Revenue Service can be obtained from county agents. The 1961 Guide is the same in organization as last year's and the page numbers are identical so that comparisons can be made easily.

There are several revisions in the tax laws this year. But the Auburn Economist says that county agents have specific details on the changes and may be contacted for explanations.

PRUNING IS IMPORTANT TO PEACH CROPS

Pruning fruit trees is a major task for orchard owners and home fruit tree growers during the winter months.

John Bagby, Auburn Extension horticulturist, says that pruning properly is necessary for producing good fruit, especially in young trees in oder to develop a desirable shape and a strong framework for supporting good crops. And in older trees, the cutting away is necessary to remove dead or broken limbs, to thin out overcrowded branches, and to promote the growth of new, fruit-bearing wood.

"Now is the time to prune,' says the horticulturist, because it is easier to tell which branches need to be cut when leaves are off.

Feeder Calf Sales

A series of feeder calf sales, sponsored by the Alabama Cattlemen's Association, are under consideration for 1961. These sales can be excellent demonstrations of the advantages of using recommended production and marketing practices.

Many cattlemen may have an interest in these sales—either as buyers or sellers. These sales deserve early attention so the planning process can be completed. Your county agent and cattlemen's association have information on sales that are being considered.

Prices—Why They Change

Comparison of prices for principal products in different periods plus an understanding of some of the reasons for price changes can be helpful to farmers in developing plans and making adjustments.

In early November 1960, eggs were wholesaling for 53 and one-half cents a dozen—a year ago, 33 cents a dozen. Also, in the fall of 1960, hogs were bringing $17.65 a hundred compared to $13.50 a hundred last year. Similar changes take place from year to year with other products. Why do prices change like they do? There are several principal reasons:

(1) Changes in supply—the quantity coming to market; (2) cyclical changes in production (as in eggs, hogs, beef cattle. This is really just one among many factors affecting supply), and (3) government price support programs and other federal or state action that affects the price for some products.

More Corn Sold

Specialization in agriculture is showing up in the way producers utilize farm products. Corn is a good example. In 1949 the corn crop in Alabama totaled 50,451,000 bushels. From this crop farmers sold 6,569,000 bushels—13 percent of the total. The average price farmers received in 1949 was $1.31 per bushel.

In 1958 the state's corn crop totaled 66,848,000 bushels and farmers sold 16,988,000 bushels—27 percent of the crop. That year the price averaged $1.19 per bushel. Many believe that the farmer who grows the corn can make the best use of it by feeding it to livestock. However, each farm operator has his own organization and management problems and, right or wrong, some find it more attractive to sell corn than to feed it and market the resulting poultry or livestock products.

Rural Homes Are Mostly Nonfarm

There are already more nonfarm homes out in the country than there are farm homes. In the future, even more people who are employed in towns and cities will move to rural areas, predict USDA officials.

In manufacturing, furthermore, 25 percent of the jobs are now located outside of standard metropolitan areas. An increasing number of industries are locating in the smaller towns and often out in the open country.

Farm Exports Increase

Exports of U.S. agricultural commodities during July and August amounted to $686 million—a gain of nine percent over the $632 million total for the same period last year, USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service reports. The increase was due entirely to a gain of almost 300 percent in the dollar volume of cotton exports which jumped to $102 million this year from a level of $26 million in July-August of 1959.

Less Canned Food Bought in South

Purchase rates for canned peaches, pears, corn, peas, and snap beans are lowest in the South, according to a recent study made by USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service.

These findings were a result of an Agricultural Marketing Service study which was designed to probe into household purchase patterns of popular canned fruits and vegetables. The objective was to learn which families buy the most and the areas and seasons of heaviest sales. This information is needed by farmers, canners, and distributors to plan for successful and efficient marketing.

Peaches are generally the most popular canned fruit. The study revealed that about one out of every four of the 51 million families in the country buys two cans of peaches each month.

Similar data was uncovered for each of the three vegetables. The AMS researchers discovered that the average person buys a little more than four cans of sweet corn, four cans of peas, and three cans of snap beans in a year.

Farmers and the Next 10 Years

More efficiency on the farm and more control over the marketing of their commodities are the important needs of farmers in the 1960's, says E. H. Fallon, general manager of the Cooperative G.L.F. Exchange, Inc., Ithaca, N. Y. Changes which are taking place both nationally and internationally "mean farmers must continue to improve their efficiency to remain competitive. They will have to meet the retailer's and the consumer's demand. They will have to build strong, efficient organizations to deal with strong, experienced retail buyers." He added that a long-range cooperative objective "is to help farmers get more for their crops by bringing farmer participation into all steps between the farm and the consumer."

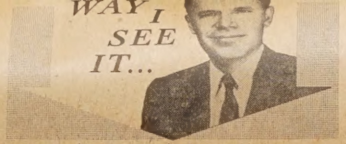
Fruit and Vegetable Marketing

Melvin Smith advises the producers of fruit and vegetables to increase their markets. The marketing specialist says this can be done by producing sufficient quantity and better quality of vegetables to attract some of the larger state buyers. After the product is produced, Smith says the producer should grade and package the product in adequate containers.

John Bagby says there are many things vegetable producers can do to increase yields. One of the first things is to plant a vegetable on the soil that is best adapted to producing that crop. "A thorough job of preparing the soil should be done," according to the commercial horticulturist. "The producer should use recommended varieties and fertilize adequately. During the summer a good job of controlling insects and diseases should be followed. In addition to these the home gardener should plant a variety of vegetables and make repeated plantings to have a supply during the entire growing season," advises Bagby.

If each farmer will follow these suggestions in 1961 he is bound to have a better year.



WAY I SEE IT...

by Dr. E. T. York, Jr. - Director
Auburn University Extension Service

LESS than a year ago we discussed in this column the problem of declining acreage, declining income, and declining interest in cotton in Alabama.

We pointed out that we were growing only about one-third the acreage we planted 20 to 30 years ago. Some 15 percent of our state allotment was going unplanted.

We suggested that our low average yields and small allotments were primarily responsible for the declining interest in cotton and that under such conditions it was becoming increasingly difficult to remain competitive with cotton producers in other areas.

It seemed that if we were to reverse this 20- to 30-year trend—if we were to maintain or increase our $140 million income from cotton in the state, we must do two things:

1. We must work towards releasing cotton acreage from those no longer interested in growing the crop to those who want and need to increase their acreage.
2. We must increase yields and lower unit production cost.

With this in mind we set out to develop and carry out a program to accomplish these objectives.

Our first step was to call a meeting last December of leaders in all phases of agriculture and related business and industry. Plans were developed for an all-out educational campaign to which all groups pledged their cooperation and support.

Following this meeting, a series of workshops and training sessions was held for our county and assistant agents throughout the state. They in turn organized local groups and carried out intensive campaigns in every county.

Later in the year other state-wide meetings were held, along with further workshops of county personnel. What were the results?

The first phase of the program was very successful with more than 135,000 acres being released and reassigned throughout the state. Although the actual increase in acreage planted was disappointing, Alabama had the greatest percentage increase in planted acreage of any state in the Southeast.

Despite very adverse weather throughout much of the state, our average state yields were the second highest in history. A still better measure of the effectiveness of this program is found in the comparison of our situation with that in Mississippi, Tennessee, Georgia, South Carolina, and North Carolina.

Alabama was the only one of the six southeastern states with an increase in per acre yields over 1959. Furthermore, we were the only state with an increase in total cotton production. According to November estimates, our production is up about seven percent while the production in the other five states is, on the average, down approximately seven percent.

This is a realistic measure of the effectiveness of Alabama's 1960 cotton program—some 15 million additional dollars have been injected into the economy of the state as a result of this effort.

This is the result of the finest type of cooperation among all groups. An even greater effort is needed this year—an effort which promises even greater returns.

WITH the coming of a new year, we all look forward to a new start. But most of us also have a tendency to look back over the old year, too. If you are not pleased with last year's income, now's the time to study your farm plan and look ahead to improving your total operation in 1961.

One of the first things to consider is whether or not every acre of your land is producing as it should. Did you leave any land idle last year? If so, that land didn't produce any income. In fact, it cost you to let it remain idle. You had to pay taxes and upkeep on it making it an expense to you.

COPELAND

Planting every acre in a crop that will produce the most money is certainly one way to raise income. Before making final plans on putting your land to use, why not visit your county agent and get his suggestions on what your land will best produce.

Farm Records

While you're making those resolutions, consider starting a good set of farm records. It's a simple job if it is done as the year goes by.

A good set of records gives you the opportunity to see your total farm operation making it easy to analyze your situation and see where adjustments need to be made. Helps when filing income tax returns, too!

Farmers Are Busy Soil Testing

If the number of samples coming into the Auburn soil testing laboratory is an indication, Alabama farmers are certainly busy taking soil samples. And now is the time for you to take care of this most important item, too.

If you don't know the correct procedure for taking samples, check with your county agent. He can tell you exactly how to do it, and he will provide you with cartons for shipping.

Don't wait any longer. You'll want to get the results back by fertilizing time. Remember the slogan in 1961, don't guess—soil test.

Heart Disease

How does heart disease affect the farmer? This ailment is not only a major cause of death in the United States, but it is also a leading cause of long-time illness.

But little is known about this disease among farmers. How common is it? How does it affect the life of a farmer who suffers from it? When do most heart attacks occur among farmers?

While reading a magazine the other day, I noticed that a group of Ohio State University rural sociologists are interested in the problem and recently made a study of 40 male farmers from 40 to 65 years old who are suffering with heart trouble. Although variations occurred in the groups, most of the men had favorable living conditions and well-kept farms.

Most of the men's attacks occurred during April, May, or June. It's possible that spring farm work may require peak work loads at a time when farmers are not in the best physical condition, the sociologists said.

Many attacks followed breakfast, lunch, and evening meals. This fact seems to indicate that most heart attacks occur among farmers when the heart is heavily loaded by the digestive system. A change of pace from rest to activity also may be tied closely to heart attacks.

4-H work. In fact, Leon still has proof of one of his club projects.

When Leon was 13 years old, he set out an acre of pine seedlings. The Gossetts have watched these trees grow along with their 4-year-old son, Mike. From year to year each one of them gets larger in size.

Before too long, Mike will be in 4-H work and plans definitely to carry a forestry project.

Since moving back to the home place in the Alexis community in Cherokee County, Leon has worked closely with his father and two brothers in starting new income producers on the farm. The family is now working toward producing certified meat-type Landrace hogs. According to County Agent J. J. Young, they are doing a good job of supplying the hog producers in the county with good Landrace breeding stock.

The family also has a large flock of laying hens which they have in cages. Incidentally, both Leon and his wife had chickens in the 4-H poultry chain when they were 4-H members. This young farmer is using his experience with 4-H poultry and hogs to make a living for his family.

THE START—Leon Gossett is shown here with one of the first pine seedlings he planted while a Cherokee County 4-H Club member. This was in 1948 when he was 13 years old.

BOTH GROW—As the years went by both Leon and his trees grew. In fact, the former 4-H'er is now married and has a son, Mike. Here, the two are shown a while back looking at the tree Leon planted when he was a 4-H Club member.

STILL GROWING—Now Leon has slowed down in his growth. But Mike and the tree are still putting on height, as this recent picture shows.

increase in cotton production for the first time since the war-time years. In summary, it appears that Alabama farmers have a real opportunity with cotton in 1961.

Another crop that is not in oversupply at the present time is soybeans. If Alabama farmers could overcome production difficulties, this crop offers real possibilities for many farmers.

Hogs and cattle, as have already been mentioned, may sell for lower prices next year. Cattle prices may average lower for the year as a whole while hog prices may hold up well until the early winter months. The expected declines, however, are not expected to be enough to discourage production. Cattle may sell from two to three dollars lower on the average, and hog prices will hold up well until late in the year.

There are some question marks for the poultry industry in 1961. It is expected that the hatch of replacement chicks for 1961 will be earlier than usual and consequently will go into the laying house earlier. In addition, the hatch may be large enough that it along with the holdover of old hens will produce enough eggs to get poultrymen back into trouble again before the year is out. Now is a good time for egg producers to plan carefully. The experience of two years ago can be avoided through the maintenance of production well in line with demand.

In view of the red meat situation, broiler producers may not average the near 17 cents they received during most of 1960. This is not to say that the broiler business will not be profitable. It is believed that some further efficiencies will be achieved next year that will result in lower production costs. In view of these possibilities, it is expected that there will be some further increase in broilers in Alabama again in 1961 and that many of our producers will make money.

The demand for foods of all kinds will be strong again in 1961, and the supplies of fruits, vegetables, and nuts will be plentiful in most areas. The fresh market for vegetables will again offer good opportunities for some Alabama farmers.

Some improvement is expected in the demand for forest products in 1961. It is believed that by mid-year, housing starts will increase and thereby improve the demand for lumber items. The demand for pulpwood should remain good at about the same price level for stumpage as farmers received in 1960. Other forest products including resin will have a good year. Most of these items are in short supply and the demand is strong. The long-time outlook for forest products in Alabama continues to improve.

Jones Reports 301 New Plants And Expansions During Past Year In Alabama

In a review of Alabama's industrial gain during 1960, Leland Jones, Director of the State Planning and Industrial Development Board, reports 301 new plants and expansions have been added to Alabama's industrial growth. This is the largest number of plants ever reported in a single year, said Jones. Of these, 127 are new industries and 174 are expansions of existing plants.

In terms of capital investment, Jones stated this was an exceptional year, with new capital investment in new and expanded industry amounting to $212,238,700. This total is more than double the investment reported for 1959.

The new jobs created by these new plants or expansions total 14, 313, Jones said. He expressed particular pleasure in the wide distribution since 60 of Alabama's 67 counties had either a new plant or an xpansion reported during the year.

In addition to the new investment reported for industrial plants in the State, new capital investment in other areas, such as warehouses, utilities, transportation facilities, waterways improvement, Army and Air Force installations, etc., soared well past the half billiin dollar mark.

In commenting on the outook for 1961, Jones stated that with the continued effort of the chambers of commerce, local industrial development committees, and other organizations, there are good reasons to believe that industrial development will continue to grow and make progress in Alabama.

Circuit Convention Of Jehovah's Witnesses In Phenix City

MANY ATTEND FROM CLANTON GROUP

Arrangements are being completed by Clanton Jehovah's Witnesses to attend their circuit convention in Phenix City December 30, 31, and January 1.

David J. Thomas, district supervisor who was recently transferred here from the Maryland area, will be the main speaker and deliver the featured Bible lecture of the event, "Is God Interested in the Affairs of Men?"

According to William E. Robinson local presiding minister, theme of the convention wll be "Be Taught by Jehovah."

"The counsel given by the apostle Paul to his young helper Timothy to 'study to show yourself approved by Gd' is constantly emphasized to Jehovahs Witnesses," he said today. To that end they attend five meetings each week as well as the semi-annual circuit assemblies. This, besides personal study of the Bible and kindred subjects, is the reasin why they conduct themselves like people with a definite purpose in life.

Assembly chairman will be Frank W. Spear, circuit minister who is well known here through his supervisory visits to the Clanton congregation.

About 20 ministers from nearly all the 18 congregations in the east central Alabama circuit will have part in the program, which includes morning, afternoon and evening sessions of talks, discussion, and demonstrations.

Maintenance personnel will inclucde Robinson, who heads the cafeteria installation department, and Dr. J. L. Bennett, in charge of first aid.

About 800 delegates are expected to attend. According to Robinson, no special selection of representative is made. The assembly is for all because all of Jehovah's Witnesses strive to be qualified ministers. For this reason whole families attend in fact in many cases the entire congregation will be present in Phenix City.

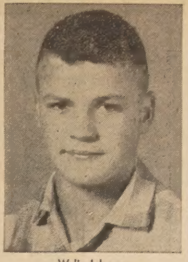
High School 4-H'ers Tops In State



Wylie Johnson

Tommy Smith
... electric project

Two Alabama High School boys were awarded highest state honors for their 4-H beef and electric projects. They were part of the state delegation who attended the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago Nov. 27-Dec. 1.

Wylie Johnson, 16, is the beef expert. He recently showed the grand champion fat steer, and also had a successful cow and calf project.

Exhibits, demonstrations, judging and showmanship events, too numerous to mention, were climaxed by Johnson being acclaimed first place showman in the fat stock show.

In conjunction with his beef program he has raised grain for feeding, improved acres of pasture, and planted 225 acres in cover crop for soil and water conservation. He has also sown 38 acres of food for wildlife.

Young Johnson is president of the Macon county beef club and vice president of both his local and county 4-H Councils.

In Chicago he was the guest of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., 4-H beef program awards sponsor.

Although only 17, Tommy Smith has been electric project counselor in Cleburne county for three years. It has been his favorite program all through his eight years of 4-H membership.

Smith made 44 electrical devices ranging from extension cords to a corn and hay elevator, an electric welder and a pea sheller. He has made repairs on installations, pumps, sockets and appliances, and has plans for more equipment or improvements on motors and machines now in use.

After being president of his local 4-H Club four years, he was elected as Cleburne county president. He credits the experience he got in talks and "thinking-on-his-feet" in 78 demonstrations for the ability to preside over these groups.

He says his greatest honor came when he was asked to speak before county teachers about electricity to be taught in their science classes.

Westinghouse Educational Foundation, which has given award trips to 4-H electric project winners for 25 years, sponsored Smith's trip to club congress.

Both of these awards programs are supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service, and the winners were chosen by staff members.

THE Chilton County Courthouse (new version) is certainly taking shape rapidly. It does the hearts of many Chilton Countians good to see this progress being made -- some of them worked for it for 15 or 20 years.

THERE have been 301 new plants and expansions in Alabama Industry this year. Chilton County has not got its fair share of this industrial boom. The only thing is, we have nobody to blame but ourselves! That might develop into a good New Year's resolution.

The Threshold--

THIS new year coming up—1961—is not only the beginning of a new year, but the beginning of a new decade for you and there could be no better time for you to take 'inventory' of your habits both good and bad and start out bright and early in 1960 to see if you can't improve on the good ones and change completely, the bad ones!

Folks don't seem to put the emphasis on the New Year that they used to. The New Year's Day, so soon after our wonderful Christmas Season, should be a time of 'sober' thought and decision of just what is going to be "your path" in the days and years to come.

For the young it should be a time of decision and planning as to what they will become. For the middle-aged, a time of setting things straight and checking to see if the path they have chosen is a right one. And the aged should look back over their accomplishments and failures and be thankful that they are still alive and in tune with God and his plan for them!

We respectfully suggest that Christmas time can be a time of 'preparation' for us to decide what we will do and how we will do it in the year that lies ahead of us. Don't plan too far ahead that you lose sight of what you're after, but do see far enough ahead in life that you don't butt up against a wall up there somewhere because you didn't plan carefully, prayerfully and with the Almighty included.

Happy New Year! May yours be blessed with wondrous gifts of love, achievement and satisfaction and may you never be sorry for the path you have taken in life!

Too Much Money--

WE got some idea of the immensity of the $75 million 'reconstruction' of the big aircraft carrier that burned in Brooklyn a week or so ago. We read that 240 shops (businesses we presume) were destroyed by fire in Pusan, Korea at a loss of $500,000. That should give you some idea of just how expensive mistakes can be when you're dealing with Uncle Sam. It's too much money!

Chilton Didn't Make It--

THE Christmas Holiday period saw at least one death in Chilton County -- by accident -- and not many counties and cities were able to do otherwise over the nation.

Many of the deaths that occur on these Holiday Season's are not 'accidents'. By that we do not mean that they did not happen -- the bereaved family is indication enough that it is real! The point is, many of these 'accidents', possibly most of them, could be avoided.

The use of alcohol, overconfidence, lack of proper training, speed; all these things are potential killers and too many of us are at the mercy of these 'killers'.

Another Holiday week-end is coming up. Many people, possibly someone reading this right now, will die; needlessly, senselessly, very painfully. Must you be one of them! It is folly to tell people to stay off the highways -- that's what highways are for -- but it is not folly to impress upon every individual that when they get into a vehicle, on the highways, their lives are literally in danger of being snuffed out. Alcohol is certainly not worth a life and those other 'potential killers' can be stamped out too, if each one of us makes it his or her own personal responsibility to see that their driving or the person's they are riding with is beyond reproach -- that will cut down greatly on the odds and keep some of us alive and breathing.

Please, please, respect the vehicle you are responsible for, as well as the other fellow's. And beyond that, respect life for what it is -- that there is nothing, absolutely nothing, that will, or can, take its place.

Let's see YOU on the 2nd!

THINGS We see and hear

by BOB

EVERYTHING that don't fit . . . we'll take!

NO need asking whether or not you had a wonderful and Merry Christmas, because some of us did and some of us didn't. It started out to be the best Christmas we ever had, what with our three youngsters at just the right ages to be thrilled at everything, so we were too! But the night before Christmas we developed a wonderful case of Laryngitis (or something) and it put the damper on our Christmas Day. We didn't do bad at all in that respect 'cause Old Santa was real good to the kids so we were amply entertained. However, about dinnertime the wife and part of the family went sashaying to grandma's house to have turkey dressing, ham and you name it. We stayed home and after we could stand it no longer, we 'enjoyed' a bowl of chicken soup (ugh!). Then about three hours later, they all came traipsing in and hadn't brought us even a bone to chew on. For supper Christmas night, we 'enjoyed' a bowl of Chili with beans That's the sorriest eating we've ever done on a Christmas Day and by George it just ain't no fun at all unless you can eat all them lovely goodies and feel sorry the day after Here it is the day after and the only thing we're sorry for is that we didn't get enough to eat this Christmas. Just kidding about the 'nuff to eat' part, of course. Would that everyone in the world could have a bowl of chicken soup and a bowl of chili on Christmas Day. One thing's sure, they wouldn't be in much of a mood for arguing or anything else, hardly! 'Cept maybe snarlin' and growlin' and snapping!

How many wrong sizes, wrong colors, wrong styles have we seen on the street since Christmas Day? It's true, alright, you can't buy clothes for somebody else; but every year we all try to! We always want to be practical, but at the sametime not so conservative as to be tuffy. We usually wind up with a gift nobody can use and nobody wants and oh, well, . . Christmas is fun ain't it!

NOW George Fulmer, Mr. Bates and the rest of the 'Power' ful fellas are going to have to climb those poles again and retrieve ye olde Christmas lights until next year. The exact words at the end of this chore will probably not be recorded for posterity, but they'll probably be something like: "Well, that's the last time I'm doing that thankless job!" It is not thankless fellows it isnt! We appreciate it ever so much and while we're on the subject (and we're well up on it) Clanton was just about one of the "best dressed" towns, generally speaking (all over town and neighborhoods) of anywhere in the state. The Christmas Spirit dominated the season this year and we're thankful for all the hearts that were softened to be in tune with the season. Now all we've got to do is figure a way to soften those hearts like that 365 days a year, without all the gift-giving-buying and hustle and bustle that we know during the Yuletide Season. We had a fine one--sans eating--and hope yours was the same.

THERE WAS literally so much 'Santa Claus' under the tree at our house this year that our eldest son was going around in circles and we're not fooling. We were almost ashamed at the quantity of gifts they received, although there were many other children who received more. We just couldn't help remembering those youngsters who had less. . . a great deal less perhaps and we were a little ashamed at having put so much attention on our own. We'll be going in circles for the first six months of the new year settling up with dear old "Santa" and the like! We will say this for 'fatherhood' and it agrees with what we have always been taught: "It is better to give than to receive. .." because we honestly believe that it's more fun 'helping' Santa Claus than it ever was looking forward to his coming on Christmas Eve!

ONE of our highest ambitions is to invent a use for Christmas Trees on December 26th and thereafter A fellow could clean up! (That's usually what we wind up doing with our anyway).

ANOTHER fellow said he hated to open his store up the day after Christmas. That's the day all the lovely gifts he sold the day before Christmas start finding their way back home. He doesn't mind so much folks wanting to exchange their gifts for something of a different size, color or style, but when they start wanting their money back; well, that's where he draws the line! And we don't blame him 'cause he's probably already spent it on somebody else!

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

YOU CAN BE FREE FROM FEAR

What is fear? Actually, fear is the absence of faith.

Fear is the absence of faith just as darkness is the absence of light.

There is an old fable that once a group of people came to the sun and said, "Sun, there is a place of darkness on the earth where it is dark 24 hours a day."

The Sun said, "I will go look for it."

The Sun searched and searched, but could not find it.

There was no darkness where the sun was.

Turn on the light in a room, and instantly the darkness is gone. Turn off the light and instantly the darkness returns.

Leave the light on all the time and there is no darkness. Why? Because light is dominant over darkness. It is dominant as long as you control it.

Faith, or right believing, is dominant over fear, just as light is dominant over darkness.

You can be totally free from fear when you put your faith in control of your life and start believing right and keep believing right. As long as you believe right, fear cannot dominate your life.

Faith is dominant over fear because it puts you in direct contact with God, who is omnipotent. He scooped out the bed for the ocean, flung the stars from His fingertips, hung the earth on nothing, numbered the hairs of your head, knows your name and cares for you.

Your faith puts Him in control of your life. He says, "I give unto you power . . . over all the power of the enemy; and nothing shall by any means hurt you" (Luke 10:19).

It is possible to live without fear, because it is possible to believe right at all times.

Right believing gives you confidence because you know you are on the right track. It gives you the consciousness that Providence is working for you. It calms your spirit, relaxes your nerves, gives you driving power and fills you with enthusiasm. People who believe right have great energy. People watch you and soon believe in you. They want to be on your side because everybody wants to be on the winning side.

Recently, while on an airplane trip, a successful business man told me, "I have a fear of riding in airplanes. But when I saw you get on this plane, I knew that a man of God was aboard; and I was not afraid. So, I enjoyed the ride."

The trouble with him was, he didn't practice faith and right believing. It is possible to live without fear, no matter where we are or what we are doing, if we believe right at all times. Faith is always dominant over fear.

HI VANCE'S USED YARN LOT

50 Years of HUMOR

Rick Woodward was an iron Baron who was worth twenty-five million dollars. That should have made him supremely happy, but didn't. Could have been because he inherited it. Also, it could have been because the Depression came along in 1929 (notice I spelled that with a Capital D) and at that time he almost lost the wad on the iron works which bore his name. Never however, did he lose his sense of humor and that could have helped in getting his fortune back to him before he died.

Mr. Woodward used to contribute items to a column I was conducting, The Coal Bin, writing under the pseudo, "Casey." That was on account of his being the only twenty-five million dollar railroad engineer extant. He had left home as a youth, had fired on the Rock Island Railroad, and finally stacked up enough time to become a full-fledged engineer. He never relinquished that card, and once each year he took an engine on the run over the A. B. C., which has since been acquired by the Atlantic Coast Line. Keeping up the card was done to preserve his active status.

Rick was a bit cynical in some things. I remember one item, which I can't quote verbatim, but which expressed his philosophy on growing old, it recounted that both Kings Solomon and David were rather wild in their younger years, but settled down later as oldsters always did. The last verse went, "But when old age came upon them with all its aches and qualms, Ging Solomon wrote the Proverbs and King David wrote the Psalms. Rick's favorite gag was that he was fishing from a skif which turned over. He glared at his colored companion and shouted: "Boy, I thought you told me you could row?" The Senegambian replied, "Boss, I thought you meant could I ro' like a lion!"

RAYS OF HOPE

Virginia H. Stover

Dear Friends, we wish for all of you all of the peace and happiness your hearts can contain at this joyous season. After shopping around a bit I perceive that there are too many "Scrooges" among us. If you are getting in the habit of grumbling about all the push and hurry and crowding in the stores try looking through rose colored glasses a little bit. Its just a matter of taking a few minutes to count your blessings. How would you like to see Christmas come and nobody hany any pretty lights in our towns no stores decorated, no homes burn pretty candles in the windows, no holly wreaths and mistletoe, no Christmas trees, no Santa in the parade, no one purchasing gifts, no smiles of anticipation on little faces (and old ones). What if we had no money to buy gifts or no gifts to be bought? Stop playing grumpy Scrooge and be cheerful and grateful for the happy crowds all scurrying about, some for the sheer joy of getting ready to have their loved ones home for the holidays. Then if you would make this the very best Christmas day-observe it by asking your family to accompany you to church and get there in time for Sunday School. After all our churches are to aid us in our worship of Him whose birth we are celebrating this week. Remember to read the story of the birth of Christ to your family on Christmas eve. It is found in Luke2.

This week our Column honors Mr. Zack Lowery who is 77 years old. He has lived in Clanton 55 years. He has 7 children, 14 grand children and 1 great-grandchild. He has been a member of Liberty Hill Baptist church for 54 years. Mr Lowery is an invalid and says because of the unrest in the world he selects Matt. 5:9 as his favorite Scripture verse. Also he finds God is my refuge a source of strength

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNERS

IT is a duty of the Board of Equalization to assess any and all property that they might find that has not been assessed.

Our records were recently audited and the auditors reported that we were not in full compliance with the law by not adding a ten per cent penalty as required by Section 105, Title 51, Code of Alabama, on all property it became our duty to assess.

May we ask that you please check your assessment to be sure all improvements are properly assessed as we will be required to comply with the auditors recommendations of adding an additional ten percent to all property we have to assess as delinquent assessments.

Your cooperation will be appreciated as we don't like the thought of having to add penalties. The normal assessment period is from October 1st to December 31st.

Sincerely,
J. N. CALLOWAY,
Chairman, Chilton County
Board of Equalization

The farmer got only 38 cents of the food dollar in 1959. He got 40 cents in 1940 and 53 cents in 1945 (for the peak war year.).

Of every $20 spent for groceries $1.50 to $2 goes for packaging which helps to keep food in good condition and attracts the shooper's attention.

THIS WEEK ON CAPITOL HILL

BY CARL GOGGINS

And just what were the "political gifts" some of the states Big Political Mules probably asked this Christmas from Saint Nick? Perhaps it went something like this:

From the talk of things, the main thing Governor John Patterson wanted was his choice for the Speaker of the House, Virgis Ashwirth, Centreville, to be elected, and the adoption of his program.

This should be medical care for aged, tied in with the new federally financed program; $10 million bond issue for the prison system; reapportionment; an overhaul of the land condemnation law to simplfy acquisition of rights-of-way for the state's new interstate highways; and state insurance code revision.

All Attorney General McDonald Gallion presumably wanted was for the federal government to quit nosing around in the state's legal affairs on voting rights and segregation and let Mac do some of the bossing himself.

Highway Director and Democratic Executive Committee Chairman Sam Englehardt's possible request? That he doesn't get the "political hatchet" as a result of the Hatch Act. And Lt. Gov. Albert Boutwell? All he more than likely wanted was an indication of what to do concerning the next Governor's race.

And speaking of the gubernatorial chase, most assuredly, about the only thing George Wallace probably sought was a certificate from the world declaring he is not connected in any way with former Governor James E. Folsom.

Big Jim? That the sale of his Folsom Pea River Peanut Hams continue to hold up during the coming year. Perhaps Gen. (Crack) Hanna whispered into Santa's ear that all he desired was that 51 percent of tre people petition him for Governor.

Former Sen. and State Democratic Steering Committeeman Richmond Flowers asked only that his Little Red Wagon receives as large a reception during the next Attorney General's race as he did while campaigning for the Democratic Party.

And Supt. of Education Frank Stewart? Simple--education needs more money, JP, legislators. Alabama League of Municipalities Executive Secretary Ed Reid wanted the same thing he got last Christmas--a well organized, hard-hitting League!

Revenue Commissioner Harry Haden probably didn't ask for much only that his Tax Equalization program be carried out! and there's no doubt that all Alabama's nine Congressman wanted was for my District to be left alone.

HOW TO HAVE A 'HAPPY' NEW — YEAR

FROM THE PEN OF M. G. FIELDS, BAPTIST MISSIONARY

The old year will soon be ushered into eternity. The records of every church will have been written. The scripture says, "Everyone of us shall give account of himself to God" (Rom. 14.12). The records of the past will be checked, and beautiful clean pages for the New Years records will be obtained to account faithfulness. May the resolve of every Christian church member be in accord with the Apostle Paul, "We are labourers together with God" (1 Cor. 3:9). The New Year should be a red-letter year in every church in Chilton-Unity Association. The pastor's conference meets Monday, January 2, 12:30 p.m., at Dewitts dinning room. Rev. Lanew W. McRevnolds will speak on the subject, "Studies In 1 Corinthians," the January Bible study book. The time and place of this conference has become very unsettled, and it should be definitely decided upon at the meeting next Monday. The Sunday school officers planning meeting will meet at West End Baptist, Monday, January 2, 7:00 p.m., W. L. Hicks, superintendent Sunday was set aside for "Soul-winning commitment day." The WMU quarterly meeting will meet Wednesday, January 4, 10:00 a.m. at Liberty Hill Baptist. Mrs. J. W Johnson president. The Sunday school quarterly meeting will meet Monday, January 9, 7:30 p.m., at First Baptist, Thorsby. The 53 churches and the mission will endeavor to complete the enlistment of the vacation bible school faculty and be prepared for the training school to be held at Dawson Memorial Baptist church, Birmingham February 15-16, and at West End Baptist Clanton, April 4, 7:00 p.m. Mrs. Fields and I, wish for every one a very happy and fruitful Christian experience in the Lord during the new year. Our resolve is to heed the Holy Spirit's admonition "moreover it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful" (1 Cor. 4:2). Blessings on you is our prayer.

YOUR HEALTH

THE EPILEPTIC IN INDUSTRY

Are epileptics being discrimina against in industry, This questi has been dscussed at the rece meeting of the International Co gress on Occupational Health.

Despite the absence of relia studies to confirm the allegatio some industrial concerns are kno to discriminate against epilepti They base their decision against e ployng epileptics on the assumpti that seizures would cause freku accidents, absenteeism, defici production, and anxiety in co-wo ers. Discrimination against hiri epileptics is unwarranted, it w pointed out at the occupation health meeting, if based on the no tion that epileptics as a group hav high accident rates, absence recor and comparatively low producti efficiency.

The work performance of known epileptics in four large co panies was compared with the av age performance of all employee these companies. No signific differences were found in len of service, absence, or efficie rates, according to the report the meeting. Epilepsy is an impa ment, not a disablement. W proper medical control epileptics w perform as well as an average wo group, according to information d closed at the meeting. The epil tic should have the opportunity make a normal life adjustment.

A reveptive attitude on the p of the industry would enable th sands who are now the econo responsibility of public agencies be restored to gainful employm Any applicant with epilepsy sho be appraised individually as to capacity for employment and the gree or his impairment when c sidering his placement or reject It has been stated that 75 per of epileptics can have control seizures, thus remiving attack a positive barrier to employmen

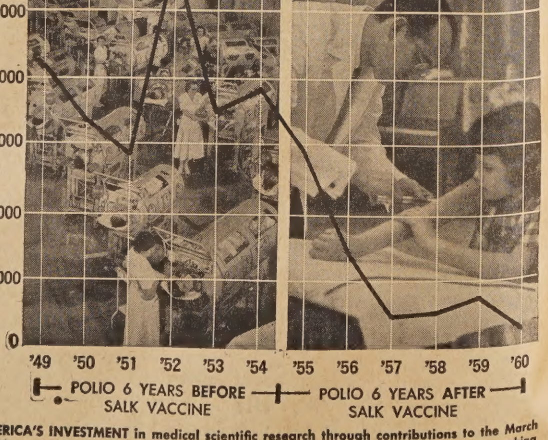
MARCH OF DIMES RESEARCH DID THIS; NEXT — OTHER CRIPPLING DISEASES



AMERICA'S INVESTMENT in medical scientific research through contributions to the March of Dimes paid a huge dividend—the polio vaccine. Now the March of Dimes is working to prevent other crippling diseases—birth defects and arthritis. A further investment in medical research through the March of Dimes may pay even greater dividends. Campaign continues through January.

Tips on Touring

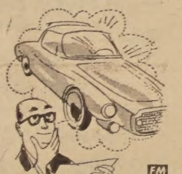
The 1971 Car

Chances are you're not giving much thought to your 1971 car right now. But engineers in Detroit are. While they differ in details, they predict generally:

The choice of cars in 1971 will be much greater than it is now. There'll be everything from tiny four-cylinder jobs to big "Land Cruisers." At least seven basic types of cars will be available, each designed for a special function.



The 1971 car will still have the reciprocating engine. Trucks and buses may be using the gas turbine.

The car will have no spare tire.

It'll probably still have the engine in the front in most cases. The success of present rear-engine cars could change this, though. Another factor that could affect engine position is the successful development of the fuel cell or other power plant.

Some of the small cars will have front-wheel drive.

The hump in the floor will be eliminated.

The car will probably have a central hydraulic system. This could control brakes, power steering, windshield wiper, windows, seats, starter.

Bucket seats will be more common. The car might have an all-plastic body. Perhaps there'll only be one door on the left side (the driver's door).

Finally, it might have brakes that release under extreme pressure and help prevent skidding, or a separate hydraulic system for rear and front brakes. A failure i one system would not mean a tota failure.

Cereals make up two-thirds of the diet of the peoples of Japan and India. Red meat and dairy products represent less than 4% of the Japanese diet and less than two percent of the Indian diet.

Veterans, Dependents Must Report Earnings

Approximately 19,000 disabled veterans and dependents of some 10 3(0 deceased veterans in Alabama who receive monthly payments, are being reminded by the Veterans Administration to report their annual income primptly and avoid the risk of having their payments stopped

H. S. Kendrick, Adjudication Officer at the Montgomery VA Regional Office, said that VA is now mailing to all pension recipients a tabulation card upon which the income report may be made. Pension cease under the old pension law if the income of a single individual exceeds $1400, or $2700 if the recipient has dependents.

Under the new law, Kendrick pointed out, pensions will cease if the income of a single individual exceeds $1800, or $3000 if the recipient has dependents. The amount of pension may be reduced if the recipient's annual income rises from one of the lower income brackets $600 and $1200 for a single veteran or widow without dependents, and $1000 and $2000 for a veteran or widow both dependents.

Dependents parents who receive dependency and indemnity compensation also receive income questionnaires and their payments are similarly regulated by the amount of their income, Kendrick added. Regulations require payment to be stopped if the income report is not returned to the VA within 40 days.

No income questionnaire is sent to veterans or widows who are receiving service-connected benefits.

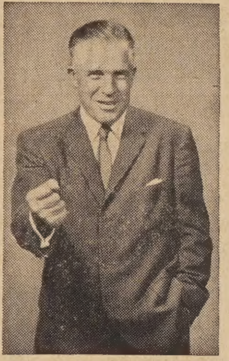
ANNOUNCING PAYMENTS TO RAMBLER BUYERS AS RAMBLER'S SALES VOLUME INCREASES

Why You Should Join Rambler's New Crusade For Adequate Progress Sharing With Customers

"I believe participation by all consumers in economic progress is absolutely necessary in meeting the nation's economic needs."



GEORGE ROMNEY
President, American Motors Corporation

Rambler's rise to a top position has put us in position to undertake a new crusade. This program, which could provide greater individual and national benefits than any we've yet undertaken, calls for customer progress sharing.

As volume goes up, costs come down. So, sharing economies that would result from a 50% Rambler sales gain over last year for the period December through March could provide payments to customers of $18,698,062.

But, before presenting our new Rambler crusade, let me review some highlights of the first one.

When we forged our basic Rambler concepts, U.S. cars were in a size, horsepower and styling-change race that cost the car buyer money. So, we developed the compact, economical, modernly engineered Rambler.

CONSUMER BENEFITS FROM LOWER PRICES

Because of low volume, we had to price our first Rambler Americans about equal with Chevrolet and Ford, traditionally "lowest priced."

As our output and economies increased, we shared the resulting economic advantages with Rambler customers. Despite inflation, we kept prices low. We also concentrated on durability and quality. That is why Rambler excels in trouble-free operation, as shown by trade surveys made by others.

What has this done? It has increased our sales—made us a vigorous new competitive factor, compelling all competitors to introduce compact cars. Their compact cars unquestionably are better buys than their big cars, because their big cars don't have the compacts' advanced engineering.

Despite these moves to meet Rambler competition, Rambler American models are now priced not only below competitive big cars but below their economy compacts as well.

In addition, Ramblers provide customers several exclusive trouble-free engineering advances such as the acid-proof, rustproof Ceramic-Armored muffler and tailpipe.

The Rambler line includes three basic sizes of compact cars—Rambler American, Rambler Classic and Ambassador, the latter two developed after the original American series.

RAMBLER SALES SOAR

In two years, Rambler's per cent of market has more than doubled. For the last 38 straight months, Rambler sales have established a new record for that month. We want to continue this growth by serving you even better.

THE NEW RAMBLER CRUSADE

Our new Rambler crusade, like our compact crusade, is based on sharing Rambler progress with car buyers.

We believe the new Rambler crusade has timely significance. Our country currently is experiencing a mild economic slowdown—with rising foreign competition and weakness of the dollar. Our larger competitors are considering partial manufacture and importation of cars for the U.S. market from abroad. There is a general profit squeeze.

We believe the greatest single economic cause is that relatively too much of the fruit of industrial effort has been going to a few well organized economic groups, not to the consumer.

CUSTOMERS TO SHARE RAMBLER PROGRESS

We decided there was something we could do. We decided to share future progress with ALL customers who take delivery of a new Rambler or new Metropolitan between December 1, 1960, and March 31, 1961, from an authorized Rambler dealer (excluding governmental sales), giving them most of the benefit of additional cost reduction resulting from further increases in Rambler sales volume.

This can mean a sharing with Rambler buyers during the 4-month period of government savings bonds (Series E) with a maturity value from $3,679,850 (10% sales increase), to $24,930,750 (50% increase). See chart for details.

HOW PAYMENTS TO BUYERS WILL BE DETERMINED IN AMERICAN MOTORS' CUSTOMER PROGRESS SHARING PROGRAM

IF SALES ARE UP over last year	BUYERS RECEIVE U.S. SAVINGS BONDS (Maturity Value)	BOND PAYMENT SALES LEVELS DECEMBER (Dec. sales)	JANUARY (Dec.-Jan. total)	FEBRUARY (Dec.-Jan.-Feb. total)	MARCH (4-month total)
50%	$125	45,247	97,671	140,139	195,946
40%	$100	42,231	91,159	130,796	182,883
30%	$ 75	39,214	84,648	121,453	169,820
20%	$ 50	36,198	78,136	112,111	156,757
10%	$ 25	33,181	71,625	102,768	143,694
SALES FOR SAME PERIOD LAST YEAR		30,165	65,114	93,426	130,631

NOTE: In all cases, "BUYER(S)" means a person who actually takes delivery, not places an order.

WHY IT WILL PAY YOU TO BUY NOW. This unique program is cumulative and retroactive. Early buyers can get more, but never less bonds, than buyers in succeeding months. Your Rambler dealer will be happy to give you the complete details of the plan but here is a quick example of how it works and keeps on working for you:

If December Rambler deliveries increase 20% over last December, December buyers of new Ramblers or Metropolitans will receive $50 bonds. As the four-month period progresses, additional bonds will be mailed to the December buyers each time the cumulative sales reach a higher bond payment sales level.

Also, if sales increase for the four-month period exceeds 50%, proportionate additional payments will be made to all buyers during any of the four-months.

BOTH CUSTOMERS AND AMERICAN MOTORS GAIN

You have everything to gain and nothing to lose by joining this crusade. The same is true for us.

You can't lose because Ramblers are better than big cars and the best of the compacts. Ramblers are more trouble-free, more useful, lower priced.

You make your regular deal in the regular way for a new Rambler. You then may share proportionately in the economies and profits of higher Rambler volume in December, 1960, and the first three months of 1961.

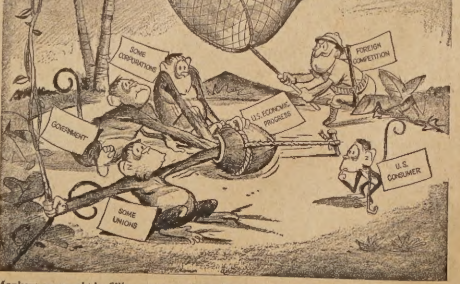
We gain by acquiring more Rambler owners, which will make our growing market even larger in the future. That's because Rambler owners become Rambler salesmen and are the most loyal "repeat buyers" of any make.

Ask your neighbor all about his Rambler, then join the Rambler crusade. Join us in focusing the nation's attention on the essentiality of equitably sharing economic progress with ALL consumers if the WHOLE NATION is to prosper.

George Romney

P.S. Some may say one company can't do much about national problems as big and complex as those cited above. Well, that's what skeptics said about Rambler's first crusade. Let's remember, every great thing is born small. If this new Rambler crusade is right, it can succeed and spread, just as the compact car concept did.

Mr. Romney's recent New York Press Conference on "Customer Sharing and the Nation's Economy" attracted nationwide notice. For complete text of his statements, write American Motors, Box 29, Detroit 32, Mich.



Monkeys are caught by filling a coconut shell with chopped coconut meat. The monkeys grasp a fistful and, unwilling to let any go, cannot withdraw their paws. So, they are easy victims. The U.S. consumer is not yet as scrawny as shown, but unless there is a more equitable division of the productivity increases, he will get that way. One of the three American groups must let go and set an example—or all will be captured and, along with the consumer, all will suffer.

Walnuts and Chocolate Morsels Make Easy, Creamy Fudge

The perfect recipe team, fresh-tasting California walnuts and luscious semi-sweet chocolate morsels, are ideally combined in quick, creamy walnut fudge that takes just five minutes of cooking. This recipe from the Diamond Walnut Kitchen does have one secret. Be sure to bring the mixture to a complete boil, then start counting the five minutes of boiling.

Try California walnuts and chocolate together in cookies, cakes, pies, puddings and other desserts too. And if you want a second fine treat, use the fudge recipe again, only instead of chocolate, substitute butterscotch morsels.

California walnuts come in-the-shell in cellophane bags, or already shelled in handy vacuum cans or clear bags.

WONDERFUL WALNUT FUDGE

- 2/3 cup evaporated milk
- 1 jar marshmallow cream, 5 or 10-ounce
- 1 1/2 cups granulated sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup butter
- 2 6-ounce packages semi-sweet chocolate morsels
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup chopped California walnuts

Mix first five ingredients in saucepan. Stirring constantly, heat to boiling and boil five minutes. Remove from heat. Add semi-sweet chocolate morsels and stir until melted. Add vanilla and walnuts; spread in buttered 8-inch square pan. Cool until firm. Makes about two pounds of fudge
